-The Commercial Travellers' Association of New York held their regular annual meeting on Tuesday last. The subject under discussion was the Wood "test case," with reference to the law in the Southern and Western cities, which prohibits a commercial traveller from offering goods for sale without sample, unless he take out a license from $100 to $400. The association has engaged to raise $10,000 to defray the expenses of carrying the case to the Supreme Court of the United States. Members have already, it is said, paid in some

-An inflammatory proclamation has been circu lated in Havana calling the citizens to arms in the cause of the insurgents. The authorities have searched many suspected houses, and forty wellknown citizens have been ordered to leave at once for Spain. The tenor of the news from the interior is represented as being unfavorable to the Cubans. A lot of arms and ammunition having been found on the plantation of Senor Lamar, near Watanzas Cuba, he was arrested, tried by court martial, found gullty of treason and executed. A large number of Spaniards were arrested and sent off for Spain.

-A correspondent of the Baltimore Sun telegraphs to that paper that the Western movement to remove the capital is likely to fall through. The demonstration on Congress has been postponed till after the recess; but its projectors now admit that they have no strength in either house Senators Drake and Schurz, of Missouri, are both opposed to the plan to place the capital at St. Louis. The formersenator declared to-day that there were not ten members of the Missouri Legislature who would vote to cede to the Federal Government the jurisdiction over territory within the State sufficient for the location of the capital. to have the capital go West, but they do not favor any change just so long as the public debt remains a national burden. -The particulars of Mr. Stanton's death are as follows: On Thursday he complained of his sickness, but his family were not alarmed as to a fatal result, as he had apparently been in a worse condition previously. Shortly after midnight his symptoms became alarming. Surgeon-General Barnes was present on his accustomed visit, but found it impossible to afford relief. Rev. Dr. Starkie, of the Church of the Epiphany, Protestant Episcopal, of which Mr. Stanton was a member, was summoned, but shortly afterward the sufferer lost consciousness and was unable to converse with any one. The pulsation of his heart essed for a few seconds and then returned, his breathing being very faint. It was not until half an hour before his death that his family could realize that he was dying. About three o'clock he expired. Surgeon-General Barnes says that he never saw a man die so quietly in his life, breath ing away without a struggle. He died of conges t ion of the heart. At his bedside in these last moments were his family, consisting of Mrs. Stanton, his eldest son Edwin L. Stanton, Ella, his eldest daughter, about twelve years of age, Lewis his second son, nine years of age, and Bessie, his youngest child, five years of age. -Samana is ours. On the 6th of December the Fnited States flag was raised over the town and bay, a salute was fired by the war steamer Albany, and a force of American troops landed and took formal possession. Samana Bay is situated on the northeast coast of San Domingo, and is about ferty-three miles in length from east to west, by eight miles broad, and at its west end receives the Yuna, the largest river in the Dominican Republic. It forms one of the finest harbors in the world, and may be regarded as a most important maritime position in reference to the trade of the Gulf of Mexico and the inter-oceanic routes across Central America, both in a commer cial and military point of view. The news of the occupation of Samana by the United States created great excitement among the people of San Domingo, and the revolutionary party were making redoubled efforts to drive out Baez, who had effected the negotiations. Baez declares that he will annex the whole republic to the United West India dispatches mention, in this connec tion, that negotiations for the cession of St.

Family Reconstruction.

History as well as religion has its vindications and its retributions. Dishonest parties, like designing men, may claim the possession of distinguished virtue, and may succeed, by sheer audacity, in getting the claim allowed. But fortunately reputation involves responsibility. The impostor cheats himself in assuming a virtue which he cannot maintain. His mask does not change his character: and sooner or later the time arrives when the inconvenient lion's skin is cast off or disarranged, and the terror of the forest becomes its scorn. His just deserts are meted out to the vicious and obstinate brute who claimed the honors due to the king of beasts.

Æsop's fable represents tolerably well the state of the Republican party at the present time. This infamous Richardson-McFarland case has laid bare the corruption of the political vendors of moral ideas. As the patrons of a cause whose appalling details have startled and shocked the whole country, stand forth the staff of the Tribune, and the great pulpit lights of Republicanism-Henry Ward Beecher and O. B. Frothingham. These model reformers, than whom none have spoken more sanctimoniously of the tenderness and strength of the marriage bond, have pandered to a dark matrimonial Papal infallibility is losing ground in the council. intrigue, culminating in adultery and mura -The London Times is gratified that the Irish- der. But it should be said that the one hundred and twenty adults living in that remote village of Indiana, knew and cared | says: nothing about the case, and that the deserted husband had no opportunity of defence. So far as Mrs. McFarland is concerned, she cannot be held blameless, for the divorce was an illegality, and was secured for the purpose of facilitating her union with "her husband's friend." As to Richardson, who is now in his grave, the evidence pretty clearly shows that he had solicited and won the affections of his friend's wife before any separation had taken place; and he pursued, with an eagerness which Mrs. McFarland herself was constrained to moderate, his purpose of making her his own. Regarded from whatever point of view, the case was an ugly one. The ministry had nothing to do with it except as they are officially appointed to "call sinners "to repentance." It was a horrible outrage when they appeared, in their robes of sanctity, to bless an affection which has cast a gifted genius into a bloody grave—which has eclipsed the virtue and the happiness of among the business men in the countries to which a beautiful, accomplished woman, and which is likely to bring a wretched husband to the

