CONFIRMATION. This impressive religious rite was administered on Sunday at St. Philip's Church to some sixteen persons, the majority being ladies. The service was performed by Davis, assisted by the Rev. W. B. W. Howe, Rector of the church. The attendance was very large, and they were all attentive listeners to the impressive discourse of the Bishop, the fine reading of the Rector, and the beantiful service of the Episcopal Church.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH.-It had been expected that Dr. Baker would preach yesterday, but his place was well filled by Bishop Persico, whose ourse upon the "Divinity of Christ" was marked by chaste and classical language as well as by fervent and touching thought.

ANOTHER MURDER IN DARLINGTON DISTRICT. We have received information of a fatal affray which occurred in Darlington District, Lynch's Creek, and about sixteen miles from the Courthouse. A young man named Kelley, a son of Mr. Robert Kelley of that place. had a quarrel on the 22d instant with a negro, name unknown. The negro was stabbed in the encounter and has since died.

NEW YORK FREIGHTS .- The steamer Miami was cleared for New Yook on Saturday last, by Mesars. Jno. & Theo Getty, who are extensively engaged in the trade with that port. They have had three steamers come to their consignment during the past week, and have secured for them good freights and dispatch. Their old New York line composed of the E. B. Souder and Moneka, have a lasting reputation for their promptness and good management.

FATAL ACCIDENT.-We learn from Captain Moore, of the South Carolina Bailroad, that a young man named Strobel was accidentally killed at Blackville on Saturday afternoon while running an unruly horse. A party of young men were running their horses between the tracks when Mr. Strobel's horse shied at a box and broke from the track, running against a horse-rack, which struck Mr. Strobel in the chest, killing him instantly.

DEATH OF REV. JOHN P. MORRIS.-We regret to announce the sudden death of this young minister. He died in Darlington on Friday morning last, about 5 o'clock, at the residence of Mrs. Gibson. Mr. Morris was in his twenty-third year, a native of Hamilton, Canada. He came here in 1865, for the improvement of his health, and found so much benefit from the genial influences of our climate that he determined to remain and make his home in our State. He joined the South Carolina Conference of the M. E. Church, South, in December, 1866, and, by unusual application, accomplished in one year what generally requires double that time. He passed an examination on the "studies" of both years, and was ordained deacon. He preached in Aiken last year, giving general satisfaction, and began to be looked upon as a young man of decided merit, who would certainly make his mark. At the last conference he was sent to Darlington, where he had preached two Sundays, and was winning golden opinions from his congregation. He was feeble in constitution, but his friends apprehended no such sudden terminstion to his brightly opening career. He was complaining a little during the early part of last On Thursday night Mr. S. A. Woods remained with him until about four A. M. when he was relieved by his son, Mr. Andrew Woods, and a few minutes after Mr. Morris put his hand on his shoulder and breathed his

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS AND COMMON PLEAS-HON. F. J. MOSES PRESIDING.-The trial of Thomas Doland alias Thomas Daly for Arson, was resumed, and a jury formed, Messrs. O'Connor, Seymour and Gayer appearing for the defence.

J. H. Balke, the first witness for the prose-cution, testified: That he resided and kept store at the southeast corner of Beatlain and cution, testified: That he resided and kept store at the southeast corner of Beaufain and Mazyok streets, in partnership with Mr. D. Jenke. On the morning of the 23d of October he was aroused by Mrs. Lilienthal, one of the occupants of the house, who told him that the house was on fire. He immediately descended the stairs and found fire burning in two places;—one under the eastern door of the house opening on the yard, and the other under a screen about six feet from the house and adjoining on one side the piazza and the other a fence and shed. There was a fence on Besufain-street, but it has no gate. On Mazyok-street there was a gate leading into the yard. The witness was positive of having closed both that gate and the stree on that night. Knew the prisoner, as he had visited the parties residing in the house about one year previous. The goods were the property of witness, and the house belonged to T. Claffy.

**Cross-examined.**—The stock was insured for $1500 at the time of the fire. When the alarm was given he found the gate open, the store being closed, also the door leading into the yard. When witness came down stairs he yard.

being closed, also the door leading into the yard. When witness came down stairs he found some cotton saturated with turpentine, partially burnt under the sill of the door.

