Friends Falling Out.

History, we are told, has its vindications. But sometimes the vindications follow the record as closely as the moral follows the fable. Of this truth the Radicals of East Tennessee now furnish an illustration.

But now it is the Knoxville correspondent of the New York Tribune who denounces the Republican politicians of Tennessee, as "men whose prime quality seems to have been treachery to party and to country."

The Charleston News.

MONDAY, JANUARY 3, 1870.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Saturday last being a holiday there were no operations anywhere in the cotton market. George D. Prentice is critically ill at Louisville with rheumatism of the heart.

The receipts of the Union Pacific Railroad for November were $714,885. The expenses were $499,698.

The New York Times says that Rev. Dr. Samuel Osmond has adopted the Episcopal faith, and that his retirement from the Church of the Messiah, (Unitarian) previous to his departure for Europe, was made with this change in view.

A large number of merchants and property holders residing in Victoria, Nanaimo, and other places in British American Territory, have sent a memorial to President Grant in favor of a transfer of British Columbia to the United States.

Washington negroes have another grievance against Washington Radicals. The former attended Stanton's funeral in large numbers and had a good place in the procession, but the latter did not allow them to get into the papers.

The leading New York hotels are considering the propriety of cutting down their prices thirty-three per cent. They could well afford to put them down fifty per cent., and nearly all the hotels in the country could join them.

President Grant's recommendation for the repeal of the civil tenure law has fallen pretty flat. There has been no response to it whatever in the Senate, and it is said that body is not more favorably inclined to surrender its control over the offices than it was last spring.

The August Chronicle says: "Superintendent Hubert, of the State road, has been dismissed from office by Governor Bullock. The new officers of the road are said to be: Foster Blodgett, superintendent; A. L. Harris, master of transportation; W. H. Stallings, treasurer; Henry O. Hoyt, supervisor; James Mullen, master machinist; V. A. Gaskill, attorney for the road. The Legislature is considered safe against Bullock's plundering schemes. Bullock's last move has been the Radical party.

At the auction sale of Soranot coal in New York, last week, the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railway Company sold several thousand tons. Stove coal sold at $6 to $6.25, more than a dollar less per ton than at the last sale, but all other kinds advanced 10 to 20 cents per ton.

The managers of the proposed International Extension at Washington desire that they ask any appropriation from Congress. The citizens of Washington have already made a bona fide subscription of $600,000, and have asked Congress for authority to levy a tax of $500,000 more.

The various national bunting that fluttered at Ismailia, and the 1 1/2 and mighty potentates who interchanged felicitations with the Khedive at Suez, rendered a due tribute of honor to a work which allies three Continents, and which seems destined to produce the most remarkable changes in the commercial system of the world.

It is not disposed to give up the idea of getting the benefit of increased representation under the new census bill, and especially if the whole number is to be increased to 300. According to the usual order of things there would be no election of members of Congress hence.

Advances sheets of the Introduction to Mrs. Stowe's new book in the defence of herself and Lady Byron have been issued by the publishers. Mrs. Stowe reiterates that her assertions about Lord Byron in her famous Atlantic Monthly article are true.

John G. Walker, the gentleman having in charge the Chinese who reached St. Louis last week, in a communication to the St. Louis Dispatch, says: "There is little prospect at present that John will trespass on the domain of 'Sambo' to a serious extent. Those who have held out in hopes of procuring very cheap labor by importing it from the shores of Eastern Asia, are, I think, mistaken in their conclusion."

placed upon obtaining and retaining Chinese labor for agricultural work, except at the wages of the country where labor is performed, and much more is this the case for railroad labor. Mr. Walker believes, however, that a considerable number of excellent laborers may be found in California at from $20 to $25 per month, and they find themselves, or from $17 to $19 and found.

The County Commissioners of Horry are honest, hard-working, tax-paying Democrats. They held seventeen meetings during the year at a cost of $140 70. They levied a county tax of $4174, and spent only $3634. Now for the other side. The County Commissioners of Georgetown are Radicals to the core.

In his anger the Tribune writer confesses the utter unworthiness of the Republican leaders. "These are the men," he says, "who have passed and placed upon the books statute after statute for the oppression of those who failed to agree with them politically. They have plundered the public treasury, until we are almost on the verge of bankruptcy, and our free schools, which should be in full blast, have been for some time suspended."

For the question will at once occur: Why, then, did Republicanism ally itself with such men, confer office upon them, and further in every way their foolish and wicked policy? And why, after sanctioning their enormities for so many years, does it expose and denounce them now? Yet even this question need not be asked.

With a simplicity that is suggestive of lunacy, the Tribune correspondent goes on to tell why he now denounces his compatriots and bosom friends. "These," he cries, "are the men who, when it was ascertained that the sceptre was about to pass from them 'forever, commenced intriguing to keep the 'riag' in power, or to break up the Republican party of the State. These are the men who, now, having turned their backs upon those with whom they once acted, and 'having succeeded in placing their enemies in power, prate about proscription, and 'speak of the policy of the Republican party as being too proscriptive. If these traitors had proved true to their professions, they would have pursued the line of duty, instead of being 'led by their inordinate ambition, the Republican party of our State would have been in power now, and would now command the respect of the nation and of the State."

"As it is, we are degraded in the estimation of our friends and utterly despised by our enemies, who will spare no opportunities during this convention to keep us down." This is truly lamentable! We feel it at the heart's core. That the party should have wallowed in bloody mire with these swine, for years, soliciting nothing but their company, and should at length have been deserted, is an event that might draw tears from a stone. No crime that they might not have freely committed—perjury, burglary, arson, murder! No crime that they did not commit with impunity; yea, with laudation. They were defended; they were encouraged; they were gorged with plunder and with blood. Alas! all in vain. They acted with "us," cries the Radical, not reflecting that he is making a terrible revelation. "They 'turned their backs against us,' he bitterly adds, not observing that he is giving even to these demons the semblance of virtue.

Britain may look with just suspicion and natural chagrin upon an achievement which her greatest engineer pronounced to be impracticable, but which a Frenchman has actually brought to a substantial conclusion. Notwithstanding the unexpected obstruction of the Serapean rock which revealed itself almost at the last moment and effectually postponed the reduction of the channel to its intended depth, there can be no question that this difficulty can be overcome by a comparatively trifling expenditure; that ships of 2000 tons register have passed through safely; and that two ships of 1500 tons burden passing through per day will maintain the canal and pay good interest to the Khedive and shareholders. Contrary to England's prognostications, the canal is a success.

But now this success gives all Southern Europe an advantage over England in the trade with Asia, Russia, Turkey, Austria, Italy, France, Spain are all nearer than she to those populous nations whom she has made tributary to her power, whether by policy or by arms. The opening of the Suez Canal is equivalent to the removing of England from her Indian possessions a distance of five thousand five hundred miles. Alas, however, has the star in the maritime race, and it is not demonstrated that sailing vessels generally will, or can, take the Suez route. Yet, while her American Colonies are snapping the bonds that unite them to the mother country, her Asiatic Colonies are also drifting away. It was chiefly as a commercial dependency that Hindostan retained any value, after the wealth of its rajahs had been plundered. What is its worth to England now?

The potentes present at the inauguration indicate what nations expect to reap the lion's share of the trade. Some will be disappointed. The Prince and Princess of Holland and the Crown Prince of Prussia, who left unceremoniously, in disgust, represent kingdoms which will reap comparatively small benefit from the opening of the new pathway of commerce. But Austria and France will be largely benefited; and it was policy more than ambition which led the Egyptian Viceroy to assign to them so important a place in the celebration. They are his special customers. As for himself, this work to which he has lavishly contributed makes the Viceroy superior to the Sultan. It raises Egypt from the servitude of two thousand years. It restores the old commerce which ministered to her mysterious and grand civilization in ages level with the dawn of history. It will enable Cairo to dictate to Constantinople.

The County Commissioners of Horry are honest, hard-working, tax-paying Democrats. They held seventeen meetings during the year at a cost of $140 70. They levied a county tax of $4174, and spent only $3634. Now for the other side. The County Commissioners of Georgetown are Radicals to the core. They held two hundred meetings at a cost of over $2000. They have spent $10,000 and are $8000 in debt. And Horry is the larger county. The difference between $3634 and $18,000 represents the value to Horry of a Democratic county administration.
