Ere War and Spectral Fear,
And Love, to deck the bier
Of youthful heroes, spoiled the vernal year.

And Winter is more stern;
Prone on his chilly urn,
Earthwards he mutters, "She will not return;"
Our youth aleep far and near,
Like them, she does not hear
The loud March wind, the birth-cry of the year!

The skirting poplars fling
Green banners of the Spring
High on the air; the Bours their offering bring,
Pale flowers to Sorrow dear,
And many a shining tear,
But thou—where art thou, glory of the year?

The briar at noon is sweet;
And, cool to clowen feet,
The waysite grass feels not the climbing heat;
But lo! where stark ar d sear,

Her bosom is still cold with mountain snows.
O Youth, serene, severe!
O shining, swift career!
Gone is the grace, the glory of the year.

Eright, curly heads are pressed.
Ah! many a fiery heart is here at rest!—
True words, old Greek! how drear
Without her tones of cheer,
Without her smile, how sullen is the year.

We are sorry to report that the accounts for some time past have been the reverse of a statactory. From some of the leading districts reports are received of great have by worms, and, speaking generally, the recent heavy rains appear to have done much damage. These accounts come both by letter and by telegraph, and are 100 explicit to be disregardel. Public epinion in America is evidently tending to lower estimates than prevailed come time ago, and whereas it was once generally thought that the yield would exceed the hast by 200,000 bales, it is now considered very doubtful if there will be any excess at all. It is no doubt true that the crop is considerably earlier than last year, and the receipts are likely for some weeks to exceed largely the corresponding ones of last season. But this need excite no surprise; for last crop was one of the latist ever known, and, besides that, there was a stoppage of business at the Gulf ports from yellow ever; but this year there is every inducement to send forward rapidly—the price is tempting, the planting interest extremely poor, and facilities for transit gool. We, therefore look for rapidly increasing receipts, and a large excess upon last year by the end of this month, and after that period, it the reports we now receipts where the comparison with last year.

The excessively small stock of American cotten held here puts that class in a very strong position, and it will rescend readily to any news favorable to the market. We consider it under all the circunstances of the case, relatively cheap. Indian cotton holds a somewhat different position. For several weeks to come the import must be very heavy, and the stock here will probably increase to 300,000 or 350,000 bales. It might be fairl The prospects of our market at the present time
