The Last Words of President Johnson

The last words of President Johnson are likely to have but little weight with Congress or the people at large; not so much on account of the intrinsic weakness of the arguments as because Mr. Johnson's lease of limited power and brief authority is fast drawing to a close. An American President in these happy days is nothing when his successor is elected. It may happen that a virtuous, calm and peaceful adminisbe respected, regretted and loved; but even him when he resigns the Presidential chair. Le Roi est mort ! Vive le Roi ! is now the popular cry, and it is doubtful whether four years of high office and gratified ambition compensate for the life time of obscurity which assuredly follows.

Mr. Johnson has had an eventful and chequered career. An example bimself of the much-vaunted fact that in th's country the highest positions may be reached by men of humble birt's who have the faculties and energy to command and secure success, he has risen, step by step, to be senstor, Vice-President and President. With him the conservative influences of assured authority have had their wonted effect, came the master of the White House he the demagogue, and became the firm and fire, flood or war, is made untenable and constant champion of the law and the constitution. Of the Southern States President Johnson has been the steady and un- B, the owner, to pay the interest due A. failing friend. We have at times believed his policy unwise. We have felt that our carpest advocate has done us serious harm; but we honor the motives of the man, and do not forget that the same majority which stripped him of his constitutional rights, to spend an amount equal to that proposed destroyed the liberties of the South, and made of ten sovereign States ten military able and productive. This is the whole despotisms. Had Mr. Johnson been content to swim with the tide, he might now have been our President elect. But he as actual loss. We regard the presentation by Mr. Johnhis official life, and he doubtless intended that this elaborate statement of his policy should be his vindication of posterity. If this was his purpose he has missed his aim; for posterity, which may remember the epigram of a life, has no time to give to a volume of florid rhetoric and personal explanation.

The State Guarantee of the Savannah and Charleston Railroad Bonds.

The State, in guaranteeing bonds to the amount of $505,000 issued by the old Charleston and Savanuah Railroad Company, and assumed by the present Savannah her security a statutory mortgage upon the whole property of the company. The act authorizing the guarantee shows a simple mortgage to the State in the event of her becoming liable for that guarantee. In the protection of her interests, the State having thus the power to take any steps required to prevent her lien from being impaired or

We have already shown that every day that the road remains in its present unfinished condition the property is growing less valuable, and that the liability of the instant: "The extreme Ritualism practiced by bonds is daily swelling in amount. If the value by exorbitant prices.

We cannot afford to thereabouts, and the Legislature should give its earnest attention to economizing every dollar in this as in all other public questions. There are but two ways of securing the rebuilding of the road. One is for the State to seize the road and complete it her-The other is for the State to move its first lien out of the way of the five hundred thousand dollars which are required for its reconstruction.

It would be a very difficult matter for the State to obtain possession of the road. The present owners have already fallen from the high estate of bondholders to the poor position of stockholders. They have sacrificed a great deal to put the road in an unembarrassed condition, but they will not give up their property without a fight. The case would be fought through every court in the land, and in the meanwhile the property would be going down to zero. And if the State won the day, what would she do? Would she build the road herself? If so, she would be treated as all States are when they undertake to perform the work of individuals. Would she sell the road? If so, a conclave of bondholders might buy it in, strip it of all that was valuable, ruin the whole concern, and, when they had filled their purses out of the road, turn round upon the State and claim the payment in full of the bond. Only one thing is certain: The State would have to pay $505,000 and accrued interest, and get next to nothing in return. Even if the State sold the road for half a million in State bonds she would tration will cause the retiring President to be a heavy loser, for the market value of the State bonds would be only about then the pall of public indifference awaits $350,000, and the State would have to pay, dollar for dollar, at least $800,000.

It remains now to be seen whether the State can properly give up her first lien for a second lien, so as to enable the present company to complete the road, which would then be worth at least twice as much as its whole bonded debt.

