COMBINED CIECUS AND THEATRE.-Messrs cue, have made the greatest hit of the age, by combining good theatrical and circus performances. They have had very large audiences in Savannah, and are making arrangements to create a tremendous sensation in Charleston next week. Their advertisement, which appears in another column, will give some idea of their plan.

ports, we are pleased to notice, are doing a large business, and they generally go to sea with valuable freights. The steamship Champion, Captain R. W. Lockwood, of the New York line, of which Messrs. James Adger & Co. are agents, departed on Saturday with over eighteen hundred bales of cotton and the city Attorney was sequisite upon the matter in question.

How W. D. Porter, City Attorney, said in reply that he considered it the duty of Council at this stage of the proceedings to verify the evidences that have been deduced by an examination of the boxes; that if Council undertook to give a final decision now, their whole duty will not have been deduced by an examination of the boxes. As to the manner of examining the boxes Council may decide for its portion. ports, we are pleased to notice, are doing a other general merchandise. CONTESTED ELECTION.

Proceenings of the Board of Aldermen

SIXTH DAY-SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1868.

The Board convened at eleven o'clock, pursuant to a journment, fourteen members being present. George Read, a manager of the third precinct of Ward 4, testified that the board of his precinct was regularly organized, and that they administered the oath to applicants for registration. He identified the box of his precinct, and believed the return to be correct. Mr. John N. Gregg, a manager of the second precinct of Ward 5, was examined, and testified that he received no official instructions, but believed the election at his precinct was conducted according to the law published in the newspapers. He identified the box of his prehelieved the return to be correct. though he did not see the other managers sign

Joseph G. Martin, a manager of the second precinct of Ward 6, testified that he was not sworn as a manager, but only signed a printed form in presence of the other managers. He aid that the ballots were scattered over the floor at the counting, only afterwards gathered up when he found that there was some talk of a protest. He also testified that a negro man a protest. He also testified that a negro man was present at his treeinct, wearing a badge, and carrying a club, who claimed to be a deputy sheriff, appointed by Sheriff Mackey, and who interfered with the election.

Edward Wilkinson, a manager of the first precinct of Ward 6, testified that the board of his precinct was regularly organized, and that they required the oath from all persons registering except a few old persons whom the managers knew. He identified the box of his precinct and believed the returns to be correct.

Dr. Grimke, recalled, testified that the maiority of persons registered took no oath, and jority of persons registered took no oath, and that none subscribed to the oath. W. R. H. Hampton, a manager of Ward No. 7, testified that after the ballots were counted he took possession of them and used them for his own purposes, taking no care of them. L. Bunch, a munager of Ward No. 8, testified that at his precinct they had an assistant clerk that at his precinct they had an assistant clerk and two assistant managers, and that they all helped to count the votes, some outsiders helping to keep tally, but not handling the votes; he knew nothing of the ballots after they were counted. This witness also testified that the assistant managers did not administer the oath, and that some persons were refused the privilege of voting because other persons had already voted in their names; he ceuld not identify the boxes of his pracinct, but believed that the return was correct.

identify the boxes of his precinct, but believed that the return was correct.

J. F. M. Dercef, a manager of Ward No. 8, testified, confirming, in great measure, the evidence of Bunch. He said that some ten or twenty persons assisted in counting the votes, but only the managers handled them. In regard to persons being refused the privilege of voting on account of others having previously voted in their names, the winess testified as follows:

Several persons were refused the privilege of voting on account of others having already voted in their names; one man, upon being re-jected, went to Major Corbin, who sent written instructions that this man should not be de-prived of his vote; but I thought that Major Corbin had nothing to do with this election, as upon one occasion he so stated; the man was finally allowed to vote, though I protested against it; others afterwards were allowed the same privilege, though persons had voted in their names previously; had no idea which of the parties in these cases were entitled to vote; went entirely by the registration list: lealled statement of Capt. O. P. Hizard.

