NEWS SUMMARY.

Gold closed strong yesterday in New York at 40.

The New York cotton market closed dull but nominally unchanged: Sales 230 bales at 30 1/2c, closing at 30c.

Liverpool the cotton market closed without change.

The Empress Eugenie is forty-two years of age, and still beautiful.

Masilda Heron has opened an "aristocratic" dramatic school in New York.

A ball was recently given in Paris, by the Countess Pourtalès, to introduce the fashion of wearing short dresses.

Gen. McClellan has written a letter to the authorities of New York, declining a public reception tendered him on his return from Europe.

The strength of the army of the German Fund has been reduced since the first of May to the extent of about 15,000 men, by allowing that number to return to their homes on leave.

A dispatch from Rome says that the Pope has invited the Roman Catholic Bishops of the United States to raise 100,000 volunteers for the Papal army, authorizing them to make such terms with the Government as they may deem necessary and proper.

The United States District Court for Louisiana has decided that a port removal from that in which a vessel belongs, though in the same State is so far a foreign port that the vessel is subject to an admiralty lien for money advanced, and supplies and repairs furnished there on the order of the master.

General Steedman, Gordon Granger, T. W. Swan and Smith, are visiting some of the principal cities in New Mexico, and holding consultations with the leading Democrats. It is said their mission is to encourage a feeling in favor of Gen. Hancock as a candidate for the Presidency of the United States.

In accordance with a resolution adopted at the last convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Illinois, the diocese has been divided into seven districts, over each of which a rural dean will preside. This is a novelty in ecclesiastical government in America, though common enough in England.

Approve of the liberal distribution of English orders on the occasion of Prince Humbert's marriage, an Italian journal published an epigram on the effect that, while in old times they hung themselves upon the crosses, they now hang crosses upon their backs.

The government acknowledged the point by confessing the journal.

The New York Citizen says: It is a matter within our own knowledge that Mr. Ervatt's ordinary lawyer by attending the impeachment proceedings; in other words, he despatched business very much more remunerative for the sake of conducting Mr. Johnson's defense; and, moreover, that Mr. Ervatt has received no fee whatever for conducting it.

The Chicago Times, the chief Democratic paper of Illinois, which recently advocated the nomination of Pendleton for President, it says the nomination of either would be fatal to the Democracy.

Pendleton is too much identified with "greenbacks" and Hancock is anything but a soldier. The Times evidently wants Historicals of Illinois.

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church are now in session, the Old School at Albany, New York, the New School at Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, and the Southern Presbyterians at Baltimore, Maryland. These bodies convened on Thursday, May 21st. The project of the reunion of the Old and the New School will form a prominent subject in the debates of the respective organizations.

The Presbyterian Assembly at Baltimore consists of about 150 delegates from the Southern States.

A Washington letter to the Louisville Journal says that when the Democratic National Convention meets July 4, a resolution will be offered by some of the Northern delegates to the effect that the party pledges itself to resist the counting of any electoral votes determined by the admission of negro States; that the attempt by the Radicals to secure power in that manner by defrauding the people of their inherent liberties in the selection of a President will be resisted, if necessary, with armed force, and that the legally elected President of the white race shall be inaugurated if it requires even a million of bayonets to install him in the White House.

A Chicago letter written on the night of the meeting of the Republican Convention says: "There never was such direct and undisguised bargain and sale of votes in a convention as is going on here to-night in the interest of Governor Fenton. As much as five hundred dollars is openly offered for influential votes in the Southern delegations. Fenton has already bought up Louisiana, and is bidding for Virginia, Alabama, South Carolina and Georgia. The Louisiana delegation cost fifteen hundred dollars. In reply to a charge of corrupt use of money, one of Fenton's friends said to-night that the Southern delegates were poor men, and the money was given to them, not to pay for their votes, but to reimburse them for their travelling expenses."

The London Times says of the prospects of the British trade with America, that since the first extensive shipments of British manufactured goods to America, after the termination of the rebellion in 1865, which produced good returns for the autumn of that year, the American markets have been over-supplied, both with foreign and home manufactures, and all engaged in it operated to disadvantage.