The humblest of pose, and who so employ it still. Why it is them all in station was McFarland, who was necessary to give one set of capitalists a first in the provost marshal's office and then received an appointment to the customhouse. His wife was employed as contributor to the Independent. His "friend" Richardson was an editor of the Tribune. The two ministers who performed the public consecration of the bigamy are among the most distinguished men of the party. In short, the terrible burlesque was an act of domestic "reconstruction," to which Republicanism lent its greatest names. There was a marshalling of the clans, a grand magnificent uprising-Vice-President, editors, secular and religious, male and female, and ministers, orthodox and hetorodox-for the virtuous, glorious, nay sublime purpose of tain narrow limits. If the South Carolina taking away a wife from her husband and giving her to another man. Rank after rank, with civic trophy and sacred sign, they threw themselves, body and soul, into that grand conflict; and when it was over, one, perhaps the noblest of them all, lay dead in the arms of victory, a heart-broken woman at his side, and in the prison house there was one miserable blood-stained captive, wringing his hands and tearing his hair and gibbering in his mad auguish. Other Western members say that they would like | Great is the honor of the conquerors! They have reconstructed a family in a way just as legal, just as moral, and just as successful as that in which they have reconstructed the > Southern States. The Tribune, in its issue of the 18th instant, is particularly and justly severe on what are called Southern loyalists. One of this sweet set--the Hon. Mr. Blackburnresides in the Parish of Claiborne, Louisiana. which he represents in Congress. He is also editor of the Hind, "the official journal of the United States." from whose triped he denounces his opponents as "buzzards," "bottle-bellied toads," "skunks," "hogs," "dogs" and the like. "The inference may be drawn," says the Tribune, "that it is as necessary for a Republican to be as dirty in Louisiana as a Democrat in New York. Heaven help the negroes if they are to take their primary lessons in civilization and refinement from such an educa-"tor and champion!" Another loyalist denounced by the Tribune is the Hon. John A. Wimpey, of Georgia, who, "last September, sent to Noves & Co., No. 96 Wall street, *$100 for a quantity of counterfeit bills, and got nothing in return but some old newspapers, a stove, and a promise that if he would keep cool, the bills would soon be 'sent. 'I have been keeeping cool,' he

'metal,' and that with his influence he can 'make a big thing out of it.' It is a great pity that Mr. Wimpey (whose seat is con-'tested) is not a member of Congress."

Thus gaily does Greeley flout at the Southern loyalists, flout and jeer at the shameless renegades, whom he, with Colfax and Richardson, and Mrs. Calhoun ard Mrs. McFarland, and Beecher and Frothingham have made the legislators of these States, or the members of the national Congress. But henceforth Brown and Blodgett, and Mackey and Moses, have a hold upon Greeley & Co They can say, stay your hands, gentlemen; we are all playing the same game, and we houses, and we need not throw stones at each other; we all form one party, and from the crown of the head to the sole of the foot there is no soundness in it, but "only wounds and bruises and putrefying

Change of Base.

The Newark Journal says, that at a late religious meeting in Trenton, N. J., Rev. Mr. Kennedy called on a Mr. Noble, a wellknown Abolitionist, just returned from a visit to the South, to tell his observations and experience. Mr. Noble said:

"If he had known as much in the past of the true character of the black race as he knew through his visit to the Southern States, his conduct might have been different. While there, he took notice of what he saw and made not as well off as previously, and they were so thriftless that if they got a dollar they spent it in gewgaws and finery instead of providing for their actual necessities. He said they would not work steadily along, and conveyed the idea that there was little hope of their elevation."

Add to this what Mr. Pillsbury says; and let all honest Republicans prepare to retract and admit that the Democracy were in the right on the terrible issues of the past. To this complexion it must come at last. We have already published a part of Pillsbury's letter from South Carolina. Since then he has given further testimony which will intinsville can be credited, McFarland is a terest the Abolitionists, of which Parker Pillsbury was a leader for so many years. Speaking of the effects of reconstruction, he

"A majority of the Legislature of South Carolina are colored men, and many of them can neither write nor read. But several of their best friends assured me that they should never support such again for the sake of the colored race itself-not even to save the State from the Democratic party. Such a burlesque on the name of government, they declared, was never before seen. I have witnessed enough myself to easily understand that it may be so At the opening of the session colored votes were easily bought at five dollars, though later they rose on their price."

The Bone Bill.

The speech of Senator Corbin in favor of what is familiarly called the "Bone Bill, was both plausible and ingenious, and i must be admitted that the great apostle of Monopoly is consistent in defending for senator who monopolizes the sweets of at least nail a dozen offices, may well urge the tlemen, a monopoly of phosphate mining.

In one respect, however, Mr. Corbin is not consistent. He urges as a reason why the This case is taken out of the ordinary phosphate monopoly should be granted, that monopoly of the river phosphates, because another set of capitalists have been mining those phosphates without paying a royalty, which has never been demanded of them,

The Bone bill will come up again after the recess, and we are assured that the representatives of the companies now engaged in the phosphate business will then exhibit "dianapolis." The card which introduced covery and working of the phospatic deposits, and will be able to show the injustice of monopoly and the justice of free trade.

Mr. Corbin in his speech on the "Bone "Bill," sought to justify his Monopoly by a plausible suggestion that the South Carolina Railroad Company had been given "exclu-"sive privileges," for the purpose of inducing capitalists to build the road. The only privilege that the commany has, besides its exemption from taxation, is the sole right to build and operate a railroad within cer-Railroad Company enjoyed the exclusive right to build and operate railroads in the whole State, then, and then alone, would it be a monopoly of the same class as the "Bone Bill."