M. H. Nathan, Chief of Fire Ibepartment, said that he heard of the fire the next morning, as there was no slarm that night; that he examined the premises immediately. They were as described by the previous witness, and the marks of the fire were plainly visible.

F. J. Lillenthal, testified: That he resided in the house at the time of the fire, and was awoke by the noise of a watchman's rattle. He opened a window and saw the fire in the yard. Witness then ran down stairs, and saw the blaze at the door on the piazza, and also that on the yard. The witness then went back to bring his family out, but Balke and his brother said they could put the fire out, which was done. The description of the fire was the same as that stated by Balke. The cotton was found under the sill of the door, and the screen in the yard was considerably charred.

Mrs. Lilienthal corroborated the testimony of her husband.

John Cahill, policeman, testified: That on the night of October 23d he was on Beaufainstreet, and while standing at the corner of Beaufain and Mazyck streets, he saw the prisoner come out of the gate leading on Mazyck-street and walk off quite first. At that time his suspicions were aroused, and he went to the gate quickly and saw the fire in theyard; he opened the gate and saw the fire plainly. The witness then called to the man to hait, but he commenced to run. At that time he sprung lia rattle and pursued the prisoner, who ran into West-street, and thence into Archdale-street, where he concealed himself by a fence. When the witness came up Doland had his pistol presented within two feet of his (witness') breast, and said, "You __, if you don't go back and hush I'll have your life." The witness then fell back, but Doland advanced, and repeated his threat. At that time witness there has hone on the pistol was correct, and pursued Doland. Witness had k cocked; witness recognized the prisoner as the same man.

Patrick Graham testified: That he was a policeman and was on Berresford-street as the time of the occurrence. Heard a loud hallocing, but did not recognize the voice; when in West-street near Archdale he saw a flash and heard Cahill say he was shot; witness ran toward him, and Cahill said he was shot; Sergeant Reilly came up and called on witness to follow; the prisoner was then, running; when witness came up with him two sergeants of the police were also on the ground: witness saked the prisoner why he shot Cahill, and he said because he was drunk.

three years. He was then employed in the gas works. To her knowledge he had never been in her husband's employ, though they were friendly. Her husband is in New York, and has been there for some time. He bought the house in question during the war. She has heard that it was insured for $5000.

J. B. Reeves testified: That he was a clerk in W. B. Heriot & Co.'s insurance office. The insurance on the house was $4000, and on the kitchen $1000.

kitchen $1000.

Henry Clark testified: That he resides in Beautain-street. He estimated the value of the premises at about $200 at the present time, and that if they were insured for $5000, it was considerably above their value.

Here the State closed the case, and the defence called in James Rumley. fence called in James Rumley.

Witness was a member of the police force on the night of the fire; was on watch from 7 to 1 o'clock that night from Archdale to Rutledge-street in Beaufain-street. Witness crossed over to him and told him that it was argainst the rules of city to his hand up, made two accepts fence. Witness crossed over to him and told him that it was against the rules of city to jump fences. Man replied that he lived there, and got over the fence. Witness then moved off a few steps, and thought he heard footsteps ascending the stairs inside. Witness made the statement before the Mayor's Court. The man who jumped the fence was smaller than prisoner. This took place at twenty minutes to 1 o'clock. The prisoner he did not consider to be the same man. sider to be the same man.

Witness said that on the night of the fire he was ness said that on the vight of the fire he was going from Market-street to see a friend in Pitt-street. He went through West-street and turned up Mazyck to Beaufain until he came near the gate at the corner. He saw there was a light in the yard; he booked through the cracks of the gate and saw it was a fire; then turned round to give the alarm, when he heard a policeman spring his rettle. Witness then turned and ran down Mazyck to West-street, towards the Hope engine house. Hearing a man coming after him, crying: stopl stopl he stopped in West-street until the policeman came up, who cried "robbur," and struck him on the head. Witness eaked, "what did you strike me for? I'll shoot you!" and the policeman sprang his rattle again. As this was done strike me for? I'll shoot you!" and the police-man sprang his rattle again. As this was done he was answered by another rattle. The po-liceman then rushed on him with his club rais-ed; at that time he fired his pistol. The po-liceman then fell back with a bullet in his arm. The witness then wheeled and ran toward Ma-zyck-street before the other policeman could come up, and turned toward the jail. He then met a horseman galloning up after him, who come up, and turned toward the jail. He then Witness continued to run, and went down Archdale toward Queen, until he fell into an old cellar, were he was captured by the horseman and two policemen, another sergeant having ridden up. The two sergeants dismounted, and he was struck with a club from the side, which knocked him senseless. When recovering, he heard one of the men crying out don't murder him, and he was then taken to the guardhouse. Witness was going through the grandhouse. Witness was going through Mazyck-atreet about half-past one o'clock. The gate was shut, an he did not open it. Witness was going round the corner when the police cried stop, but he thought that it was because he cried "fire."

