Richard Busteed suggests that a fund be established in the Treasury Department in rhetoric and invective, as necessary to the which the people, rich and poor, might be free salvation of the country. to give what they pleased to pay off the public debt. He recommends that the volunteer services of the press, pulpit and proscenium could be brought to bear in aid of the project, and offers his own services for the purpose.

-The New York Times, speaking of the arrival of ex-Secretary Seward in New York, says: "He proposes to make a visit, before many days, to Aiken, South Carolina, partly for recreation and partly to pay a visit to Mr. Weed, of whose rapid improvement in health he receives very gratifying reports. Mr. Seward is unreserved and e mphatic in expressing his approval of the Cabinet selected by General Grant, and his predictions of the entire success of his administration."

-A. T. Stewart must have been very loth to give up the Treasury Department. He au-.thorized the following statement to be published in the National Intelligencer of Tuesday: "Mr. Stewart will not recede if he can accommodate his extensive business connections so as to obviate the present difficulty; and in this view he has offered to make an absolute transfer and disposition of all interests and profits which may be derived from carrying on his business during his official term, the transfer to be made to three emment gentlemen as trustees, who shall have the absolute disposal of the funds thus acquired for the use of public charity in the City of New York; the trustees to select the charity, and to be absolute in the matter." -The Washington Star says: "It is a rather singular circumstance that the difficulty now existing in regard to the Secretaryship of the Treasury should also have been met in the experience of the late Conf. derate States Government. It will be remembered that when that concern was set up the United States statutes at large were adopted and put in force bodily, which, of course, included the acts imposing restrictions on the office in question. In time, Mr. Trenbolm, one of the largest merchants in the South, was called to the Treasury Department, and he filled the office for some time before his ineligibility was discovered. When it was pointed out he severed his connection with all mercantile interests in this country, although we believe he maintained his relations with a foreign house."

-The spring elections throughout the interior of New York State show a very gratifying increase of Democratic strength. Poughkeepsie has elected a Democratic Mayor, for the first time in its municipal existence, by a majority of more than 200. Newburg has heretofore been strongly Republican, electing city officers of that stripe, and giving a majority for Grant fast fail. The Democracy has now made a clean sweep, electing the whole municipal ticket except one Alderman and one Supervisor. For the past three years the Republicans have carried the City of Oswego, but last week the I emocrats elected their candidate by a majority the largest over received by a mayor in that city. Columbia County has made a gain securing a two-thirds majority in the Board of Supervisors. In Utica the success of the Democracy is unparalleled, and in Elmira it has carried all before it. In Saratoga, Erie, Cayuga and Ulster Counties, large gains have been made, and throughout the State the indications are most encouraging. Coming so significant of a rapid change in the prevailing popular sentiment, foreshadowing a speedy return of the masses to the support of the party of economy, equal rights and constitutional government.

-A curious case has been brought to the notice of the State Department, by a resolution of the Illinois Legislature, which will undoubtedly give rise to considerable diplomatic correspondence, at least, between this government and those of Wurtemberg and B-varia. It appears that some forty years ago a member of the royal family having left that State to marry in opposition to the royal will, a law was quacted declaring all marriages of the subjects of that State, when contracted abroad, to be null and void. A similar law was also enacted in Bavaria. A case has now for the first time arisen where a marriage in the United States has been pronounced illegal under this law. Not long since the widow of a naturalized citizen of Illinois and a native of Bavaria returned to that country to claim an inheritance bequeathed to her husband, when she was informed that the government of Bavaria recognized no marriages in the United States as valid, as far as they related to Bavarian citizens, and she was compelled to drop the name of her husband and take her maiden name thus virtually declaring her children illegitimate. It is the duty of this government to have the obnoxious laws repealed immediately, or at least rendered inoperative as far as they relate to American citizens. -The New York Herald says Parson Brownlow presents the most extraordinary picture of physical debility that was ever before witnessed in any legislative assembly. Thad. Stevens might have been considered, when brought into the Senate Chamber on men's shoulders to take his place among the managers in the nemorable days of the impeachment trial, the best illustration up to that time presented of the triumph of intellectual will over a shattered and prostrate bodily organism; but Brownlow's appearance shows even greater indications of physical wreck and ruin, and yet the latter lacks nothing of the same unconquerable mental fire and energy that marked to his latest moments the character of the Great Common er. When taking the oath Brownlow lay back in his chair, his head bent down, his face shrivelled, ghastly and of unearthly hue, his hands clasped in bony, vice-like grasp, and his whole appearance indicative of great physical depression. As Mr. Co!fax read the oath the poor old Parson raised his teeble arm, which shook with palsy and dropped every moment to his side. Assistant Sergeant-at-arms Bassett went over and sustained his arm through the remainder of the ceremony, though the old man made one or two desperate efforts by himself to sustain the right arm by propping it with his left hand. After he had taken the oath the Parson stretched forth his hand for a glass of water, which shook wildly before it reached his lips. The ordeal, slight as it seems, had completely ex-

CHARLESTON.

THURSDAY MORNING, MARCH 11, 1869.

What We May Expect.

