President will veto no more of the reconstruction measures of Congress has no further foundation than this—that he will let them become laws without his signature. This simply saves Congress the trouble of passing the over his veto, or in other words affords that body a net gain of about twenty-four hours in the matter of their becoming laws of the land. This is the extent of his concession to Congress

J. Goulding completed, at four o'clock on Saturday morning, in New York, the feat of walking a thousand miles in a thousand hours, for a wager of $2000. He is greatly overcome by fatigue, however, and his attending physician has forbidden him to sleep more than a few hours at a time until the debilitating effects of his long journey shall gradually wear off. His feet and legs are in a very bad state. But few friends are permitted at present to conwerse with him. This is the second time only that this extraordinary feat of endurance has

It begins to be feared that the Chinese Embassy now in this country may make such report of these facts to the home authorities as will check emigration to California, and thus serious'y damage the industry and labor of the State. There are about sixty thousand Chinese on the Pacific coast.

-A Washington letter says a good deal of feeling has been excited in Democratic circles here by an editorial in the New York World, acquiescing, to some extent, in the doctrine of universal negro suffrage. - The Chase men are, of course, well pleased with the article, and thinks that it argues well for the prospects of the Chief Justice at the 4th of July New York Convention. The disposition among members of the House and of Democratic leaders here, eems to be to declare against negro suffrage anywhere unless it shall be established by the will of the people. That is, the absolute right of the States, North and South, to control their own State organizations upon this subject is to be fully recognized.

-The Marquis of Hastings is said to be more copelessly bankrupt than any other man in England, not excepting Sir Morton Peto. The great railroad engineer, however, ruined himself by endeavoring to promote really useful undertakings; but the Marquis has squandered his immense fortune on race horses, having lost five hundred thousand dollars on last year's Derby races, two hundred and forty-five thousand dollars on a race in October, and two hundred thousand dollars very recently. These losses the Marquis did not pay in full, and consequently, to his "great mortification," he was not able to be present at the spring meetings. His only hope for relief from his turf liabilities was placed on the prospect of his mare. Lady Elizabeth, winning at the Derby of May 27th, 1868. But in order to be present on the occasion, he was obliged previously to pay $50,000 down on his old debts, to give security for $50,000 in six months, and to mortgage the winnings of Lady Elizabeth. But luck was still against him, for the mare was distanced miserably. When noblemen are reduced to such aits as these, the existence of the peerage in England is enlangered. The Marquis is neither ornamenal nor useful, and will probably end his days as other broken down peers have done, on a pension secured to him by some quack docas guaranteeing miraculous cures of all the

The Results of Organized Effort.

The large Conservative gains in the State at the recent County elections have aused some natural surprise, the vote upon the call for a convention, and upon the ratification of the new constitution, having still occupied with preliminary business. It failed to prepare the public mind for any important change in the strength of opposing parties. At the elections for calling a convention only seventy-one thousand votes were cast, out of a total registration of one hundred and twenty-six thousand eight hundred and forty-four; but at the elections for ratification of the constitution ninety-eight thousand and forty-six votes were polled, so that it was expected that the Radicals would, at the County elections, carry by increased majorities, every district but those in which the whites had a large excess of the registered votes.

When the convention elections were held the blacks were unaccustomed to the exercise of their new privilege, and did not vote nearly their full strength, while the whites, with but few exceptions, kept away from Bristol, Tennessee, on the 15th day of July for the polls. This awakened the Radical leaders to the necessity of a mere thorough canvass, and they so arranged their plans as to make more certain in future elections a full negro vote. Nor did they neglect to make an attempt to conciliate the white rac Their ordinance annulling negro bonds, and their homestead exemption law, were intended to win white as well as colored votes, and they so far succeeded that virtually recognized Cretz as a portion of the they were able to ratify their new constituwhich included perhaps the ballots of a few hundred white men.

The constitutional elections being ended, the Conservatives increased their efforts and resolved to place themselves in a position to make the best fight possible when next should come the tug of war. They formed Democratic or Conservative associations in every district, and took pains to convince the colored people that the whites were their truest friends. The negroes now began to realize that their freedom was assured; but experience taught them that they could not live by freedom alone. They saw that mules and acres of land were not carried in carpet-bags for gratuitous distribution. They knew that their old masters were temperate in language and moderate in act. They felt that political meet-The Washington correspondent of the New rate in act. They felt that political meet-York Times writes: "The statement that the ings did not clothe bare backs or fill empty stomachs. Then, as the day for the County elections drew nigh, they saw that the Conservative nominees were respectable and responsible men, and thousands of negroes, when the decisive moment came vielded to the influences of custom and self-interest, and either voted the Conservative ticket or did not vote at all. Thus, it was the rational and sensible conduct of the up-country people,-their sobriety in counsel, their patience in argument, their wisdom in offering proper guarantees to the colored men, and in showing them festival will last from June 27 to July 9, and a that without the white race they could not grand exhibition of the costumes of sharp- even live, -which has enabled the Conservatives to win the day in many districts, and to show in every other district in the State from which we have seen returns a