The Times adds that the transactions of the spring of 1868 have not been so unsatisfactory, and that "apparently there exists a more hopeful feeling for the future; but the autumn trade, it is expected, will be interfered with as usual by the Presidential election. Hence the belief is that until next year we can hardly look for an active and remunerative business."

The Prussian fortifications now in course of construction by the government, under the direction of Count Moltke, who planned the famous Sadowa campaign, are very complete. The committee is now turning its attention to the placing of the northern coast in a thorough state of defence, as they are more exposed than any other part of Prussia. The idea of replacing Luxembourg by a fortified position near Treves still exists. The first circumvallations of an extensive intrenched camp, however, are to be constructed now rather than the foundation of a real fortress. The military posts of the second order are to be fitted up with a telegraphic network similar to the citadels on the Rhine and in Silesia, which have been furnished with them for more than a year.

A Washington letter to the Baltimore Sun says: "A leading politician of the party said to-day that if Grant had not quarreled with the President, and impeachment had not been resuscitated after its burial in December last, he would have had no fears as to the result in November. Upon the whole, it may be said that the nominations have fallen very flat, and although by the aid of party music and other appliances a spurious enthusiasm may be engendered, it will rapidly die out. Thad. Stevens predicted that if impeachment failed the Radical candidates would be ignominiously beaten, and many far-seeing and sagacious political prophets now express their belief that this prediction will be verified. It may be that if the Democrats are discreet, Grant will be in November just where Scott was in November, 1852."

CHARLESTON.

TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 26, 1868.

The Great What-is-it?

The nomination of ULTMES S. GRANT - the great political what-is-it? - as the Radical candidate for the Presidency, has taken no one by surprise. General GRANT could not resist the wiles of the Congressional tempters; and when the highest place in the nation and the fatness thereof were rolled out before his gaze, incontinently he fell on his face and worshipped, so jamming his jaws that he has since been able to utter no word of wisdom, and no other formal response to the "call of the people" than that he is "unaccustomed to public speaking."

GRANT once said that he would "fight it out on this line if it took all the summer," and as he waddled and chafed then, so may he slide and crawfish now. But the United States has had enough of men who are ordinary in ability and extraordinary in boorish vulgarity, and now requires something abler and stronger than the unformed mediocrity who happened to command-in-chief on the day of Appomattox. GRANT is wholly ignorant of the political history of his country; he is incapable of comprehending the issues upon whose solution depend our welfare or ruin; take the cigar from his lips, remove him beyond the whites-washery perfume of the barrack-room, and he is a well-paid nothing.

Mr. COLFAX, the candidate for the Vice-Presidency, is a man of great shrewdness and intelligence; but it cannot be believed that his nomination will strengthen the backbone of his chief. Sectional feeling will destroy the power that he might have given the ticket, and the plan of taking both President and Vice-President from the same section of the country, must cause lukewarmness, if not active opposition.

General GRANT enters upon his last campaign with booby confidence, relying upon his political lieutenants to guide him to victory. But the men who won for him the battles of war, are not the men who pull political wires; nor will mullah obstinacy and mere military valor against the tried ranks of the valiant young Democracy. The success of one man - GRANT - would be the disaster of forty millions of people; with the defeat of this one overrated man, there shall come back fortune and happiness to our country.

Impeachment Redivivus.

This is the day to which the High Court of Impeachment postponed the vote upon the ten remaining articles of impeachment. Unless a further postponement should prevail, the main efforts of those who are battling for conviction will be concentrated on the second article. It reads as follows: ARTICLE I. That on said 21st day of February, in the year of our Lord, 1868, at Washington, in the District of Columbia, said Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, unmindful of the high duties of his office, of his oath of office, and of his obligations to the people of the United States, and contrary to the provisions of an act entitled "An act regulating the tenure of certain civil offices," passed March 2, 1867, without the advice and consent of the Senate of the United States, did send and there being in session, and without authority of law, did, with intent to violate the Constitution of the United States and the act aforesaid, issue and deliver to one Lorenzo Thomas a letter of authority, in substance as follows, that is to say:

WASHINGTON, D. C., February 21, 1868. Sir: Hon. E. M. Stanton having this day been removed from office as Secretary for the Department of War, you are hereby authorized and empowered to act as Secretary of War until he is relieved, and to take charge of the discharge of the duties pertaining to that office.

