It seems that with the majority, a fifth or a sixth of the funds only are devoted to the ostensible business and the remainder is appropriated in adminis tration. The patronage in many of these organizations is of a highly valuable kind. It has been computed that the Earl of Shaftesbury, from his Excter Hall connections, has more places to give away than the Premier has

-The military conference called by Russia in reference to the disuse of explosive bullets. appears likely to take place. A letter from Berlin says that Prince Gortschakoff's invitation will be accepted by Prussia, which will probably be represented by Colonel Count de Schweinitz, military attache at St. Petersburg. The belief is that France and England wi name similar officials. Italy will send a special -commissioner. It is asserted that Austria and the other States invited will also be duly repre-

nations of Europe and driven back upon her Slavonic possessions. Prussia prides herself greatly upon this feat, but Austria is still deermined to remain German in her principal characteristics, and is using every exertion to establish German colonies in the heart of Bohemia and Gallicia. The Invalide Russe, the organ of the Russian War Office, says that the Austrian Government, in pursuance of a law passed in the last session of the Reichsrath, from her position as the head of the German has just sold extensive crown estates in Gallicia and Bohemia for $7,850,000, and some iron mines in Styria for $3,370,000. Gallicia and Bohemia protested against this sale, as it had not been approved by their respective Diets, but the government disregarded their protests. The eagerness of Austria to carry out her measures was also exhibited in the conditions of the sale. Instead of conducting the sale by public auction, and in small lots, as is usual in such cases, the government disposed of the estates privately to Prussian capitalists, although the local authorities had offered a highor price for them. These Prussians will, it is asserted, introduce colonists from the Rhine and the Hartz, and in this way Germanize the Bohemian and Slavonic countries. -The railroad track layer now in use in California is said to operate successfully, and places the iron rails in position at the rate of one mile per day, though some ci the work has been done at the rate of two miles in twelve hours. The machine is a car sixty feet long and ten feet wide. It has a small engine on board for handling the ties and rails. The ties are carried on a common freight car behind, and conveyed by an endless chain over the top of the machine, laid down in their places on the track, and when enough are laid a rail is put down on each side in a proper position, and spiked down. The track layer then advances and keeps on its work until the load of ties and rails is exhausted, when other car loads are brought. The machine is driven ahead by a locomotive; and it is stated the work is done so rapidly that six men are required to wait on it, but it is asserted that they do more work than twice as many could do by the old system, and the work is done quite as well. The chief contractor on the Vallejo and Sacramento rallroad, where the machine is in ase, gives it as his opinion that when the machine is improved by making a few changes in the method of handling rails and ties, it will e able to put down five or six miles per day.

CHARLESTON.

TUESDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 1, 1868 For Vice-President ..... FRANCIS P. BLAIR.

The Veto of the City Charter Bill.

We print to-day in our telegraphic colamn the message of Governor Scorr vetoing the bill to amend the charter of the City of Charleston.

There is no doubt that an election in Charleston at this time would excite even more trouble and distrust than Governor Scorr seems to apprehend ; and if that election were held by virtue of an act which offered a premium to fraudulent and illegal voting, and placed resident oitizens under the control of a newly imported swarm of country freedmen, the consequences could not fail to be such as would be deprecated by any lover of peace, order and security. Governor Scour, in this instance, has acted with sagacity and prudence, and has shown that he can so far rise above partisan feeling as to judge of a measure by its merits and probable effects, rather than according to the hopes and wishes of some few violent spirits amongst his political sup-

PROCLAMATION. By GEORGE W. CLARK, Mayor of Charleston

CITY HALL, MAYOB'S OFFICE. CHABLESTON, S. C., August 18, 1868. Believing it the sincere desire of every individual in this community to assist in preserving the public peace, and maintaining the dignity of the laws; feeling, in the political excitement now pervading all classes of our people, that through a single act of violence, either Ly accident or otherwise, we may be overwhelmed in a deplorable breach of isw and order-I, GEOEGE W. CLARK, Mayor of the city aforesaid, do call upon all good citizens to abstain as far as possible from all public demonstrations of a noisy or riotous nature. Let each one regard him: self as answerable to the public for the good conduct of all. Let no one, in the exercise of liberty, do that against the law which will by law deprive him of his liberty. The public peace must and shall be preserved. Given under my hand, and the seal of the city that the treaty of 1828 between the United States and Prussia covers all of the States of the North-German Union lately annexed, so far as it applies to the arrest of deserters in United States ports from merchantmen and war vessels sailing from ports in the North-German Union. This reverses the opinion of the United States Commissioner in New York, who decided that twelve deserters from the ship Niobe could not be arrested under that treaty, because the vessel sailed from a port in the German Union.