Whenever a property is encumbered, and money is required to save the property from ruin, the money so furnished takes precedence of all other claims. The salvor of an encumbered ship has the first lien upon her, because without him she would have been wholly lost. In the same way a lender of money to repair a ship has a preference and bottomry, as it is called, on her. Another illustration is even more simple: A mortgage is held by A upon a unproductive. A small amount of expenditure will restore the property, and enable But C, who has the money, will not lend it unless he has a first lien; and A does not object, and cannot object, for if he were to refuse, and to take possession of the property in its useless condition, he would have to be borrowed to make the property availcase. The State has the right and the power to save herself from all risk as well grounds, the Legislature is urged to pass the bill for the relief of the Savannah and Charleston Railroad Company.

THE ISBAELITE, the organ of the Liberal Jews, published at Cincinnati, is cautiously taking ground in favor of changing the Jewish day of rest from Saturday to Sunday. It gives place to an argument in favor of the change, furnished by a writer who has been "selected who now receives six dollars per cent. per as the spokesman of a party respectable in number, respectable in intellect, fully persuadto the payment in gold, to one hundred dol- ed of the correctness of their views, and fully determined to discuss the subject in all its bearings." He argues that the old Hebrew word "Shabbas," which lies at the bottom of this controversy, means simply rest. Cease from labor and devote to the service of Godson of his message as the last public act of this he claims to be the literal and spritual meaning of the word Shabbas, or Sabbath. He contends that at present the Jewish Sabbath has become obsolete, and, as a consequence of their being virtually without any Sabbath or day of rest, they are becoming lax, and fast tending to irreligion, apostacy, and the destruction of the Jewish faith. It seems that it is now proposed to call a grand Jewish council for the settlement of this Sabbath question-either adopting Sunday for all, or dividing those wishing Sunday and those retaining Saturday as the Sabbath. The movement, however, whatever may be said in its behalf, will hardly find favor with a people who for so many centuries have jealously cherished every prominent feature of their ancient EvenyBody agrees that we ought to have a resumption of specie payments; and almost everybody has a different plan for attaining that result. Secretary McCulloch proposes that after January 1, 1870, greenbacks shall cease to be legal tenders for private debts contracted subsequent to that date, and that after as may be expedient and necessary for the tenders for any purpose whatever, except payment of the government dues for which they are now receivable. Combined with this measure, the Secretary recommends the creation of a new loan to absorb so much of the currency destroyed. It has now become imperative as would be rendered useless under the new existing irredcemable currency was a more war expedient, and should have been discontinued with the advent of peace. Schiedam Schnapps.

OFFICE OF UDOLPHO WOLFE, Sole Importer of the Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps, No 22 Beaver-street. New York, November 3, 1868. To the People of the Southern States :

WHEN THE PURE MEDICINAL RESTORATIVE

now so widely known as WOLFE'S SCHIEDAM SCHNAPPS, was in roduced into the world under the endorsement of four thousand leading members of the medical profession some twenty years ago, its proprietor was well aware that it could not wholly escape the penalty attached to all new and useful preparations. He, therefore, endeavored to invest it with strongest possible safeguard against counter feiters, and to render all attempts to pirate it difficult and dangerous. It was submitted to distin guished chemists for analysis, and pronounced by them the purest spirit ever manufactured. Its puri ty and properties having been thus ascertained, sam ples of the article were forwarded to ten thousand physicians, including all the leading practitioners in the United States, for purposes of experiment. A circular, requesting a trial of the preparation and a report of the result, accompanied each specimen. Four thousand of the most eminent medical men in the Union promptly responded. Their opinions of the article were unanimeusly favorable. Such a preparation, they said, had long been wanted by the profession, as no reliance could be placed on the ordinary liquors of commerce, all of which were more or less adulterated, and therefore unfit for medical purposes. The peculiar excellence and strength of the oi of juniper, which formed one of the principal ingredients of the Schnapps, together with an unalloyed character of the alcoholic old ment, give it, in the estimation of the faculty, a marked superiority over every other diffusive stimulant as a diuretic, tonic and restorative. These satisfactory credentials from professiona uen of the highest rank were published in a condensed form, and enclosed with each bottle of the Schnapps, as one of the guarantees of its genuineneys. Other precautions against fraud were also adopted; a patent was obtained for the article, the label was copyrighted, a fac simile of the proprietor's autegraph signature was attached to each label and cover, his name and that of the preparation were embossed on the bottles, and the corks were sealed with his private seal. No article had ever been sold in this country under the name of Schnapps prior t the introduction of Wolfe's Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps, in 1851; and the label was deposited, as his trade mark, in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York during that

