The State Governors, city rities, steamboat, manufacturing and mining corporations, chambers of commerce and boards of trade, are invited to send delegates. At a public meeting held in Louisville, during the summer, resolutions of welcome and cordiality were unanimously adopted in reference to all who may attend.

-Kideapping landsmen is said to be a common practice in San Francisco, in which city, last April, a stranger was knocked down, carried of to a ship, and taken against his will to Callao. He has now returned and commenced suit against the kidnappers. This practice is a revival of the tricks played before the war. when considerable sums of money were para-for each sailor shipped on vessels ready to rable sums of money were paid leave port. Laborers, unanspecting countrytravellers were drugged and taken on beard the departing vessels. The cruel treat-ment of the ship's crews has been attributed to the endeavor of the masters to obtain more work from weak and incapable hands, placed on board in the manner described.

-There is no material change in the aspec of the water question in Philadelphia. The Inquirer of that city says: "At no time during the height of the water panic was it more necessary to be strictly economical in the use of the article than at present. The city is still drawing upon the reserved pools of the Upper Schuylkill, and it is impos thie to tell when the supply may give out. There is yet no prospect of the ardently prayed for and much desired heavy rain. A large conflagration would use up all the water that can at present be obtained from Fairmount reservoir, and housekeepers and others must be sparing until the Schuylkill River again pours volumes of the fluid over Fairmount dam." -A day or two ago we copied from a Vienna paper an account of some of the pecu sarities of coeratio singers. A later number of that journal has additional gossip of the s-me sort. whell by a correspondent, who save that, from his long acquaintance with artists, native and foreign, he can testify as to their moderation, bothm esting and drinking, while preparing for or in performance of their duties They dine early on the day they sing, they take as little as possible, and they receive very few visitors before they have to sing. But then the suppers are something to seetheir appeti es are awful after the evering's ent. As a general rule they take little or nothing between the sets, but some of them stringent stimulents if not strong ones. Malibran naver sang better than when she had drunk at least a put of porter out of the pewter pot. The more difficult the music the large antity; and the odd sneedote related of her by Burin, the Drury Lane Theatre lessee, she had a quart of porter concealed behind the sand mound, is quite authentic. Grisi drank always bottles of Dublin stout between the acts, and if she had to sing a stormy character the dose was strengthened. French singers prefer 'eau sucree; the Spaniards take strong cups of chocolate, followed by glasses of water, sugared and lemoned. The Italians like eggs beaten up simply or with wine. The Continental singers are certainly more careful and abstemious than the English in their dietary arrangements. Many native a tists with noble voices have been ruined in health and vitiated in style by singing at our public din-

WEDNESDAY MORNING, SEPT. 8, 1869.

Austria, Prussia and France.

It is not the glorious land of liberty alone, in these United States, that the patriot and the man who loves his fellow-man are jeered Metices, 20 cents a line. Marriage and Funeral Nowith high-sounding professions of peace and good will-"Let us have peace"-the promise made to the ear, but broken to the hope. We find the same state of things existing in Spain, in France, in Ireland, and notably in Austria and Prussis; in short, wheresoever tyrants are vainly endeavoring to smother and silence the loud protestations of a restless people chafing impatiently under the yoke. In 1866 there was a war between Austria and Prussia-never mind how, nor by whom inaugurated. Wars are stubborn facts, and victory makes righteousness. Prussia was victorious, ergo her quarrel was just. [Our readers will perceive that we have made considerable progress in reconstruction.] From what has transpired since, and from the present attitude of affairs, which appears to threaten another war ere this quarrel is finally adjusted, we can scarcely forbear wishing that they had fought it out while they were at it. "Short, sharp and "decisive" is all very well, provided it is really decisive. And in 1866, when the Treaty of Prague was made, it was thought that the questions at issue had really and decisively been settled. Such, however, was not the case. The two rival monarchies are arrayed against each other this moment in an attitude more hostile than they were prior to the last war.

The prime cause of difficulty is a jealous rivalry in the efforts of both toward establishing a close alliance, or rather a confederation, with the South German States, viz: Bavaria, Wurtemberg, Baden and Hesse Darmstadt. These are the States south of the Main, where, it is understood, Prussia was forced to stay her onward course of victory in 1866, by the diplomatic intervention of Napoleon. But for the influence of France, Prussia would doubtless have succeeded ere this in securing the adherence of the States aforenamed to a general German Confederation.

