city hospitule is certainly a marvel to these who are unaware of the importance of the strict sanitary regu'ations necessary in such institutions. COURT OF CHANCERY .- Chancellor Leseand will hear to other brigated causes than those be-fore him at present, but will listen to motions of course, every Friday, until the 1st of January. McIntyre, two experis at the strap game, had a hearing on a hibeas corpus before Magistrate Rivers and others, yesterday, but, in default of bail, were remanded to the wastern hotel. SIGNS OF CHRISTMAS .- Large lots of turkies, ducks, fowls and eggs, those necessary concomitints of the "Yu'e days," are coming down daily on the railroads, from the line of travel and upper portions of the State. "There's a good time coming" that makes the palate quiver. THE MEDICAL COLLEGE has only thirty students this session. STONE & MURRAY'S CIRCUS.—This is to be the grand feature for the holidays in Charleston. Of this circus the Norto k Journal says: "the popular circus of Store & Murray opened yesterday afternson, and attracted a large audience; and list night the pavilion was densely crowded. It is a decided pleasure to proise the performances of Stone & Murray's troup, which for numbers and talent, has never been approached in our recollection of circus exhibitions in Nortolk."

Five are confined on the charge of murder, two for arson, and the re t are divided between larceny, which predominated, and assault and battery. they admitted that they were very humanely treated, and had tolerable rations, but they showed signs of being badly in want of clothing, several being nearly naked. How rr Works .- A lady informs us that having some dry goods shopping to do a few days since, she concluded she would consult THE NEWS til eleven o'cleck, but the lights are injuring my and visit those establishments which were adver- eyes ver- much, as you see. tised in its columns. She did so, and she says the result was mixed. In the first place, the stores rehad to wait her turn to be attended to. When she found a clerk disengaged, bowever, she was amply lower than she had been accustomed to find in the old fogy establishment, which, having few goods and little or no inducements to offer in the way of low prices, see no occasion for inviting customers. There is a moral in this taly's experience-which is also that of every observing person—that is of intrinsic value to the whole community, seller as well as bayor. A liberal and judicious bringing bafore the public of the inducements or advantages offered by any dealer is sure to result in a throng of customers; and, customers assured, it follows, as the night the day, that stocks will be large and tening armor and plumed camels, passed through prices low. All the world knows that "a nimele sixpence is better than a slow shilling."
