-Before the end of this month a private expedition to the North Pole will set out from Glasgow. The explorer who is about to undertake this perillous and extremely uncertain adventure is Mr. Lamont, late member of Parliament for Buteshire, and favorably known in literature as the author of "Seasons with the Sea Horses." For his new expedition he has fitted out in Scotland, at his own expense, a steamer of two hundred and thirty tons, called the Diana, and has associated with him gentlemen who can aid him in the various objects he has in view.

-"Shocking ingratitude," is what the New York Herald calls Dana's publication of the following in the way of thanks to General Grant: "We must recollect-Congress should recollect—that we live under an administra tion, the first administration of that character in this country, which has openly recognized the propriety of official discretion being influenced by the payment of money to the officer to whom the discretionary power is entrusted. In some parts of South America the professional beggar goes his daily round on horseback, and the gift of a few pennies, which would be thankfully accepted by a footman in the same line of business, is an insult to this consequential horseman. Dana, we fear, is done for."

-An old gentleman named Anderson, who days ago found four negroes skinning one of his cows which they had previously killed. He went out to remonstrate with them on their conduct, and was immediately fired upon by one of the party, several buckshot taking effect on his body, which caused him to fall, and it is not known whether this wound would have killed him or not, but immediately after he fell another of the party rushed upon him and split his head open with an axe. They then mutilated his body most terribly with hatchet. After this they dragged his body off into the bushes and concealed it. The negroes were subsequently arrested by the sheriff and lodged in jail. One of them confessed his participation in the crime and implicated the

-The Roman Catholic Cathedral, at the corner of Fiftieth-street and Fifth avenue, in New York City, will be the most elaborate religious edifice in the country. It covers an entire square, and is estimated to cost, when finished, nearly $2,000,000. The walls are rising slowly, hardly more than twenty or thirty feet having been put up thus far, and it will require several years to finish them. The work has been stopped twice within a year-once on account of the strike of the bricklayers, and once by reason of a lack of funds. When the church is finished, it will give a visitor a better idea of the splendors of the great cathedrals of Europe than anything else he can see in America. Contributions are now being made for this work by all the Catholic Churches of the city and State, and as the Catholics generally succeed in any effort to raise funds, the work is not likely to be suspended again.

-Apropos of the Cuban question, some in teresting facts, if true, calculated to throw light upon Secretary Fish's policy, have leaked out. The Washington correspondent of the New York Herald says: "It seems Fish, though at first opposed to war with Spain, has all along been in favor of the purchase of Cuba. His idea has been that Cuba could be bought for a good round sum, and that, after all, it would be the cheapest way of solving the difficulty. To go to war, he believed, would be a more expensive way of obtaining possession of Cuba than to accomplish its purchase by peaceful negotiation. With this purpose before him. Fish induced President Grant to throw Sickles overboard and to pick up Sanford as the man for the Spanish mission. Grant had promised Madrid to Sickles; of that fact there is not the slightest doubt, but Fish talked the matter over with Grant, and finally got his endorsement of Sanford."

-British writers are really growing very personal. The London Standard is publishin all kinds of revelations concerning Mr. Gladstone's life and habits; Mr. Anthony Trollope is accused of caricaturing public men in his new novel, Phineas Finn; and in a recent play by Mr. Edmund Yates, the poet Swinburne is brought forward in a gross and offensive manner. Moreover, says a correspondent, "there have appeared within, the last few weeks sev eral journals which openly violate common de cency in dealing with private character. The most malignant attacks are made under flimsy disguises, and everybody wonders why some of the aggrieved persons do not seek for the protection of the law. CHARLESTON.

THURSDAY MORNING, APRIL 22, 1869.

The State Agricultural Convention.

There is a singular unanimity of opinion throughout the State in regard to the importance of discussing soberly and carefully the effect of the changes wrought in our agricultural and industrial systems by the abolition of slavery; and it is admitted that, whatever perfection in organizing and applying labor may have been reached before the war, we have much to learn if we would adapt our operations to the means and instruments which are left at our command. Throughout the State, the ...untry press have explained what good results might reasonably flow from the Agricultural Convention to be held in Columbia on Wednesday next, and thanks to their efforts and the awakened good sense of the people at large, there is a prospect that at least fivesixths of the State will be represented.