Austriz is not only determined to prevent this, but is herself solicitous of form ing a close alliance with a South German Confederacy into which these States are to form themselves

All this time, be it understood, both Austria and Prussia profess nothing but the most peaceful intentions, although intriguing constantly against each other, and although ointinually strengthening their land and naval forces. Latterly there has been some "correspondence" between the two Cabinets, commencing with the complaints of Berlin at the publication of the Austrian 'Red Book." The last mail brings us the text of a "note" of Herr von Thiele, Prussian Under-Secretary of State to Baron von Werther, Prussian Ambassador in Vienna, which, of course, will lead to further correspondence and further complications.

Herr von Thiele, in his note, says, among other things, the following, which is receiving much attention at this time : "In regard to the one point, viz: our position towards South Germany, we can consider the newspapers as well informed about the declarations of the Chancellor, as he has himself confirmed and explained them to your Excellency. I refer to the expression of the Chancellor that, to the delegations, he characterized the relations between Austria and Prossis as unsatisfactory, because Prussia. sive alliances with the South German States, altered the Treaty of Prague from the beginning toward Austria, and that this effect of the lliances was not, at the proper time, disputed by ns, and, it could almost be said, was silently

"I request your Excellency to have the goodsess to call the attention of the Chaucellor to the fact that we have hitherto had no cocasion to most this view, and that the Treaty of Prague contains absolutely nothing that could give even pretence for medifying in the slightest degree the perfect liberty of the sovereign States of South Germany or of us to enter into every treaty to which both parts may agree. On the contrary, the Treaty of Prague even contains, at the conclusion of the Fourth Article, the summons to make a national union of the South German States with North Germany the subject of a more complete understanding. The Treaty of Prague has not provided for us, or for the South German States. limitations of any kind whatsover, of the sovereign right to conclude every treaty they may desire with each other. To designate most positively the assertion of the Chancellor that the treaties of alliance are in contradiction to the treaty of peace, as unfounded has hither to, from the clear terms of the treaty of peace not seen required of us; but as Count Beust has had no hesitation in making to you the assertion, which your Excellency, as I assume immediately personally contested, it will be necessary to give an official form to its rejec-

Now this, there can be little doubt, was put forth, not so much because the Honorable Under Secretary wished any light on the subject of the Treaty of Prague from the Austrian Premier, nor because he expected to interpret the said treaty for the benefit of the Vienna Cabinet, but rather as a feeler to see how this view would be received in France. The professions of peace on the part of Beust, and the polite pro ests on the part of Prussia against his foreign intermeddling policy, are mere beating of the air, signifying nothing. If war then is to come again out of this quarrel, it will be because of the French intrigues in South

Germany. 'And it is for this reason that this note is of special importance; put forth, too, as it is, at a most interesting, net to say preca rious, conjuncture of French affairs. The

THE DAILY NEWS. that she could never delineate the thirst of the completion of the Suez Canal increases the eye to the East. The recent death of Marshal Niel, the organizer of her great army, as well as Minister of War, leaves it, as yet, uncertain whether or not his loss is repara ble. The ill-health of Napoleon, and great anxiety of the entire empire on that score, just when the constitution was undergoing some radical changes; the youth of the Prince Imperial, and the somewhat ominous Radicalism of Prince Napoleon; all point to a dark and dismal future, in case the present Emperor should die suddenly. All these, and other causes that might be named. make it specially undesirable for France to have a vexed question offoreign policy suddenly sprung upon her.

Such a question is this of Von Thiele, and is so considered by the French press. We translate from Le Temps:

"This rendering of the Treaty of Prague is entirely dictated by the fancy of the interpre ter; nor should it surprise us, after this, next to hear Thiele and Bismarck tell King William that two and two make five.

"But is there any reason, just because these gentlemen choose to announce such propositions, that we should have a war, and that diptomatic relations should at once cease?

"Not at all! The first need of Europe peace; because peace is the high-road to liberty, and no ambitious scheme of king or kaiser must be permitted to cut short this much needed peace. If the ministers of Prussia choose to disregard treaties, and pretend to have a right to exercise their influence over South Germany, is this a reason why all Europe should forthwith plunge into war, waste her precious resources and shed the blood of her children ?

"No! It is impossible. If one particle of sense is left to the Western powers; if France, England, Italy, Spain, Belgium, Switzerland, Portugal, Denmark, Holland and Sweden, believe that a continuance of peace is necessary, they have but to say the word, to bring back to their duty these disturbers of the European peace. It is not even necessary to draw the sword or move the army. A note, signed by all the aforenamed powers, would be sufficient

"If, therefore, this quarrel, which is now threatening us, should assume troublesome proportions-as yet there is but little fear of that-it is because we, the people of the West, choose to permit it, for there is nothing easier than to nip it in the bud.

