NEWS SUMMARY.

Gold closed in New York on Saturday at 144.

Cotton was a shade easier. Sales 1800 bales, at 22 3/4c.

In Liverpool, Saturday, cotton was quiet and unchanged. Sales 8000 bales.

Medical men predict a sudden death for Count Bismarck.

The New York papers, Radical as well as Democratic, speak in the highest terms of the late Peter Cagier.

Madame Bistort received eighty-seven baskets of rare flowers on the day of her departure.

The National Democratic Convention in New York was opened with prayer on the last day by the Rev. Dr. Plummer, of South Carolina.

A brick-cutting table, introduced into England, claims the power of making two hundred to three hundred bricks per hour more than any other machine. Twelve bricks are cut at a stroke, and any desired angle of bevel may be obtained.

In Illinois the courts have declared that the system of "selling short"—or selling to deliver what you have not got, and really only betting what the price of stocks or grain shall be on some future day—is gambling, and, therefore, a violation of the State statutes.

Quite a lively discussion took place on Thursday afternoon on Mr. Edmunds' bill to exclude the electoral vote of those Southern States which are not recognized by Congress. A strong disposition is now manifested to pass Mr. Edmunds' bill.

Frank Leslie, the well known New York publisher, is suing for a divorce from his wife, with whom he has not lived for eight years, on the ground of adultery. For the first two years Mr. Leslie allowed her twenty dollars a week for her support, but for the remainder of the time she has maintained herself and three children by her needle.

Beverly Johnson took his farewell of the Senate on Thursday. The scene was a very affecting one. He attempted to read the speech which he had prepared, but his feelings overcame him, and he found he could neither see the words nor had he the voice to enunciate them. His frame trembled violently, and he was so filled with emotion that he was forced to take his seat. Senator Vickers, of Maryland, finished the reading, when all the senators gathered about Mr. Johnson, and bade him good-bye.

The Yorkshire (England) moors have been completely devastated by the fire, which, having been accidentally kindled in the dry brush, spread over the whole face of the country. The fire was still smoldering on the 26th of June. Nearly four thousand acres of moorland have been left black and desolate, with scarce a living bird or animal, or vegetable, excepting the largest trees. The young grouse and rabbits, which abound on these moors, have been totally destroyed, and sheep grazing there have in some instances perished.

The coal trade is now exhibiting great interest in those countries of Western Europe that within the last few years have been encouraging manufactures. A Hamburg newspaper says: "Cheap coal facilitates industry. In the present condition of the coal trade in France, the chief point to be aimed at must necessarily be a proportionate reduction in price, and the only means to obtain this is to reduce the cost of transport. While a ton of coal costs in England $1.20, in Prussia $1.50, and in Belgium $1.50, in France it costs $4."

Telegraphic communication will soon be effected between the City of Mexico and the Atlantic ports of the United States. General Escobedo and his soldiers are busily employed on a telegraphic line running from the capital to the frontier of Matamoros. It is already carried on as far as Guadalupe, and will be shortly in working order throughout. Meantime, the American lines, near the Mexican frontier, are within short distance of Brownsville and the Rio Bravo, and the wires on both sides can be easily brought in connection.

The agriculturists in Europe are complaining bitterly of the drought which prevails there. No rain has fallen in England for seven weeks, the ground is parched and the springs are becoming dry. On the Continent the drought is more terrible. All Spain is a parched desert, and there and in the south of France not more than one-third of the usual crop of cereals is expected. At Niomes most of the wells are dry, and the few that still yield water are surrounded by crowds of people and cattle. It seems that the famine which has desolated Northern Africa the past year now threatens Southern Europe.

The regulation of clerical vestments is the subject of a bill introduced into the English House of Lords by Lord Shaftesbury. This bill provides that every minister, when "saying the prayers in any church," shall wear a surplice with sleeves, and shall be at liberty to wear over the surplice, as at present, a plain black silk scarf. If he be a university graduate, he may also wear the university hood, and if he be not a graduate, he may then, if he think fit, wear "some decent tip-top of black." The object of the bill is to secure uniformity in the performance of church worship, and it would prohibit ornaments, incense and lighted candles. Should it pass into a statute, for a breach of either of its provisions the bishop shall have power to inhibit the offender from saying the public prayers for three months.