The grave questions of labor, of agricultural improvement, of the growth of manufactures, and of white immigration, will demand a thorough consideration at the hands of the convention; for, whatever the ordinary worthlessness of individual experience, the practical information possessed by a "adv of gentlemen, who, together, are familiar with the whole State, and with the peculiar wants and necessities of every part of it, will furnish valuable data upon which to found the varied calculations of the future. We are still, as it were, groping in the dark. We know not how far what we have done may be removed from the best that could have been done; nor unless there is a comparison of experience and a free interchange of opinion, can we with safety abandon one plan or adopt another. What we desire to see is a full and free discussion of every subject connected with the development of the agricultural, industrial and manufacturing interests of the State and the following points will, we hope, receive attention: 1. Labor-saving machines and impleents. The uncertainty of free negro labor and the necessity of reducing the number of working hands to a minimum, make it important to inquire into the character and cost of the different labor-saving machines and implements in use in the Northerr States and in Europe. We should endeavor to ascertain how far they are adapted to our systems of cultivation, and what is the extent of the saving in manual labor. Persons who have used them or have seen them in use, can give some information, and the obtaining of precise and definite details could be made the duty of a standing committee.

2. Free negro labor. It is desirable to know how far we may rely upon the negro as a steady worker. Many broad assertions have been made upon this subject. We now have an opportunity of knowing what has been the experience of the whole State during three years, which will give us facts and not theories with which to work hereafter. We ought also to know how the amount of work done by the free laborers compares with the work done by the same number of slaves.

3. Cost of producing cotton. There should be no difficulty in the way of finding out what is the cost of producing cotton under the present system of labor. It is our opinion that the planters, with fair crops, and uplands selling at 20 cents, must, with proper management, grow rich. The objection, however, will be raised on some sides that to announce that we can produce cotton at a cost of 12 or 14 cents, or whatever the figure may be, would only be inviting Congress to impose anew the burdensome tax of two years ago. 4 Cultivation of cotton. Every experienced planter has his own pet theories on the subject of cotton. It would be interesting and valuable to know what modes of cultivation have been followed and with what comparative result. 5. Diversity of crops. We have also to decide whether, under the circumstances, it is best to place our whole reliance upon cotten, or whether we should diversify our crops and make always enough meat and bread to make us independent of the Western markets. Our opinions upon this subject are well known, and no one will deny that it is a matter which will go far to determine the measure of the future prosperity of the State. We hope that it will e pondered weil. 6. Manufactures. A report on the present condition of the different mills and factories in the State would be of great interest, and the report might show what has been done since the war in enlarging or improvit g old factories or building new ones. As a purely agricultural people, we cannot be wealthy again. We must have manufactures, we must work up our own cotton, we must free ourselves, as far as possible, from the trammels of both New England and Old England. Let us, then, encouraging in every way the establishment of mills and factories. 7. Immigration. It is time that there of immigration. The present State Gov- now so widely known as WOLFL : SCHIEDAM must do the work for ourselves. As our mills are put up so preparation, they said, had long been wanted by shall we want skilled workmen; but we cannot have either the laborer or the cotton operative unless we go to work at once medical purposes. The peculiar excellence and and prove to them, as we can do, that in strength of the ot of juniper, which formed one of the whole world there is no better asylum for the industrious but penniless emigrant than can be found in the Palmetto State.

These are some of the points which have suggested themselves to us as worthy of the consideration of the convention, whose de-South Carolina was the first colony in America to have an agricultural association, and we cannot think that the spirit is nearly two centuries ago to pass an act for the better encouragement of agriculture. We had, perhaps, been tempted by propriety to overlook the necessity of incessant and sustained exertion; but hard facts and hard times have had their effect, and we should possess now all the perseverance, with the daring character of the pirates who proy and patience and energy which are demanded of men who desire and deserve success. At all events, the State Agricultural Convention is a step in the right di-

Except absosolute submission to every demand the Americans may choose to make, there is nothing further that could have been conceded. It is likely that, assuming the present convention to be set aside, Mr. Motley will be instructed to open negotiations for another, differing somewhat in machinery, but embodying similar principles. Should this be the case, our government will be ready to give the proposa's a fair consideration. Should it, on the other hand, be the desire of the Americans to keep the question still unsettled, the British nation, having fully manifested its good dispositios, will not feel bound, however, to initiate fresh negotiations." OFFICE OF UDOLPHO, W . FF. Sole Importer of the Schiedam Aromatic champs, No. 22 Beaver-s cet. New York, November : 1868.

