The Virginians of the Valley.

The brightliest of the knichtly race, Who since the days of old, Have kept the lamp of chiralry Alight in hearts of gold: Them kindliest of the kindly band, Who, rarely hating case, Yet rode with Spotswood round the land, And Raleigh round the seas.

And Rategn found discussion Who climbed the blue Virginian bills, Against embattled toes, And planted there, in valleys fair, The lify and the rose; Whose forgrance lives in many lands, Whose beauty slars the earth, And lights the hearts of many homes, With loveliness and worth.

We thought they slept! the sons who kept Tho names of noble sires. And slumbered while the darkness crept Around the vigil fires. But still the Goiden Horseshoe knights Their Old Domioion keep. Whose foes have found enchanted ground, but not a knight asleep.

THE LATEST SPEECH OF THE POPE.

The correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette, writing from Rome on December 26th, says:

The correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette, writing from Rome on December 26th, says: Yesterday the Pope officiated at the bigh altar of St. Peter's, in presence of all the great digni-taries of R me, the Corps Diplomatique, the royal family of Naples, and an immense con-course of loreigners. After the service he pro-ceeded to the chapel of the H dy Sacrament, where he received from Cardinal Patrizi, the sub-dean, the congratulations of the Sacred College. The Holy Father replied to the ad-dress in the following words: "The war sgainst the church is of old date. From the remotest times Rome, which is the centre of religion, was the great object of love and hatred, the field of battle of the enemies of God. The Lord willed that this arena which we tread should first be bathed in the blood of martyrs. Then, as Christian nations, in the following ages, concentrated all their efforts for the deliverance of the sepulchre of the Christ, so it happens that other men, animated by contrary senuments, endeavor in their anti-crusade to seize the sepulchre of Peter and Paul. Imperors, kings and people have from the first succeeded each other in delivering as-suits on the Holy Sez. "Many Popes were persecuted, imprisoned, exiled, but they came out of prison with glory, and returned triumphant from exile. Such are the lessons of history which our cotem-porarise seem to have forgotten, but which for all that are not the less true. In considering the present state of Europe, in asceng so many are the lessons of history which our cotem-poraries seem to have forgotten, but which for all that are not the less true. In considering the present state of Europe, in aceing so many thrones overturned, they bolieve that the church also is to fall. But even if we were entirely insolated, if we should be described by all, which I do not believe we shall be (u che non credo,) the voice of the Roman pontiffs will always find an echo in the world, because it is promised that support of which you have full knowledge. But it is not sufficient for us to invoke that support; we must also merit it by the exercise of the Christian vurtues, and notably of humility and charity. The angel of darkness repeats to the children of the age, critus scut dii, all the world will f give you if you will fall down and worship me.' Unfortu-nately they listen to his dangerous sugges-tions, and put them in pracice by their trea-sons to the church, their usurpations and anyou will fall down and worship me." Distric-nately they listen to his dangerous sugges-tions, and put thear in practice by their trea-sons to the clurch, their usurpations and an-nexations, and their blasphemies, which are beyond all bounds. On the other hand, the angel of the Lord puts before the children of God the remembrance of Calvary and Him who humbly died there-obediens usque ad mortem. The life of the humble is his the track of a boat, which is lost on the bosom of the stream, but opens largely the depths to the good inspi-rations which conduct it to the port of neacc. The angel of darkness suggests io the children of the world pleasur's and luxuries. You, on the contrary, offer a good example of absti-nence in order that our enemies may be forced to admire you. They love the material; we, while recognizing its great utility, when ap-plied to proper objects, never make it an idol, and keep ourselves from imitating its adorers in their love of it-love which ends in iniqui-tous usurpations, violent annexations, and every kind of injustice altera rapere st possurd, si non possurd concupts cere. We, accepting only that which is necessary to life, which alters we shall be could ecco, pes claudo, let as prac-tice more among ourselves the most ferveut and most assiduous charity. In living and acting thus we shall have nothing to fear. The floods may surround us, but will not touch us'. This I implore with fervor from God, while thanking you for your kind wishes, and wish-ing you, in my ture, every good. May this descend upon you with that benediction which I give you with all my neart."

natural advantages such as Russia has in her soows and size, and England m her insular po-sition, should not be allowed to conquer other and equal advantages, and thus combine very many modes of attack with very few necessities for defence. The statesmen may be wrong in their opinions—we by no means dony it—but they are not wrong in their facts, namely—that Russia, in getting Constantnople, would get a hundred opportunities of attack without in-curring one extra liability for defence; that Constantinople is the natural fortress of the world, the one position in which it might be possible to build up a power that would compel the remainder of mankind, if they liked inde-pendence, to eleep always under arms.