Mr. Stanton has been instructed to transfer to you all his records, books, papers, and other public property now in his custody and charge. Respectfully yours, ANDREW JOHNSON, Adjutant-General United States Army, Washington, D. C.

Then and there being no vacancy in said office of Secretary for the Department of War, whereby said Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, did then and there commit, and was guilty of, a high misdemeanor in office.

Mormonism, or Something Worse.

A nice condition of public morals prevails in the Northern States. The newspapers tell us that the law courts, which should be the sanctuary of justice and the social decencies, are in the habit of granting divorces to one party to the marriage contract, even in cases where the other party is wholly unaware and studiously kept in ignorance of the very existence of the divorce suit. There are hordes of shyster lawyers who make their living by this sort of practice, and so shamelessly their proceedings carried on that they publicly announce over their own names that they will guarantee to get legal divorces at the shortest notice, and "without trouble or exposure" - that is to say, without the husband or wife to be divorced knowing anything about it. Is this one of the features of the new civilization and progress which Radical rule is about to introduce in the South?

The Happy Family.

TRULOVE WEDD does not believe that the Republican party has been irretrievably split by the impeachment verdict, and thinks it will be productive of greater harmony and union. The Radical leaders, he says, know that there is a limit to their excesses, and men like WADE, DRAKE, BOYCE, and LOGAN, have discovered at last that the people and their tribunals are by no means given over to Radicalism and folly. This view, he argues, is confirmed by the moderate action of the Chicago Convention. Retaliation, reading out, and indiscriminate vengeance were pocketed, and endeavors were made to bring about harmony and co-operation. The Democratic journals, nevertheless, are of opinion that the "war of the factions has commenced," and that the "family quarrel" will leave the Jacobins in the condition of the Kilkeny cats, of whom nothing remains but their tails.

There is little harmony between the friends of PENDLETON and HANCOCK, and the nomination of the one seems likely to produce much anarchy among the adherents of the other. PENDLETON holds the strongest hand, and some of the Southern journals, which have spoken in favor of HANCOCK, grow discontented enough to declare that the Northern wing merely wishes to make use of them to further the aims of an ambitious aspirant. The Mobile Tribune says that "the South is invited by BELMONT to send delegates (to the National Convention) only that he may attempt to buy them for a mess of potato," and other papers talk with equal directness.

The Congressional Committees which are so busily engaged sending for "persons and papers," bullying bank clerks and hectoring private secretaries, seem to overlook the clause in the United States Constitution which declares that "the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable seizures, shall not be violated; and no warrant shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the person or things to be seized."

THERE HAVE BEEN twenty revolutions, large and small, in Mexico during the last month. Things are getting no better very fast, and the people are beginning to sigh for the murdered MAXIMILIAN. The Mexican curses are coming home to roost, and murder, robbery and rapine are the order of the day.

The New York Herald has dropped FARAGUT for President, and strikes out in favor of woman suffrage. If the young ladies are allowed to vote, they ought, at least, to run out of the field the old women politicians who flourish in every State of the Union.

PENDLETON'S FRIENDS are elated by the fact that the Massachusetts Democratic State Convention has adopted a resolution in favor of his nomination as the Presidential candidate of the Democratic party.

It was telegraphed all over the country that Congressman LOGAN had been stoned at York, Pennsylvania. The officers of the train now certify that no such thing occurred. No man could be found without fault, and the first stone remained uncast.

FORNEY SAYS "the truth is mighty and will prevail." Granted; but what will become of FORNEY?