In the up-country it has been easier to influence the colored men than it will be found to be on the sea-coast. The farmer of the northern and western districts worked a smaller number of hands than were worked by the planter in the low-country. With his every slave he was familiar, and when it was necessary to speak to the freedman he could do it with more effect than could a sea island planter, who scarcely knew the faces of his slaves. The colored man saw more white men in the up-country than in the low-country; he became better acquainted with the manners and habits of his masters; he was removed partially from the debasing effects of a life passed in sight tled among them, with a view to cultivating of none but people of color, and with no mentor but an occasional overseer. These circumstances made the work of the upperdistricts lighter than the work of the lower-reduced Radical majority.

tage was made the most of, every opportunity was seized, and the result is such as to stimulate them to renewed exertions, and a prove to the white race of the State that, when a large and ignorant majority is against them, they may begin by cutting it down, and, by absorbing all the limited intelligence and sense of the race, reduce it at last to a weak and harmless minority.

Democratic Gains in South Carolina

The full returns of the recent County elections come in with great irregularity, and many of the returns received do not show the result with sufficient clearness to enable us to make a comparison of the vote with the vote at previous elections. Every district, however, appears to have increased its Democratic or Conservative vote, the change in some districts being startling.

Comparing the vote at the County elections with the vote upon the ratification of the new constitution, we obtain the following figures :

Darlington, majority for the constitution 2019, Radical majority County elections 1321, Democratic gain 698.

Laurens, majority for the constitution 764, Democratic majority County elections 554 Democratic gain 1318. Chester, majority for the constitution

769, Democratic majority County elections 300. Democratic gain 1069. Orangeburg, majority for the constitution 1790, Radical majority County elections 1547, Democratic gain 243. Union, majority for constitution 719, Democratic majority County elections 1200, Democratic gain 1919. Spartanburg, majority against constitution 508, Democratic majority County elections 1300, Democratic gain 792. Lancaster, majority for constitution 88, Democratic majority County elections 200, Democratic gain 118. Kershaw, majority for constitution 1077 Democratic majority County elections 649, Democratic gain 1726. Oconee, majority against constitution 140, Democratic majority County elections 350, Democratic gain 110.

This is surely encouraging; for it proves that the white men of the State are beginning to exert their whole strength, as well as that the negroes are gradually forsaking the Loyal Leagues to vote with the Conservatige party. 1 20 20 20

QUACKENBOS' ARITHMETICS:

This Series is meeting with a most gratifying reception from teachers everywhere, and is exactly what is needed for mental discipline, as well as for a practical preparation for the business of life. It is clear, thorough, comprehensive, logically arranged, well eraded, is supplied with a great variety of examples, and teaches the methods actually used by business men.

Special attention is asked to the PRACTICAL. Its rules and analyses are free from unnecessary words: its methods are the shortest possible. Above all, it is adapted to the present state of things. During the last five years, specie payments have been stapended, prices have doubled, the tariff has been attered, a national tax levied, &c. Our book recognizes all these changes, AND IT IS THE ONLY ONE THAT DOES—the only Arithmetic that describes the different classes of United States Securities, and shows how to find the comparative results of investments in them. Used in the Public Schools of New York, Brooklyn, Albany, Jersey City, &c., and giving the highest satistaction. No progressive teacher can afford to use any other.

QUACKENBOS' GRAMMARS: An English Grammar, $1; First Book in Grammar, Clear, well condensed, and consistent throughout; brief in its rules and definitions; happy in its illustrations; practical in its application of principles; inductive and philosophical in its arrangement; original in its views; bold in its arrangement; original in its views; bold in its reforms; every way adapted to the schoolroom; interesting to the pupil; labor-saving to the teacher; full and ingenious in its explanations of perplexing constructions; makes the learning of Grammar easy; makes the teaching of Grammar a POSITITE PLASAUE. Such is the verdict pronounced on Quackenbos' Grammar by our best educators. Hosts of recommendations published in our Circular.

MAPES' NITROGENIZED SUPER-PHOS-PHATE OF LIME.

FOR COTTON, CORN, WHEAT AND GENERAL CROPS.

A S A TOP DRESSING TO A GROWING CROP

THIS FERTILIZER cannot be excelled. It may be used before or after the planting of the crop;
for even when applied as a top dressing, it cannot be lost by evaporation, as none of its constituents are volatile. It may be applied at each hoeing of cotton, and in the hills during the cultivation of corn and other crops. When crops have been previously manured in the usual way, and found to be of sluggish growth, it may be augmented by the use of this Fertilizer.

This Fertilizer has been successfully used throughout the Southern States during the past fifteen years.
