FLATTERY.

[From the Saturday Review.] Nothing is so delightful as flattery. To hear and believe pleasan fictions about esself is a temptation too security for wear mortals to resist, as the typical legends of all mythologies and the private histories of most individuals. gies and the private histories of most individ-uals show; in consequence of which, home traths, to one used to ideal portraiture, come like draughts of "bitter cup" to the drain-drinker. And flattery is dram-drinking; and yet not quite without good uses to balance its undemable evil, if only it be exaggeration, and yet not quite without good ness to balance its undemable evil, if only it be exaggeration, and not wholly falsehood; that is, if it assumes as a matter of course the presence of virtues potential to the character but not always active,
and praises for what might be if the person chose to live up to histost.

The fitteries of men to women, and those of women to men, are very different in kind and directed. Men flatter, women for what they are—for their beauty, there grace, their sweetmean their charmingness in general, while a ness, their charmingness in general, while a woman will flatter a mau for what he does woman will flatter a man for what he doesfor his specci in the bouse last night, of which she understands little; for his book, of which all understands less; or for his pleading, of whic she understands rothing at all. Not that this significa much on either side. The most u intellectual little woman in the world has brains enough to look up in your face

"sweetly and breaths out something that sounds has the man of the standing and of the country." Variety besut iful-charming—so clever," vaguely like "besutiful—charming—so clever, vaguely aketching the quitine of a hymn of praise to which your own virily supplies the versicles. For you must have an exceptionally strong head it you can rate the aketch of its real value, and see for your-elf hew utiefly meaningless it is. You may be the most mystical poet of the day, sungecting to your acutest readers grave doubts as to your own hower of comprehending yourself; or you may be the most subtie mathematician. To follow whom in your labyring his reasoning requires perhaps the reacts of derif brains to be met with; but you will nevertheless believe any narrow-browed, small-headed woman who tells you in a low, aweet voice, with a gentlemphifting of her eyes, and a suggestive curve of the hip that she has sould you both intelligible and charming? and that she quite sgreas with you; and shares your every sentiment. It she further tells you tiest all her fits long she has thought in exactly the same way but was wholly unable to express herself, and that you have now supplied her want and translated into words her vague does and if she says this with a reverebilal kind of effusiveness, you are done for, so far as ideas, and if the says this with a reverental hand of effusiveness, you are done for, so far as your critical power goes; and should some candid friend, whom she has not flattered, tell you with brutal frankness that your bewitching the flatterer has neither beams nor the education to understand you, you will set bim down as a slanderer, spiteful and mategnant, and call is careful your your years he has not od call his candor envy, because he has not

There is one kind of fiattery which is common to both men and women, and that is the expressed preference of sex. Thus, when men mant to fiatter women, they see how maintely they prefer their society to that of their own sex; and women will say the same to men. Or if they do not say it, they will act it. See a set of women congregated together without the light of a maily countenance among them. They will talk to each other certainly; and one or two will sit away together and discuss their private affairs with animation; but the great mass of them are only half vitalized while waiting the advent of the men to rouse them into life and the desire to please. No man who goes up first and earher than he was expected from the dinner table, can fail to see the change which comes over those wearied, limp, indifferent looking faces and figures as soon as he enters the room. He is like the prince whose kins, woke up the siecomg beauty and all her court; and can any one say that this is not fiatter; of the most dignified kind? To be the Pygmalion even for a moment, and for the all her court; and can any one say that this is not flattery of the most dignified kind? To be the Pygmalion even for a moment, and for the weakest order of soul giving. Is about the greatest pleasure that a man can know, if he is susceptible to the finer kinds of flattery. Some women, indeed, not only show their preference for men, but openly confess it, and Some women, indeed, not only show their preference for men, but openly coofess it, and confess at the same time to a lutty contempt or shhourence for the society of women. These are generally women who are or have been beauties, or who have literary and intellectual preference, or who have literary and intellectual preference, or who have literary and intellectual preferences and stupidity. But for the most part they are women who, by their beauty or their position, have been used to receive extra a tention from men, and thus their preference is not flutery so much as exigeance. Women who have been in India, or wherever else women are in the minority in society, are of the kind; and nothing is more amaning to them when they first ome home than the attentions which a certain style of Englishwoman poys to men, instead of demanuing and receiving attentions from them. These are those sweet, humble, caressing women who flattery on with every word and look, but whose flattery is nothing but a pretty dress put on for show, and taken off when the show is done with.

