REGULAR MERTING. COUNCIL CHAMBER, June 2, 1868.

Present—Mayor Cogswell, and Aldermen Geddings, Clark, Cunningham, Potter, Adams, Wall, Weston, Howard, Olney, Whilden, Dereef, Parker, McKinlay and Moose.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Before proceedings to the regular business, Alderman Whilden said:

Mr. Mayor and Members of City Council:

Alderman Whilden Baid:

Mr. Mayor and Members of City Council:

In behalf of myself and Alderman Olney,
I have a few remarks to make before the commencement of the regular business of this body, and ask your indulgence for a short time.

Many of you, and quite a large number of the citizens of Charleston, whose opinions are entitled to respect, are surprised that we should be occupying the position of Aldermen; more especially when it is so well known the part that we took in the late struggle, and the views that we entertain and have openly expressed in reference to the changes that are daily taking place around us.

reference to the changes that are daily taking place around us.

The recent order of Gen. Canby, by which the majority of the most useful members of our Board have been removed, and the retention in office of three of us who were so fully identified with the course adopted by this State, from 1861 to 1865—and whose opinions and convictions have undergone no change—has somewhat surprised us, which retention in office we consider very far from being compilmentary.

has somewhat surprised us, which retention in office we consider very far from being complimentary.

We are here from a sense of duty, and feel that it is due to those who placed us here that we should remain to aid in protecting their interests, as far as lies in our power; when removed, our responsibility to them ceases.

In our intercourse with many of the members of this board (which intercourse must necessarily be only of an official character), we irust that that wide difference which we are well aware does exist in our political opinions, shall not engender any disagreement purely for party advancement.

We all profess to have the welfare and prosperity of the City of Charleston at heart, although differing possibly as to the mode of its accomplishment. Heretofore politics did not enter into municipal affairs, and it is unnecessary that it should now. Although circumstances have thrown us together, we can illy afford to waste our energies in empty disagreements on matters which may jeopardize our prosperity commercially. Our term of office, which we are led to believe will be short, can be well spent in completing work that has been become.

Lirust that we will aim so to conduct the affairs of this city that the entire community, irrespective of party, may approve our actions.

Alderman Clark arose and said:

Tour Honor and Gentlemen:

It is with deep emotion that I at this time feel myself called upon to make a few remarks upon our present connection. Thrown together as we are by the throse of a revolution, we of the North with you of the South, we of the white race with you of the colored, it becomes us to well consider our relations one to another, and to the community. comes us to well consider our relations one to another, and to the community.

We are here by appointment, and not by selection. We are here to serve our city the same as if elected; to do that, we have taken our solumn oaths.

We caller upon our duties, the most of us, unacquainted with the minutize of the business which we are expected to faithfully perform. To know that business we must learn, and learning must act.

Gentlemen, aware as we all are of how closely our actions will be watched, our motives questioned and results approved or reproved—it will become us to well consider every step we may take, every act we may perform.

Tis well known that, with our fellow-citizens, the representation in Council of the colored race is now regarded as an experiment, upon the results of which, to an almost paramount extent, depends its future unquestioned recognition. And gentlemen, are we equal to the emergency? Shall we succeed? Let us all say we will, and saying we will, let our actions and the results of those actions show the success.

Your committee would respectfully report: That they have given the matter their most careful and earnest attention. Every book and paper connected with the office, as well as that of the Health Department since its organization in 18:6, have been carefully examined, and, we are pleased to say, found correct. We find the vouchers all countersigned by the proper authority, and in our opinions, from careful observation during the examination, of the working of the office in connection with the Health Department, in each and every particular, has been conducted with a due regard to economy; and the thanks of this community are due to the Registrar, Dr. George S. Pelzer, for the faithful discharge of his duties.