Cross-examined.—Was not working during the day, and spent the day principally in Mr. Claffy's bar-room in Market-street. From Claft's bar-room in Market-street. From the bar-room he went into the yard about half-past twelve o'clock, and eat his supper; from there he went to Pitt-street to see a woman, at No. 2, between Beaufain and Went-worth streets; hearing nome people talking in Beaufain-street, he left there and went through West-street turning an Maryek-street until West-street, turning up Mazyck-street until he got opposite the gete at the corner near the fire. As soon as the witness saw the flames he started toward the engine house. Not being sure of the fre, he did not give the alarm until the rattle was sprung. Witness is Mackay, Barnwell District; A. B. John Kenny testified: That he had been subpensed by the Attorney-General. He had known the prisoner for several years, and had, always known him as an orderly, hard-working citizen oitizen.

John Cahill re-examined by the State.—Said that the prisoner Doland was the man that came out of the yard. He was about fifteen steps from the gate at the time, and could have seen any person who came up the street. None came. The prisoner had never cried "fire," or he would have heard it. While lying the least the time, had not be the countries of the least the street. "fire," or he would have heard it. While lying in his bank in the gnardhouse, witness heard Rumley say that he saw a man come to the house and take hold of the knot of the door, and when asked what he was doing the man said that he lived there. Witness did not hear Rumley say anything of the height of the man in question.

James Riley, Sergeant of Police, testified: That he assisted in the arrest. He was on Ward No. 2, and about a quarter before two o'clock, heard a noise and a rattle, concluding it came from the jail, he turned his horse in that direction.

it came from the jail, he turned his horse in that direction. At the corner of Mazyck and Queen streets he met Graham and Gerarty, who told him some one had been shot, Witness then went up to the corner of Archdale and Queen streets, and met Wescoat opposite the Unitarian Church. The man was then getting out of a cellar. Wescoat asked him to give up the pistol twice, but the man ran into the lot a second time, saying don't follow me. When witness came on the scene, and got clear of his horse, the prisoner was down, and he could not say who struck him.

The testimony having closed, and it being near five o'clock, the Judge decided, with the consent of counsel, to defer hearing argument until Monday morning at 10 o'clock, and the court was adjourned.

REV. BISHOP WIGHTMAN.-We had the please ure yesterday to listen to an eloquent and instructive discourse at Trinity Church, Haselstreet, from Bishop Wm. M. Wightman, from Philippians iii, 13 and 14: "This one thing I do, forgetting those things which are belind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesns." The Bishop, as usual, was very happy in the elucidation of his text, showing depth and originality of thought, a wealth of illustration, a chaste diction, and great fluency of expression. We congratulate our community on having this learned and eloquent divine in our midst. We noticed Governor Orr in the congregation.

PETIT LABORNY, ETC .- The guardhouse register of last night showed the names of several persons who had fallen from grace.

Luke Wright, a colored cotton speculator took a quantity of the staple from Boyce's wharf, and sold it to F. C. Archer (colored). The theft was discovered, and both the vendor and the vendee lodged in the guardhouse.

Willam Cooper (colored), was arrested fo stealing partridges from the market, at halfpast 6 o'clock Saturday evening. The owner did not admire Cooper's fondness for game, and had him put out of the way of further temptation. He will answer for his misdeeds at the Mayor's Court this morning.