The flattery met with in society is not often for show, and taken off when the show is done with.

The flattery met with in society is not often very harmful save to coarse or specially simple natures. You must be either one or the other to be able to believe it. Lady Morgan was be able to believe it. Lady Morgan was the tribs of social flatterers; but that was her enging, the ladder by which she did a good part of her climbing. We must: 'confound with this kind of flattery the impulsive expression of praise or love which certain outspoken people indulge in to the last. You may as well try to dam up Nisgara as to make some folks retreent in any direction. And when one of this kind sees anything that he crashe likes, the praise has to come out with superlaires if he creature is prone to exaggeration. But this is not flattery; it is merely want of reticenca, and a certain childlikeness which lasts with some to the end, but which very few understand when they see it, and which subjects its possessor to misrepresentation and unfriendly jibes as soon as his or her back is turned, and the explosion of exaggerated praise is discussed critically by the unintersected parks of the audience. praise is discussed critically by the uninter-ested part of the audience.

SEA-SIDE SKEICHES. Bolovely Ladies Look in the Salt Surf

Long Branch Letter to the Indianapolis Journal Abon half-plat fen o'click the white flag is raised, which is that signal for bathing, when preparations for that rare sportfare immediately commenced, and small parties stert for the booths of the beach; these booths are mere board houses, about four feet square, just large snough for a well-developed crinoline to get in. They reaemble pugpers more than dressing-rooms for ladies and gentlemen, but they are all alike, and answer the purpose. You will see a fachionably attired lady or gentleman enter one of these narrow dens, and in a few moments emerge migus all the "toggey" that contributes to make up the inviting exterior, clad in a figure jacket and pants, the latter coming only to the unkle, generally in their bare feet, with an old straw hat tied down in the most ludgrous and uninviting manner to prevent the wearers from being symburned, the reflection of the sun on the water being quite severe. Abon half-past ten o'click the white flag is wearers from being symburned, the reflection of the sun on the water being quite severe. Bathers when dressed for the bath all look alke; but those clad in such insagre habitments for the first time are generally nervous, and act very much as if they were ashamed of themselves, and glance down at their pants, especially if they are ladies, in a manner that is highly amising to all veteran salts. They venture in the water cautious y and not unlike you glducks, but, finally, after boing buffited and t seed about by the surf for a half hour or so, they invariably put on a told face and march out of the water as if they were "no noy ces."

Hera is an excellent opportunity for a single entieman matrimonially inclined to see what mount of frauds there are upon the market. amount of frauds there are upon the market.