"Even supported by Russia, the Cabinet of Prussis would hesitate to provoke a struggle which would rouse and unite against it all the nations of Europe. Europe considers as her enemy him, whoever he be, who, by causing war, interrupts the peaceful process of her unification."

This, liberally translated, is the view of M. Louis Jourdan, one of the political writers of Le Temps. It sounds very well, but it is mere bombast, a newspaper protest -nothing more; and will not frighten Bismarck, nor reassure Beust, nor even de cide Napoleon on the proper course of sotion in the premises. We shall wait anxiously for further development, and endeavor to abstain from prophecying.

THE Richmond Dispatch says: "We learn from the Warrenton (N. C.) Present that four negro women and one negro man were sentenced at the last Warrenton County Court to banishment to South Carolina, 'with the verbal promise of a heavy penalty should they ever show their faces' in North Carolina. A similar punishment was imposed at the late term of the Edgecombe County Court. How will the Palmetto State like that? She may retaliate if she likes with interest, by banishing her rogues to North Carolina."

We beg to say that a hearty welcome will given these immigrants if they will promise to vote the Radical ticket whenever they have an opportunity. We cannot balance things by banishing our rogues to North Carolina, because, if we did so, what on earth would become of the Radical

THE report of the Special Commissioner of the Revenue, just published, shows that during the year ending June 30, last, cotton was exported to the declared value of $162,000,000. During the same period the value of the exported breadstuffs was only $53,000,000, and of the exported specie only $42,000,000. Besides cotton, the South exported, of her produce, naval stores amounting to $8,000,000, and tobacco amounting to $23,000,000. The total exports of the year amounted to $413,869,182, of which amount only $136,893,580 was shipped in American vessels.

THE total imports into the United States for the year ending June 30, last, amounted to $487,026,541, against $871,624,808 for the preceding year. The import of silk goods alone amounted to $22,000,000, or $4,000,000 more than in the year ending June 30, 1868.

Wm ARE pleased to announce that the Chamber of Commerce, at the meeting held last night, passed a resolution offering a silver goblet to the State Agricultural Sosiety, to be given as a premium for the best ten bales of upland cotton.

As ws expected, the Radical rumor that attempts are making in Lexington to defraud the freedmen, turns out to be wholly

CHARLESTON HOTEL, CHARLESTON, SOUTH CAROLINA.

THIS FIRST-CLASS HOTEL. SITUATED IN A pleasant location, and in the business portion of the city, renders it the most desirable Hotel for either permanent or transient guests. The accommodations are unsurpassed, having extensive suites of elegantly furnished appriments for fimilies and single pentiemen. The proprietor will endeavor to maintain the high reputation erjoyed by the "Charleston" as a direct class houss, and no effort will be spared to deserve a continuance of the liberal patronage heretofore bestowed upon it.

The best of Livery accommodations will be found adjoining the establishment.

The house is supplied with the celebrated Artesian Water of which delightful baths can be had either day er night.

E. H. Jack-ON, Proprietor. THIS FIRST-CLASS HOTEL. SITUATED IN

QT. CLOUD HOTEL.

THIS NEW AND COMMOLIOUS HOUSE, LOCAT.

THIS NEW AND COMMOLIOUS HOUSE, LOCATED corner of Broadway and Forty-second-street, possesses advantages over all other houses for the accommodation of its ruests. It was built expressly for a first-class family boarding house—the roome being large and en suite, heated by steam—with not and cold w ter, and furnished second to none; while the culinary department is in the most experienced under, aff-ording queets an unequalled table.

One of Atwood's Patent Elevators is also among the "modern improvements" and at the service of guests at all hours.

The Broadway and University Place Cars pass the door every four minutes, running from the City Hall to Central Park, while the Sixth and eventh Avenue lines are but a short blook in either side, affording ample facilities for communicating with all he depots, steamboat landings, claces of arcusement and business of the great metropolis.

HENEREY'S

Ginning "Fine Upland Cotton."

LATE CHANGES MADE IN THIS GIN ADAPTS it to the simning of UPLAND OLITON. The use of it, by a fex, on this cotton last season proved that it enhanced the value of the Cotton, as it does not injure the staple in the slightest degree.

Planters will find it to their sdwn age, and are requested to examine into this Gin, particularly those who have planted the finer grades of Upland Cotton. The Gin has been in use upon the talkind Cotton for over three years, and its reputation for that cotton fully established. Apply to