Poor Boy Happy and Sol. Happy, two noble

escendants of Ham [Ariel to the contrary notwithstanding ], were charged with obstruct ing the sidewalks and resisting the police. John Lang (colored), being instigated by the Devil, and not having the fear of the Mayor before his eyes, did smite and otherwise abuse and maltreat one Adam Sumter, a man and a brother. Adam was not of a forgiving disposition, and had Lang taken to a quiet place where fighting is unknown.

ARREST OF A DEFAULTER AND RECOVERY OF $7000.—Information was received in this city some weeks back that a man named Thos. M. Hannon, an agent of the Freedmen's Bureau, at Lake Providence, La., had absconded from that place with between $7000 and $10,000. It was known that he had left Jackson, Miss., on the 5th instant, and it was supposed his desti-nation was Charleston. Information of the facts of the case, together with a description of the defaulter, were sent to this city, and received by Lietenant Hendricks, of the City Detectives. This intimation was sufficient to put the Lieutenant on the alert, and his officers the prisoner why he substituted because he was drunk.

Mrs. Claffy testified: That her husband owned a nouse at the corner of Beaufain and Mazyck streets. She had known the prisoner nearly ton he would appear under an assumed name, and endeavor to destroy his identity by alternative value. ing his appearance, but the Charleston detectives are used to dealing with rascals, and know how to trap their game. On last Wednesday Lieut. Hendricks and officer Coates arrested man calling himself James M. Ormsby at his boarding-house in Society-street. Ormsby had een endeavoring to purchase real estate, and had in various ways excited the suspicion of the vigilant detectives, and they felt convinced that they had found their man. On arresting Ormsby, $7398 were found, which was turned over to the military authorities, who receipted for the same. Ormsby was subsequently delivered to the military, on a requisition from the Commanding General. Ormsby denies any knowledge of the robbery, and insists that he has no slias, but came to the city to purchase property. Great credit is due Lieut. Hendricks and Officer Coates, for the prompt manner in which they worked up the case, and made the arrest. They have shown to the community, that Charleston is no place for thieves, and if any of the larger rascals should visit this city, they will soon be relieved of their ill-gotten booty, and be handed over to the proper

NEWS FROM LIBERIA William Rose, the body servant of General Maxcy Gregg, who went to Liberia on the Golconda with Miss Gregg, has lately returned to his native State, and has furnished us with some interesting facts connected with that country. He repre sents Liberia as being capable of producing everything that is used by man, but the enervating climate has prevented the colonists from improving these natural advantages. Tobacco, lumber, meat, &c., are imported extensively, though the forests abound in the most valuable woods, and the country is capable of producing the finest description of tobacco, while cattle could be raised with ease when once acclimated. At Monrovia, the capital of Liberia, the colored merchant are doing well, their trade extending through Africa. They barter with the natives for palm oil, which is sold to the vessels at from twenty-seven and a half to forty cents per gallon About two thousand bags of coffee are exported yearly to England, where, indeed, most of the products are sent. Rice, cotton, coffee and vegetables are grown to a limited extent, but are used mostly for home consumption the natives and colonists gaining a living with such ease that they do not exert themselves. The palm oil is produced from the nuts of the palm tree, which grows luxuriantly, and, as it is easily manufactured, little care is taken to develop the agricultural resources of the country. The climate is not warmer than a summer in South Carolina, but there is no winter and watermelons, Irish potatoes and other vegetables ripen in January. Irish potatoes are first planted from the cut eye, as in this country, but this growth produces only a small seed about the size of a marble, and the potato is raised from the vines, much as sweet notatoes and "slips" here. The Colonization Society furnishes each new comer with 10 acres of land, a house and rations for six months, with a doctor and nurse while sick during that time. Labor can be obtained for from 40 to 70 cents per day, and mechanics' wages are from $1 00 a $1 50 per day in Liberian currency. This currency (copper and paper) passes from Cape Palmas to Monrovia. and is very much depreciated, being worth about 50 cents on the dollar. It is made in

