Loyal.

BY FRANK O. TICKNOR

The Douglas, knightliest of old,
In his last journeying,
Wore at his heart, encased in gold,
The neart of Bruce, his King.

Through Paynim lands to Palestine, Befall what peril might, To lay that heart on Christ, his shrine, He journeyed day and night.

By night and day, a weary way, Of vigil and of fight, Where never rescue came by day, Nor ever rest by night.

And one by one the valiant spears Were stricken from his side; And one by one his heavy tears Fell for the brave who died.

Till fierce and black around his track He saw the combat close, And counted but a single sword Against uncounted foes.

He drew the casket from his breast,
He bared his solemn brow,
Oh! foremost of the knightliest,

Where leads my Lord of Bruce, the sword of Douglas Sall not stay: Forward! we meet at Christ, his feet, On Paradise to-day?

The casket flashed, the battle clashed, Thundered and rolled away; And dead above the heart of Bruce The heart of Douglas lay.

Loyal? Methinks the antique mould is left on theirs alone, the sheltered Freedom's heart of gold, Like Douglas with their own.

THIS COMPANY, UNDER THE DIRECTION ENTIRELY OF SOUTHERN MEN OF HIGH CHARACTER, offers inducements which will recommend it to Southern Planters. They are offered on the market in two forms, with a guarantee that the material in each will correspond to the advertisement: to the advertisement:
