THURSDAY, JANUARY 13, 1870.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

—Gold weakened, in New York, yesterday, closing at 21¾.

—In New York cotton favored buyers, closing at 25½c.

—In Liverpool cotton closed dull; uplands 11 5-16d.

—There were sixteen persons beheaded last year in Germany.

—The latest sensational drama in New York is entitled "Divorce."

—The garreters are said to have resumed operations in New York.

—The Great Bank of Montevideo, which was lately compelled to suspend, has resumed.

—General Lee's college, in Virginia, has twenty-nine professors, and three hundred and forty-six cadets.

—Mazzini and Garibaldi both complain that they are growing old, and with their advancing age, the prospect of new Italian revolutions dims.

—It is said that the railway between Jubbulpore and Nagpore, the missing link in the direct communication to Bombay, will be completed by May next.

—The French Government has decided to allow Ledru Rollin, Tibaldi, and others to avail themselves of the amnesty lately granted for the benefit of political offenders.

—By the latest modification of the French press laws, the censorship of all foreign journals has been abolished, and the right to sell all French papers in the streets has been restored.

—Three men have been arrested in New Jersey, charged with conspiracy to defraud the heirs of Richard W. Maher out of a large amount of property in Georgia, by means of a forged marriage certificate.

—The London Daily News of Monday contains a communication controverting the position of a writer in the Times on American finances, and demonstrating that, by the difference in exchange, United States five-twenty bonds at 86 are really higher in price than British consols at 92.

—A letter from Richmond Virginia says: "The agent here of the Virginia and Tennessee Railroad says that his line is daily crowded to the extent of its capacity with negro laborers going South and Southwest. Whatever may be the more remote effect of this remarkable exodus, it is certain that it saves the negroes and the State from the quasi famine threatened by the failure of the crops last summer.

—The Paris Moniteur of Saturday states that after the 10th of May next the privileged admission of cotton fabrics into France, as temporary importations, will cease. The merchants of Bordeaux held an excited meeting last week, at which speeches were made and resolutions adopted, denouncing commercial treaties, and protesting against the abolition of restrictions on importations in foreign bottoms.

—The Paraguay question is looming up. It is said there is a proposition now under consideration in the Cabinet to renew the offer of mediation between the allies and Lopez, and in case the offer is not accepted the United States Government to withdraw its representatives from the capitals of Brazil and the other allied powers, and dispatch to the scene a sufficient naval force to reinstate Lopez in the possession of his authority.

—The Washington letter of Saturday says: "The National Intelligencer died this morning at an early hour for the fourth time. This pitch, however, it is not only dead, but buried, and beyond resurrection. Its last proprietor, in penning its obituary, takes care (like Cervantes with his hero, Don Quixote,) to give ample notice that no more sallies can possibly occur. The coast is therefore clear, and I learn that parties have already arranged for the issue of a purely Democratic paper at the metropolis."

—There was a balloon ascension at Atlanta, Ga., on New Year's Day, Dr. Gilbert Hasse going up alone, and the Era tells the following in relation to it: "When the balloon had reached the height of about one mile, those who were watching it were horrified to see it explode and collapse in the upper air. For about an hour the anxiety was very intense, when, to the astonishment of every one, the doctor rode in sound in body. The doctor fell about three miles out of town, and the only injury he sustained was a few scratches from some bushes in which he fell."

—The publication of the letter from Berlin, Prussia, of Dr. Gneist, in regard to the Schœppes, father and son, and their conviction there for forgery, theft, &c., has reopened discussion of the case of Dr. Paul Schœppe, convicted of murder at Carlisle, Pa. In the Berlin trial, one of the most important witnesses was a locksmith whom Paul Schœppe had employed to make the key with which Paul Schœppe robbed his employer's safe, although the locksmith was innocent of Schœppe's purpose in procuring the key. That witness is now in New York City, and called at the office of the Staats Zeitung to corroborate the statement in Professor Gneist's letter. It is now suspected that the testimonials of character Schœppe published some weeks ago are forgeries.