Wendell Phillips is an orthodox Radical, one whose Radicalism is beyond all reproach. Upon all the great questions which have agitated the country during the past ten years, he has, in the beginning, been far in advance of the extremest men of his party. But hitherto the party have worked up steadily until they reach d the plane upon which he stood, making it necessary for him to propound another doctrine, more thorough and more bitter than that which went before. Higher and still higher he has soared, making his latest podoctrine then published may soon be pressed upon Congress with all the force of

In his lecture Wendell Phillips said that he was perfectly satisfied with the statement made by President Grant, in his inaugural address, that he would carry out the will of the people. "All hail"-said he-"to the chief who will carry out the "people's will." And what is the will of the people? As explained by Mr. Phillips, of Abner Hambright, bankrupt. It will be it is to fire upon the Southern people with cannon, to hew them down with the sabre, to gibbet and burn and destroy. Mr. Phillips says that a Ben Butler is wanted "large enough to cover thirteen States;" and, we presume, with an arm long enough to reach out and buffet our old men and our women, and a carpet bag big enough to contain all our precious metals and jewels of great price. In the name of the people, Mr. Phillips calls upon Grant to play the role of Cromwell, and make the name of Union man as terrible to the South as the Lord Protector made the name of Englishman terrible to his enemies. The cannon "now lying idle "in Washington" are to be turned upon us. Scaffolds are to be erected as high as that on which Haman hung. And all this by the obedient Grant, the man from whom some weak minds have expected magnanimity, independence and sense. All this ravaging, and slaying, and polluting, is to be the work of Grant; for he has pr nised that he will carry out the will of the people, and will "vigorously execute every law "that Congress puts in his hands." And, says Mr. Phillips, "Congress should cover "the Scuth with cannon, banners and scaf-"folds, till full security of person and prop-"erty is enjoyed, and till it can be said

"with truth 'we will have peace!" We do not fear that the merciful suggestions of Mr. Phillips will be adopted by the people of the North, whatever may be their welcome at the hands of the ultra Radicals. Nor do we fear that this burning and demolishing can be accomplished. We are able to take care of ourselves, and will take care of ourselves, even in the face of the great guns and big swords which it is now proposed to use. All the Philips who ever lived, from Philip of Macedon down, cannot daunt us now. We know that there is peace in the South, and that life and property are as secure here as in the heart of Massachusetts. This, however, we do not expect to be believed by the Radicals, as long as they can grow rich and their party retain power by garbling and denying the truth.

What we now desire is to impress upon our people the fact that the most extreme of the extreme Radicals is satisfied with Gran', and has implicit faith that he will blindly obey every decree of Congress; also, to reiterate our belief that we have no more and at the very time of the inauguration of the new government, these returns are gravely had from Wade, Sumner or Stevens.

The decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Butler against Horwitz, a suit for ground rent in Baltimore, upon a contract made in 1791 for the annual payment of "English golden guin-"eas" of a specified weight, is still more explicit in affirming the binding force of special contracts for coin, whether made before or after the Legal Tender acts were passed, than the decision given in the case of Bronson against Rodes two weeks ago. The opinion in this case of Butler against Horwitz, an extract from which was published in The News of yesterday, was given by Chief Justice Chase and assented to by the whole Court except Justice Miller, and clearly establishes the principle that when a contract is made for either gold or paper the courts must enforce it in kind; while a contract for money, not specifying either, may be satisfied in any legal tender money, at the option of the debtor. The Court said :

"This inference as to contracts made prior to the passage of the acts making United States notes legal tender is strengthened by the consideration that those acts not only do not prohivit, but by strong implication sanction contracts since their passage for the payment or delivery of coin; and consequently, taken in connection with the provision of the act of 1792, concerning money of account, require the damages upon such contracts to be assessed in coin and judgment rendered accordingly; leaving the assessment of damages for breach of other contracts to be made and judgment rendered in lawful money. It would be unreasonable to suppose that the legislature intended a different rule, as to contracts prior to the enactment of the currency laws, from that sanctioned by them in respect to contracts since." sideration that those acts not only do not protracts since."

So that the court sustains special contracts for coin made before the passage of the Legal Tender acts, expressly on the ground that these acts themselves, properly construed, make such contracts legal after their passage, and that Congress cannot have meant to apply a different rule to contracts previously made.

These decisions remove all difficulties from the way of those who desire to make contracts which shall not be subject to the fluctuations of an uncertain currency, and they may now act with entire confidence. There is no legal limitation whatever upon the right of the people to use the coined gold and silver of the United States both as a circulating medium and as money of account. This will enable the Southern public, if they so desire, to bring all transactions down to a gold basis, and to resume practically a specie circulation.

THE WINTER has been mild, and yet the Pacific Railroad is so blocked up by snow that the trains cannot run, and, according to the telegrams from San Francisco, "have not been running from Wasacht to the western terminus of the Union Pacific since February 12" This is a proof that the Union Pacific Railroad, however useful it may be, cannot on account of its position meet the requirements of trade or give us open communication by rail with the Pacific for more than nine months of the year. Every ton of snow which falls upon the present line is an additional argument in favor of the Southern Pacific Railroad, which ought to be built, and will be built if the South has any influence, even of the "you tickle me and I'll tickle you" kind, upon Congressional legislation.

GRANT has blundered : first, in nomina nating as Secretary of the Treasury Mr. repeal a good law because the President wished it; third, in taking it all back in a sulk because he could not have his way. This is a good beginning, surely !

WE PRINT this morning a lucid and interesting opinion of his Honor Judge Bryan, of the United States District Court, touching the construction of certain sections of the Bankrupt act, as applied to the case seen that the decision of Registrar Clawson in the matter is overruled.