November 12, 6 A. M., left Savannah, Ga., with a cargo of cotton and rice, bound for New York, weather fine and pleasant, with light winds from N. N. E. At 8 A. M. passed Tybee lighthouse; 8:59 A. M. passed Charlins I adustry lightship, wind freshend, with moderate sea; 11 P. M. saw Cape Roman light, day ends with freshend in the captain of the captain o course when the explosion took place, and immediately commenced to blow off stoam and stop engine; November 15, 12:10 A. M., I immediately went to accertain the cause, when I was met by the chief engineer, who told me that some of the tabes of the boiler had ex-ploded, and we would have to lay to to repair. In a few minutes after, an alarm was given that In a few minutes after, an alarm was given that the ship was on fire forward, between decks, caused by the flames from the fire room penetrating through the bulkhead to the cotton between decks. Called all hauds, manned the firepumps, and commenced playing on the burning cotton. The fire spread so rapidly that we found it impossible to check it, and I ordered the boats to be lowered away ready for leaving. In fifteen minutes from the time the slarm of fire was given, the ship was one for leaving. In fifteen minutes from the time the alarm of fire was given, the ship was one mass of flame about the engine room and forward hater. The boats were lowered at once and the ship abandoned, I judge, in lat. 35:23 north, long. 75:22 West, Cape Hatters bearing S. W. † w., 23 miles distant. The first and second officers and myself took charge of the boats, dividing the boats into three squads. The fourth boat we were driven from be the fire. We highly the hurning ship until squads. The fourth both we was by the fire. We faid by the burning ship until daylight, when there was nothing visible but her hull, when we commone d pulling into the her hull, when we commenced pulling into the westward. Shortly afterwards, a sail was reported from the second efficer's bat to be in sight, which proved to be a schooner standing for us. At 7 A. M. the caplain took us on board. The vessel proved to be the English schooner Frank, of Sidney, C. B., Captain D. M. Eacham, from Turk's Island, bound for Halifax. He kindly received us on board, and bore away for Humpton Roads, where we arrived November 16. To Captain Eacham we offer our sincera thanks for his kind and humane treatment. On arriving off Fortress Mooroe we were kindly received on board the steamer Mystic, commanded by Captain Schormerhorn, to whom we also tender our thanks for landing us safely at Norfoik.

In Savannah, where it was performed by this same company, the audience was very large and the effect magnificent. Of Mr. J. V. Gilbert and his troupe, the Savannah News says: The Gilbert Troupe is decidedly one best dramatic organizations which has visited Savannah in a very long time. Its members have carefully studied the art of acting, and all plays are given in a manner at once and effective.

OUR LIVERPOOL STEAM L'NE.-It is with satisfaction that we announce that the steamship Golden Horn, the first of the Liverpool line, has cleared for her port of destination with a cargo of two thousand five hundred and fifty-three bales of upland and one hundred and eighty-eight bags of sea island cotton. This ship has proven a superior freighter, and with a good run of cetton, well compressed, her capacity would amount to about three thousand bales. Her agents, Messrs. Mure & Co., in the management of this new enterprise have exhibited their well known mercantile skill, and have made arrangements for the speedy shipment of cotton to Liverpool, not only from our own State, but from the principal points of Georgia and Alabama; and a portion of the cargo of this vessel came through compressed, from Selma, in the latter State, a point with which, previously, we had no mercantile connection. The very large extent of country which the rapidly opreading railroad system of the South has placed in connection with Charleston, has made a steam communication with the greatest cotton centre of the world of the first importance; and when taken in connection with our proximity to the important centres of Western trade-Cincinnati, Louisville, St. Louis and other peints, and the attractive and convenient character of this route to passengers from Europe, giving ready access to the valuable lands of the South, and less distance and a milder climate to reach the great West, its success would seem to be only a matter of a little time, and some energy and determination.

The Washington Race Course-A Generous and Timely Suggestion.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS. Many, many years ago, a gallant Virginian who had fought for liberty and South Carolina with distinguished honor in the Revolutionary war, and who, at its close, married and settled here, gave to the Jockey Club of Charleston a tract of land for the purpose of establishing a race course, since then known as the Washington Course. The generous old soldier and his ton Course. The generous old soldier and his compatriots have long since passed to a brighter world—another generation, too, has gone, and a third is tast passing to "that bourne whence no traveller returns." The curtain has fallen upon "Old Carolina." The gay spirits, the beauteous girls, the glorious racers, the stylish equipages, and their noble horses, all, all are scattered and gone. A pall hangs over the glorious old State, and the Washington Course is no more the record of the heanty talent. glorious old State, and the Washington Course is no more the resort of the beauty, talent, wealth and gallantry of the fallon mother. Why is this? Her sons sleep upon a hundred battle-fields, and the daughters weep for their absent brethers. You, too, old hero, are represented on that roll of honor, and the chivalrous Lieutenant of Rich Mouptain your great grandson sleeps within the chivalrous Lieutenant of Meth Moup-tain, your great grandson, sleeps within the ensanguined soil of Verginia. The recors, too, have almost become extinct; for not con-tent with other spoils, the enemy even sought out these, and at last stole Albine, the aute-lope of America, thus making our jury "poor indeed." We suffer too mean pecuniary em-barrassment to have races again, at least in our day; and with our impoverishment, the imour day; and with our impoverishment, the impoverishment of the family of the donor has kept acc. The City of Charleston, too, has Incroached upon the course, and it is but too palpable that ere another horse runs there it will be surrounded, thus interfering with the training. Since then it cannot in all human probability be used again for the purposes in-tended by the denor, what could be more just,
