NEWS OF THE DAY.

-Gold closed in New York yesterday more active at 301.

The New York cotton market closed heavy and decidedly lower; sales 2800 bales at 263. At Liverpool cotton closed quiet, uplands 12d; Orleans 12id; sales 8000 bales. -Detroit has invented a "dummy" for city railroads, that consumes its own smoke and steam. -Dr. Mary Walker has been lecturing in St. Louis on the necessity of a law compelling men to marry before they reach the age of forty. -Mr. Horace Greeley, it is said, is about to purchase one thousand acres of land in Virginla, and will parcel it out and settle ten nilles on the tract. The New York Herald says that William B. Astor during the last twenty years has so maged a fortune of twenty millions as to oll it up to sixty millions. Mr. Kinglake, the author of the history o the Crimean war, has lost his seat in Parliament because he obtained it by bribery; and he is threatened with a criminal prose

-Alexander T. Stewart, as a beginning of his Hempstead Plains improvement for the benefit of the working men of New York, has contracted for five hundred miles of streets and roadways, and the construction of five hundred dwelling houses.

-The greatest Catholic procession ever witnessed in Montreal, Canada, took place Sunday afternoon, the occasion being the translation of the relics of St. Seno from Bousecour's church to the Bishop's palace. Thirty thous and people joined in the procession.

-Miss Kate Field makes her debut in Bos ton, on the lecture platform, on the 20th instant. She only returned, a few days ago from a second trip to the Adirondacks, where she hoasts of having shot a fine buck weighing 200 pounds, and insists that she "shot it legitimately, nobody holding it by the tail," she never before having handled a rifle.

-A correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette has evidently been honored with an invitation to a Sunday evening tea at the home of the Cary sisters in New York. These little gatherings have long been very popular with the favored friends of the two song-birds who live it was paid. All that he can do is to bring in a modest little house in a quiet street of Manhattan, and their parlors are made brilliant on every Sunday night in winter by the gathering of some of the best known literary people of the city. On the evening described by the correspondent, Lord Adair, the son of the Earl of Dunraven, was present with his wife, and the latter is described as looking amused when Miss Phœbe Cary energetically remarked that she "wished some other than Booth might become the highpriest of the ed rivalry of the neighboring city of Pardrama in America." Horace Greeley was also land, which now claims to be as far ahead of the company, and he roamed about the of Brunswick, in respect to position and room "radiating smiles and common sense until he grew tired and took his leave in his own characteristic manner-that is, he wandered vaguely away without saying good-by to anybody." The conversation at these receptions often turns upon spiritualism, both the sisters being spiritualists of the higher type.

-The Bay of San Francisco, one of the most magnificent sheets of water in the world, is sixty miles long, ten miles wide, and the mouth of the bay on the same parallel as the mouth of Chesapeake Bay. The bay is bordered by large tracts of tule or marah, also by extensive tracts of arable lands. The Sacramento and San Joaquin Rivers, with their tributaries, pour a large volume of water into the bay and afford facilities for inland navigation. Scores of steamers plough these inland waters, and hundreds of sloops and schooners-those carrying the comforts and luxuries of life inand, and return with the treasures of mountains and valleys.

State Taxes.

Under the Tax act passed by the Legislature in September, 1868, all merchants are the year ending September 1, 1868. The city have covered themselves with a new 1868, as in 1867, a tax on their sales, ac- both drunk and disorderly, but the Board cording to the then existing rule of taxation. The tax for 1868 was especially heavy, and when the Legislature passed a law that | And how could they be hard upon the weak another tax should be paid, in another head which could not endure the repeated shape, for the same period, it was thought libations of the seasoned toper? In the taxation for 1869. They are informed, however, that the taxes assessed last spring are for the year ending September 1, 1868, and men adjourn to their convenient bar-room are called on to make new returns for the year ending September 1, 1869, the new tax being payable in March next. This is, to all intents and purposes, a double tax. Thinking that the Legislature, at the time of the enactment of the present law, was ignorant of the fact that the merchants of the State had already paid a tax on the operations of the year 1868, and with the hope of obtaining some relief for himself and his friends, one of our leading merchants made application, in person and by letter, to the State Auditor, to know whether those who us to a characteristic chapter, not long but had previously paid should not be exempt from the new tax, or be credited with the amount already paid; and asking, further, whether the payment of the tax of 1869 could not be postponed until the meeting of the Legislature, if the State Auditor could not himself decide the question. To this application Mr. Tomlinson made the follow-

A Northern capitalist made up his mind to invest several hundred thousand dollars the city, and Mare Island is the seat of the in real estate in Charleston. All his prepossessions were in our favor, and, being a steadfast Republican, our Radical State government had no terrors for him. But he thought it best to visit the city and look about for himself. Soon after his arrival a regular meeting of the City Council was held, and our stranger, led by curiosity, was present white-winged birds of the bay-flit to and fro during the session. The next morning he packed up his trunks and went back home. And this was at a time when the City Council was confining itself to the election of irresponsible officers, the creation of fat sinecures, and the repeal of obnoxious ordinances.

Any one who will take the trouble to taxed upon the average monthly value of read the proceedings of the last meeting of the property pertaining to their business in Council, will see that the stepfathers of the merchants had already paid during the year glory. When the debate is long and dry the Alderand tipple at their leisure. No wonder that they were merciful toward the poor creature who, may be, drank less although he showed it more !

Mr. Parker Pillsbury has written a sensational letter, in which he gives an awe-inspiring description of what he calls the ignorance and squalor and intemperance of the negroes. We know now that this Radical love of liquor is not confined to the freedmen. School History of South Carolina. By Jas. Wood Davidson, A. M. Columbia, S. C.: Duffle & Chapman. New York: E. J. Hale

Mr. Davidson, in the preface to his School History of South Carolina, says that "his aim "has been to give in plain language an ac-"count of such points" in the history of the State "as a schoolboy may understand," and that in the portion that is subsequent to all the written histories-from 1859 to 1869-"the "effort has been to present the events of this "eventful decade of years in narrative as little "as possible tinged with sectional feelings-"to state mere facts, free from all argument "and comment." This purpose is well carried out, and the result is-the most convenient and compact school history of the State yet

The material of Davidson's history is found in the usual authorities-Rivers, Ramsay, Drayton, Logan, and the rest-and the author has taken great care to hold evenly the scales of conflicting opinions. It formed no part of the plan of the book to deal with the philosophy of history; but every important fact is given in plain words and with a conciseness of statement now too rare. Each chapter is accompanied by questions in the usual form, and there rough. In tone the book is unexceptionable. The narrative of the nellification excitements, of the late war, and of the progress and completion of Southern reconstruction, is wholly unexceptionable. It is free from bitterness of expression, but at the same time there is no hiding of the truth.