To the People of the Southern States: WHEN THE PURE MEDICINAL II STORATIVE of the medical profession some twen y years ago, its proprietor was well aware that it c uld not wholly with strongest possible safeguard : gainst counter them the purest spirit ever manuf. tured. Its purity and properties having been thu ascertained, sam-ples of the article were forwarde to ten thousand physicians, including all the lead. g practitioners in the profession, as no reliance could be placed on the ordinary liquors of commerce, all of which were more or less adulterated, and therefore unfit for the principal ingredients of the Schnapps, together with an unailoyed character of the alcoholic ele ment, give it, in the estimation of the faculty, a marked superiority over every other diffusive stimulant as a diuretic, tonic and restorative. These satisfactory credentials from professional men of the highest rank were published in a con densed form, and enclosed with each bottle of the liberations will, we hope and believe, be of Schnapps, as one of the guarantees of its genuine. vast benefit to the people of the State. news. Other precautions against fraud were also adopted; a patent was obtained for the article, the label was copyrighted, a fac simile of the proprietor's autograph signature was attached to each label and cover, his name and that of the preparation were emextinct which caused the General Assembly | Lossed on the bottles; and the corks were sealed with his private seal. No article had ever been sold in this country under the name of Schnapps prior to the introduction of Wolfe's Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps, in 1851; and the label was deposited, as his trade mark, in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York during the

> upon the reputation of honorable merchants by vend ing deleterious trash under their name, that the protections so carefully thrown around these Schnapps would have precluded the introductions and sale of counterfeits. They seem, however, only to have stimulated the rapacity of impostors. The trade mark of the proprietor has been stolen; the indorsement which his Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps alone received from the medical profession has been claimed by mendacious humbugs; his labels and bottles have been imitated, his advertisements paraphrased, his circulars copied, and worse than all, dishonorable retailers, after disposing of the genuine contents of his bottles, have filled them up with common gin, the most deloterious of all liquors, and thus made his name and brand a cover for poison. The public, the medical profession and the sick, for whom the Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps is prescribed as a remedy, are equally interested with the proprietor in the detection and suppression of these netarious practices. The genuine article, manutactured at the establishment of the undersigned in chiedam, Holland, is distilled from a barley of the finest quality, and flavored with an essential extract of the berry of the Italian jumper, of unequalled purity. By a process unknown in the preparation of any other liquor, it is treed from every acrimonious and corresive element.

> Complaints have been received from the leading physicians and families in the Southern States of the sale of cheap imitations of the Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps in those markets; and travellers, who are in the habit of using it as an antidote to the paneful influence of unwholesome river water, testify that cheap gin, put up in Schiedam bottles, trequently palmed off upon the unwary. The gents of the undersigned have been requested to institute inquiries on the subject, and to forward to ues of such hartice as they may asera tain to be engaged in the atrocious system of deception. In conclusion, the undersigned would say that he has produced, from under the hands of the most distinguished men of science in America, proofs un answerable of the purity and medicinal excelhe designed should protect the public and himsel to be the only liquor in the world that can be uniformly depended upon as unadulterated; that he has challenged investigation, analysis, comparison and experiment in all its forms; and from every ordeal the preparation which bears his name, seal and trade mark, has come off triumphant. He, therefore, feels it a duty he owes to his fellow-citizens generally, to the medical profession and the sick, to denounce and expose the charlatans who counterfeit these evi dencies of identity, and he calls upon the press and the public to aid him in his efforts to remedy so great

UDOLFHO WOLFE, Esq., Present:

Dear Sir—I have made a chemical examination of a sample of your Schiedam Schnapps, with the intent of determining if any foreign or injurious substance had been added to the simple distilled spirits. The oxamination has resulted in the conclusion that the sample contained no poisonous or harmful admixture. I have been unable to discover any trace of the deleterious substances wich are employed in the adulteration of liquors. I would not heeitate to use mysolf or to recommend to others, hesitate to use myself or to recommend to others, for medicinal purposes, the Schiedam Schnapps as an excellent and unobjectionable variety of gin.