-As age advances upon the Emperor Napoleon, the difficulties of his government increase. It is a significant comment upon the true nature of his rule, that the moment political opposition rises a little above the surface there is a general cry in Europe, "Beware, he is going to war!" The theory is, that he can only meet internal discontent by waving the flag of foreign conquest. The youth of the great cities are determinedly against, him, and respect the young son of Cavaignac much more than they respect the young son of Napoleon. The latter has a stormy life in prospect. That refusal of Cavaignac's son to take a prize from his hand, is but a sign of what is to come.

-The private execution, which recently took place for the first time in England, has elicited very different expressions of feeling as to the efit resulting from the change. The London Times, thinking that private executions were intended to be private, limited the remarks of its reporter to a few brief, bald paragraphs. The other papers took a different view of the matter. The Star sent Mr. Edmund Yates, the novelist; the Telegraph sent Mr. George Augustus Sala, and the News sent Mr. Joseph Parkinson to describe the scene, all with instructions to make a secational story out of the occurrence. As a consequence, the journals are arguing that executions which afford food for such articles in the papers are not half private enough. The law in England now provides that a black flag shall be displayed, and a bell tolled when the drop falls, so that all may snow that the criminal is dying, and so that the impression of terror may be made upon every mind.

-Extensive ruins in Arizona, it is reported, have been discovered recently by a party of surveyors engaged in exploring the country for railroad purposes. The ruins extend for miles along the Little Colorado River. Some of the walls of the buildings are yet in their places, and stand six or eight feet high. The streets may be traced for miles. The old irrigating capals and ditches are yet in a fair state of preservation, and may be traced for miles also. The ground is strewed with broken crockery-ware. The party found some nearly whole vessels of curious form. The ware seems to be of a different quality, and finer than that found at most of the ruins in Arizons. Many of the walls of the buildings were built of hewn stone, and put up in a workmanlike manner. To all appearances here once stood a city of many thousand inhabitanta. On the east bank are the ruins of a large structure or castle, covering several acres of landsome of the walls are yet standing to the height of twenty or thirty feet.

-Austria, by the unfortunate results of her recent war with Prussia and Italy, was forced | than a fairly live and profitable season.

tial election, there is a good reason to be lieve that in the North and West, as in the South, the fall trade will be brisk and active. The full swing of trade may be semewhat late in showing itself, but this arises from causes other than dullness and want of commercial confidence.

The change in the credit system from six or eight months' time to ten, thirty or sixty days', has done its part in postponing the opening of the season, while the general use now made of the telegraph and express companies has done more towards securing the same result. Large houses in the interior which have their agencies in New York, now use the telegraph daily, and purchases of goods are made no longer in advance of the time when their distribution should commence than is absolutely necessary. Saving of time by the use of the telegraph and express systems is a saving of credit; and there are so many different means of communication that slow lines or cheap lines, at low freights or high freights, can be taken advantage of as the situation permits. There should not, then, be any disappointment if the Northern and Western fall trade does not begin as early as it did when the means of communication with the interior were limited and uncertain. The wonderful advantages which the merchants now possess enable them to delay their purchases for three, four or five weeks, according to the distance of their places of business from the great centres of trade. The South cannot go into the market until they are assured of the measure of their success in planting, and Southern buyers must be somewhat backward as long as the prospects of their section are enshrouded with the least uncertainty.

In the South the prospects are fairly bright, and in the North the sky is equally clear. Our cotton is likely to bring fair rates, and the market for cereals which will be wanting in the South on account of our abundant crops of grain, will be found in Great Britain. In that country there is a scarcity of grain, and the shipments already made from San Francisco to European markets prove that a healthy drain from this side has already begun. The prairies of Illinois, Missouri and Kansas will supply any deficiency which may occur in Texas and New Mexico, and fill up any vacuum caused by foreign shipment from California. The return trade from the West will come to the East in the purchase of dry goods, hardware, agricultural implements, machinery, and boots and shoes, and both East and West will draw from the Southern States their supplies of the great Southern staples. Looking, then, to the approaching fall trade, we do so with the confidence that there is no reason to anticipate any other there and profitable season.