In New Bedford, Mass., on the 4th, there was a balloon ascension, and as the balloon started to go up, the guy by which it was held caught and displaced the grapnel, which fell from the car. In its descent it struck upon the head of a little boy named Wm. Mottuck, belonging to Taunton, fracturing his skull. The rope having been cut, the grapnel was dragged along and caught one little boy named John Bono under one arm and the chin, and another named Charlie Jones on the hip, and both were lifted into the air. The balloon was ascending in a direct line, when the aeronaut, hearing the cry, and seeing the boys suspended, cut the rope with a knife, thus giving the little fellows their only chance of escape. They had reached an altitude of forty feet, and fortunately fell into a tree, which greatly broke the force of their descent, and thus saved not only their lives but their limbs. Both suffered from the concussion. They remained insensible for a time, but will recover.

CHARLESTON. MONDAY MORNING JULY 13, 1863.

The Ratification.

It is understood that the members of the State Democratic Committee now in this city will be called together to-day, to consider what is best to be done in regard to the proposed SEYMOUR and BLAIR mass ratification meeting. This mass meeting will undoubtedly be held; but it is desired, as already stated, to defer it until the return of the South Carolina delegation from New York.

Ratification meetings are now taking place in every part of the country, and it will not do for our State to be lukewarm in appearance, while in truth she is glowing with anxious expectation. In our political campaign the weapons used by North and West will not be all-sufficient. We have to deal as much with the negro as with the white man, and this renders it all the more important to make such a beginning as will encourage our friends and fellow citizens, and stimulate them to strain every nerve in the Democratic cause.

How the State Voted.

The South Carolina delegation in the National Democratic Convention voted as follows: First and second ballots, for ANDREW JOHNSON, 6 votes; third ballot, PENDLETON 2, PACKER 1, ANDREW JOHNSON 3; fourth ballot, ENGLISH 1, PENDLETON 2, ANDREW JOHNSON 3; fifth ballot, PENDLETON 2, ANDREW JOHNSON 3, J. Q. ADAMS 1; sixth ballot, HANCOCK 6; seventh ballot, ANDREW JOHNSON 6; eighth ballot, PENDLETON 6; ninth to twenty-first ballots, HANCOCK 6. On the twenty-second ballot, also, the 6 votes of the State were cast for HANCOCK; but when Ohio transferred her vote to SEYMOUR, and State after State made the same change, the Hon. J. B. CAMPBELL, chairman of the South Carolina delegation, arose and said: "He was from a State which felt 'most heavily the chains of oppression of Radical rule. He said South Carolina 'came here caring more for men than measures. They were satisfied with the platform, adopted unanimously, and South Carolina, with invocation of God's blessing on the party on which rests the last hope of the country, will cast her vote for 'SEYMOUR.'"

Platonic friendship which exists between Mrs. Jennings and Lawrence Desmond; but there is no studied or implied justification of evil-doing, no new formula for deserving and avoiding the gallows; the book is, nevertheless, stirring and interesting. Daniel Mayfield is an attractive, though not original character, the inevitable dash of theatrical life gives color and variety, and the picture of the foolish jealousies and bitter reproaches of fair Mrs. Jennings is painfully real. Upon the whole,—light and sketchy as it is,—we prefer "Dead Sea Fruit" to any other of the works of Miss BRADDOCK which has come under our notice. For sale at HOLMES' Book House, King-street.

THE UNITED STATES bonds known as the "five-twenties," have their interest made payable in coin, but the "ten-forty" bonds are payable, principal and interest, in coin, by the terms of the law under which they were issued. According to the Democratic platform, the principal of the "five-twenties" will be paid in lawful money, i. e., greenbacks—or in coin, when specie payments are resumed. These bonds are held for the most part in Europe, so that upon the foreign bondholder will fall the loss arising out of payment of the principal in a depreciated currency. The "ten-forty" bonds are, with few exceptions, held in America, and the holders here have less to fear from Democracy than from Radicalism which would force the country to general repudiation.

WHEN WILL OUR wise and noteworthy Legislature take up the question of pay? They received eleven dollars per diem in Charleston, and may as well take twenty dollars now. The money which goes into the pocket of the carpet-bagger comes out of the pocket of the property holder; why, then, should there be any delicacy in making politics pay?

General WADE HAMPTON and Ex-Governor PERRY made stirring speeches at a Democratic mass ratification meeting in New York on Tuesday night. When shall we hear these gentlemen in Charleston?
