

THE DAILY NEWS.

Veto of the Omnibus Bill.

The following is the message of the President of the United States, sent to the House of Representatives yesterday, returning with his objections the bill for the admission of North Carolina, Louisiana, Georgia, Alabama, and Florida to representation in Congress: To the House of Representatives: In returning to the House of Representatives in which it originated, I have been compelled to admit the States of North Carolina, Louisiana, Georgia, Alabama, and Florida to representation in Congress. I do not deem it necessary to state at length the reasons which induce me to withhold my signature. I will, therefore, undertake at this time to reopen the discussion upon the grave constitutional questions involved in the bill, in pursuance of which it is claimed in the preamble to this bill that these States have framed and adopted constitutions of State government. Nor will I repeat the objections contained in my message of the 20th instant, returning without my signature the bill to admit to representation the State of Arkansas, and which are equally applicable to the petitioners in reference to Arkansas, this bill prescribes the plain and simple mode prescribed by the Constitution for the admission to seats in the House of Representatives of the States of the Union which have never been delegated to Congress, nor is even warranted by previous unconstitutional legislation of the States. It imposes conditions which are in derogation of the equal rights of the States, and is founded upon a theory which is subversive of the fundamental principle of the Constitution. In the case of Alabama it violates the pledged faith of Congress by forcing upon that State a constitution which was rejected by the people according to the express terms of an act of Congress requiring the majority of the registered electors should vote upon the question of its ratification. For these objections, and many others which may be presented, I cannot approve this bill, and, therefore, return it for the action of Congress required in such cases by the Federal Constitution. ANDREW JOHNSON, WASHTON, D. C. June 25, 1868.

As already reported by telegraph, the veto was immediately overridden by a two-thirds vote in both Houses, and the bill thus became a law.

THE COTTON CROP OF ALABAMA.—The following dispatch from the British Consul at Mobile has just been received by the Manchester Cotton Supply Association:

BRITISH CONSUL, Mobile, May 20, 1868. My Lord, I have the following intelligence in regard to the past cotton crop of Alabama and the present prospect for the next crop.

On the 1st of September last, that date being considered the 1st of the cotton season, the number of bales stored at the cotton numbered 8714. Since the 1st of September, 1867, to the present date the receipts at this port from the cotton of Alabama are 302,422 bales, as shown as much as was expected, considering the bad season and the uncertainty of labor everywhere in the South at the very moment when it is the most needed.

Some months ago, owing to the very low prices of cotton, the planters of Alabama were entirely disheartened, and talked of giving up cotton raising as altogether unprofitable, and thousands of bales of cotton were sold at a loss. The overhauling of many plantations and other lands occasioned by the never-ending rains of the last thirty days, has done no material damage, for the cotton is now in a thousand bales, and the prospect is very bright.