The natives have been greatly improved by contact with the colonists, and the efforts of the missionaries to instil the doctrines of Christianity have met with some success. Several of the natives have "professed religion," and two of them are ministers, one belonging to the Baptist and the other to the Presbyterian denomination. Miss Gregg is teaching the natives at Monrovia, where there is a large mission station. Our informant states tha the great drawback to immigration is the African fever, which invariably attacks all strangers, and few recover unless the greatest care is taken. Once acclimated the climate has no terrors to the colonist, and if he uses only a moderate degree of energy he can secure a comfortable support. Many of the older colonists have acquired considerable wealth by trading with the natives and the vessels that visit the different ports. Most of those who went from South Carolina are doing well, though they generally yield to the influ ences of the hot climate and become as lazy as the natives. One of the most singular features of the country is the absence of cattle of every description. Horses are extremely rare, the riding being done in palaquins borne by men. There are also very few persons who raise horned cattle, though frequent attempts have been made to introduce them from abroad, but they are seldom acclimated. Corned beef and pickled pork imported from New York which, with the rice raised on the spot, constitutes the food of the majority of the set-

Wm. Rose was the body servant of Genera Gregg, and was with him when killed at the battle of Fredericksburg. He wears the General's gold watch, which was presented to him as a testimonial of esteem by Miss Gregg. The inner case of the watch bears an inscription stating this fact. Rose went to Liberia with Miss Gregg, but was taken with the African tever, and determined to come back to South Carolina, where he expects to remain. While confident that only those possessing strong constitutions and temperate habits can succeed. Nature has been lavish of her treasures, but they are for the most part neglected, and though the country produces the finest woods, gold, ivory, &c., they will never be exported to any large extent. WILMINGTON AND MANCHESTER RAILBOAD IN THE HANDS OF A RECEIVER. - We learn that Henry M. Drane, late President of the Wilmington and Manchester Railroad, has been appointed receiver of the earnings of the road for the benefit of its creditors, and has entered upon the duties of his office at Wilmington, N. C.

The appointment of Mr. Drane was mad by Judge Meares, and shows a just appre ciation of the availability of Mr. Drane, who was elected President of this road in November. 1865, and immediately procured $600,000, on a credit of two years, that sum being required to restore the road to its original condition, and to connect once more the old North State with Virginia and South Carolina.

This loan of $600,000 was expended with judgment and fidelity, but the business of the road did not come up to the sanguine expects tion of its friends. A change was made in the executive officer by the strength of the State proxies, against the popular vote and the wishes of private stockholders. A well defined policy of two years' experience was thus overthrown, bringing the road into the hands of a public receiv er in the short space of three months,-"a fear ful experiment."

A NEW COLORED SUNDAY SCHOOL .- The color ed members of the Circular Church have, for some time, been engaged in collecting children with the intention of forming a Sunday school. The basement of the chapel has been fitted up for their use, and yesterday nearly two hundred children were present. Mr. Adams, the pastor of the church, read a communication from the colored members, request ing teachers from among the whites. They stated that these were the children of members, and had "been born in the meeting," and they did not wish them taught elsewhere. Before the war the Circular Church had a very large colored membership, and the spacious gallery devoted to their use was always crowded. Most of these were family servants who had been connected with the church for years, and entertained for it, a strong feeling of affec tion. When the present church was built, but little space could be spared for the colored members. Notwithstanding this drawback they have been constant in their attendance and their recent action proves that they still adhere to their first love, and wish their children to receive the same religious instruction.

-The latest adaptation of that accommodating substance, India rubber, it is said is about to be made by a firm in Bridgeport, Conn., who proposes to build coaches and carriages with India rubber bodies. This is a bright idea, and might with still greater advantage be applied to city stages and horse cars. There would then perhaps be really always "reom for one more."

No Health without Vigor.

The wear and tear of life tells upon us all more or less. What are we but machines? The vital principle is the motive power that keeps the human en-gine in motion; but as beams, pistons, connection pipes, condensers and boilers wear out, so do organs muscles, tissues and all the compound parts of that marvellous piece of work called Man. The mechanism of the body-requires to be repaired and strengthened just as much as 'the mechanism employed to grind corn, or spin cotton, or weave cloth. Steam cannot drive a broken shaft, or impel a drum or a wheel that is out of gear; neither can the vital force act through a paralyzed limb, or an inert organ.

ARE YOU WEARING OUT? Do you feel that any one of your organs—your stomach, liver, bowels, nervous system, or any other essential part of your organization, falters in its work?