It might be supposed by persons una:quainte with the daring character of the pirates who prey upon the reputation of honorable merchants by vending deleter ous trash under their name, that the pro tections so carefully thrown around these Schnapps would have precluded the introductions and sale of counterfeits. They seem, however, only to have stimulated the rapacity of impostors. The trade mark of the proprietor has been stolen; the indorsement which his Schiedam Aromatic Echnapps alone received from the medical profession h claimed by mendacious humbugs; his labels and bottles have been imitated, his advertisements para phrased, his circulars copied, and worse than all dishenorable retailers, after disposing of the genuine contents of his bottles, have filled them up with common gin, the most deleterious of all liquors, and hus made his name and brand a cover for poison.

The public, the medical profession and the sick, for whom the Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps is prescribed as a remedy, are equally intereste; with the proprietor in the detection and suppression of these etarious practices. The genuine article, manufac tured at the establishment of the under-igned in Schiedam, Holland, is distilled from a barley of the finest quality, and flavored with an essential extract of the berry of the Italian justiper, of unequalled pu rity. By a process unknown in the preparation of any other liquor, it is treed from every acrimonious and corrosive element. Complaints have been received from the leading physicians and families in the Southern States of the sale of cheap imitations of the Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps in those markets; and travellers who are in the habit of using it as an antidote to the baneful influence of unwholesome river water, tes tify that cheap gin, put up in Schiedam bottles, is frequently palmed off upon the unwary. The sgents of the undersigned have been requested to institute inquiries on the subject, and to forward to him the names of such parties as they may ascertain to be engaged in the atrocious system of deception. In conclusion, the undersigned would say tha he has produced, from under the hands of the most distinguished men of science in America, proofs un answerable of the purity and medicinal excellence of the Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps; that e has expended many thousand de rounding it with guarantees and safeguards, which he designed should project the public and himself against fraudulent imitations; that he has shown it to be the only liquor in the world that can be uniformly depended upon as unadulterated; that he has challenged investigation, analysis, comparison and experiment in all its forms; and from every ordes! the preparation which bears his name, seal and trade mark, has come off triumphant. He, therefore, feels it a duty he owes to his follow-citizens generally, to the medical profession and the sick, to denounce and expose the charlatans who counterfeit these evi dencies of identity, and he calls upon the press and the public to aid him in his efforts to remedy so great

The following letters and certificates from the leading physicians and che nist: of this city wil prove to the reader that all goods sold by the undersigned are all that they are repre ented to be.

I feel bound to say, that I regard your Schnapps I rect bound to say, that I regard your scana) is as being in every respect pre-eminently pure, and deserving of medical patronage. At all events, it is the purest possible article of Holland Gin, heretofore unobtainable, and as such may be safely prescribed by physicians.

November 21, 1867.

Dear Sir—I have made a chemical examination of a sample of your Schiedam Schnapps, with the intent of determining if any foreign or injurious substance had been added to the simple distribed spirits. The examination has resulted in the conclusion that the sample contained no poisonous or harmful admixture. I have been unable to discover any trace of the deleterious substances wich are employed in the adulteration of liquors. I would not hesitate to use myself or to recommend to others, for medicinal purposes, the Schiedam Schnapps as an excellent and unobjectionable variety of gm.

Very respectfully yours, (Signed,) CHAS. A. SEELY, Chemist.