The voung lady who may appear to possess a handsome figure, and is always gotten up on the expansive principle, with a profusion of false hair, hoops, pads, and all the parapherualia known to female genius and penetration, may prove to be a mere skeleton when she is discrepantly and extracted from the mysterial decided and extracted from the mysterial decided for the mysterial decided f rous and e implicated concerns which surround her. While upon the other hand, if the lady is her. While upon the other hand, if the lady is inclined to embonpoint, and is laced up drily with a block and tackle in order to make her waist appear small, or compress her proportions into an unreasonably small quantity of dry goods, the fact will revest itself the moment she is well saturated with the surf. She can take none of her 'make-up' into the water with her. The ocean is honest. While the bathing-dress will not adhere to the skin it will do so readily to any other substance, like a corset or ——, I shau't tell what else, for the reason that I am not au fait in such matters. But the woman is before you, devoid of all deformaties and you can form an adequate idea of what you will be called upon to disburse your stamps for, should you enter into a matrimonial alliance with her. It would be a great consolation to know these things in advance. The water is a great leveler of distinction. It treats all of its patrons precisely anke; the noh and the poor, great leveler of distinction. It treats all of its patrons precisely anke; the rich and the poor, the strong and the weak, are all swayed to and fro, knocked down or thrown upon the beach be its resistless waves, as if they were mere thooks of wood. Every one is in the beat of humor, and is any unlucky novice in sea bathing should swallow a mouthful of salt water and stop to cough, and the succeeding wave take nim amidships, and send him sprawling towards the shore, his mouth wide open, to receive a fresh supply, the crowd, as well as the hundreds on the beach, will shout with delight.

DEVER AND AGUE, FROM WEICH MANKIND SUFFER

PROM WBICH MANKIND SUFFEB over a large part of the globe, is the consequence of a diseased action in the system, induced by the poison one minem of vegetable decay. This exhalation is evolved by the action of solar heat on wes soil, and rases with the watery vapor from it.—While the sun is below the horizon this vapor lingers near the earth's surface, and the virus is taken with it through the lungs myo the blood. There it acts as an irritating poison on the internal viscers and excreting organs of the body. The liver becomes torpid and fails to secrete not only this virus, but also the bile from the blood. Both the virus and the bile accumulate in the circulation, and produce vio ent constitutional disorder. The spleen, the kidneys, and the stomyth sympathize with the liver, and become disordered also. Finally, the instinct of our organism, as it in an attempt to expel the noxious infusion, concentrates the belood of the body in the internal excretories to force them to cast it out. The blood leaves the surface, and rushes to the central organs with congestive violence. This is the Chill. But in this effort it talks. Then the Fever follows, in which the blood leaves the central organs and rushes to the surface, as it in another effort to expel the irritating poison through that other groat excretory—the skin. In this also it frits, and the system abandons the attempt exhausted, and waits for the recovery of strength to repeat the hopelese effort another day. These are the fits of paroxysms of Fever and Ague, Such constitutional disorder will of course under mine the health if it is not removed.

We have lacored to mid, and have found an anti-dote,

AYER'S AGUE CURE. Which neutralizes this maiarious poison in the blood, and stimulates the liver to expel it from the body. As it should, so it does cure this afflicting disorder with perfect certainty. And it does more, or rather does what is of mere service to those subject to this infection. If taken in season it expels to the infection. If taken in season it expels to the who use it tree irom its attacks; keeps the system in health although exposed to the disease. Consequently it not only cures, but protects from, the great variety of affectious which are induced by this malignant influence, such as Remittent Föver. Chill Fever, Dumb, or Masked Ague, Periodical Beadache, or Billious Headache. Billious Fevers, Acursigia, Rheumatism Gout, Blindnes, Toothache. Farache, Catarrh, Asthma, Palpitations Painfal Affections of the spleen, Hysterics, Colic, Paralyses, and Painful Affect ons of the Stomach and Bowels, all of which,

Prof. Danny. Dear Sir—Having not been engaged for many years in the active duties of the Medical profession. I am only superficially acquainted with the claims of your Prophylacine Fluid but am well acquainted with its chemical elements.

While, therefore, I cannot speak experimentally of the value of the compound, ver the disinfecting and therapeutic properties of the agents employed in its composition, together with the well known reputation of its discoverer, as a chemist, authorize me to regard its merit as so I a high order; on the whole it must be considered as a valuable contribution to the class of articles to which it belongs.

These views, I may add, are sustained by the testimony of many of mpotent judges, who have tested its properties.

Believe me, dear sir.

Yours, respectfully, MANUFACTURER OF PANKNIN'S

HEPATIC BITTERS. Which have established for themselves a reputation