—The Nevada earthquakes, which occurred at the close of 1869, were very heavy, the earth being in a constant tremor for nine hours. The first shock occurred about six o'clock on the evening of December 27, and lasted ten or fifteen seconds, alarming and arousing the whole city. The shock was preceded by a sort of rumbling sound of very short duration, when down came the main "quake" in full force, doing considerable damage. At about ten o'clock the same evening, when the frightened inhabitants had succeeded in chasing the pallor from their cheeks and declaring that they rather liked earthquakes, came another shock, and there was another grand stampede for the streets. This shock seemed to come more directly from the west than the first. Between these main shocks there were constant tremors, scarcely amounting to distinct shocks. In fact, from six o'clock Sunday evening until three o'clock Monday morning the earth was at rest scarcely ten minutes at a time. A great many ladies were so badly frightened that they fainted; children cried and clung to the garments of their parents; dogs howled, and the horses and mules in the stables broke their halters, and, crowding together, raised a terrible hubbub. In one hotel up town three ladies fainted at one time; one made a dash to jump out of a window, while another, in slippers and night clothes, made a break out into the street, with her husband in full chase. In the big hotel down town the ladies got into the parlor and held a grand pow-wow, which was about half prayer meeting and half lunatic asylum. At Dayton the shocks were very severe, shaking bottles and crockery from the shelves, and creating a general panic. In Carson City the shocks were also very severe, and brittle ware had to suffer. On Six Mile Canon, a short distance above the Empire State Mill, a boulder weighing some ten tons rolled down off the mountain into the road, where it now lies. In the vicinity of Steamboat Springs the earthquake seems to have been more severe than in any other place in the country. At the time of the first shock jets of water, fifteen or twenty in number, and of great volume, were thrown up to the height of twenty feet, and during the night twenty-six shocks were felt—four very heavy ones. The mines were not in the slightest degree injured by the earthquake. The men working below felt the shocks, but were but little alarmed, and continued working.

Climate and Immigration.

The South has an advantage over other sections of the Union which no misgovernment can neutralize—a benignant climate. Elsewhere winter arrests the operations of the working man. The mechanic is housed or suffers terribly. The mill-wheel is frozen by the stream upon which its revolutions depend. The fields are locked up by frost or imbedded in a thick pall of snow. "The ruler of the inverted year" paralyzes industry by the touch of his icy sceptre.

But all the while with us, the mellow earth, the kindly heavens, the unchained exulting streams, minister to the wants of men. A few brisk winds, a few frosty mornings, a few sharp bracing days, are all the rigors of winter that we know—if rigors be indeed the name for that salutary discipline which girds the loins and tightens the sinews for the labors of the advancing year. The contrast only serves to lend a charm to the gracious season, which, like the Scandinavian mother, tosses her nursling into the snow-wreath only that she may take him back, thrilling and all aglow, to the warmth and refreshment of her bounteous breast. Thank God! we have something that Congress cannot reconstruct, that a motley Legislature with its musky exhalations cannot becloud or befoul, that Scott, Kimpton & Co. cannot "bull" up or "bear" down—something inalienably our own—

"These days so sweet, so calm, so bright—
The bridal of the earth and sky!"

This advantage which we have enjoyed without realizing how great it is, is beginning to exercise its just influence, and will contribute more and more, in the years to come, toward our prosperity. First the spoils of war invited adventurers, who flocked Southward, like buzzards, to feed upon the dead carcass of slavery. Of these obscene birds we have had more than our share. Then came invalids, like Mr. Derby and Mr. Weed, in quest of health. Then came self-indulgent reformers, like Mrs. Stowe, athirst for oranges. Then came capitalists, covetous of cotton. Soon we shall have an important and numerous addition to our population in the immigration of laboring men from Europe. Already many of the English artisans are petitioning the government for the use of the national vessels to transport them to the tropical colonies of the Empire. But these islands cannot compete with a continent. When once the tide has fairly set in, it will seek America. And in all America there are no fields so inviting as those whose white fleece have clothed the nakedness of the world—no clime so propitious as that which "warms in the sun and refreshes in the breeze" above us and around us, and makes the dreariest season of our year the bland harbinger of spring.

Mr. Cornell, of Ithaca, New York, has recently imported some English builders into that city. Of these, one of the most intelligent has written several letters to the London Spectator, giving his impressions in regard to this country. He finds the wages of labor higher here than in England, even relatively, although the expense of living is also higher. Food is more abundant, but with less variety from meal to meal and from day to day. Clothing is coarser. The ale is scant and poor, and the whiskey deadly. But the great trouble is the climate. His fellow workmen are obliged to betake themselves to some other employment than their proper business during the severe months of winter. They become glass-blowers, wheelwrights, hunters, teamsters and the like. And the result is that the quantity and quality of the work done is sensibly affected, according to the old saw, "a jack of all trades is good at none."

The letters are very suggestive, and to us very encouraging. For we have more than the physical advantages of the North, and in addition, enjoy the generous climate for which the frost-bitten artisan is yearning. The system of slavery, which he was taught to regard as a degradation of labor, has perished. The arts of unprincipled men who have subsisted upon social disorder are losing their power. Thus the main obstacles to immigration have disappeared or are disappearing. We shall soon have a fair field for industrial competition with the Northern States. No fear for the result! We can offer to capitalist and laborer work for every month in the year, from January to December—gliding water wheels, when the wheels of the North are locked with ice; free rivers, when the rivers of the North are frozen; open roads and clear fields, when at the North the whole country is one unbroken drift of snow; a winter balmier than a Northern spring. The Northern game of abolition is played out; that sentiment which was capital has dissipated its resources; that policy which made Mason's and Dixon's Line a Chinese wall to the foreign immigrant has overreached itself. And now the way Southward is open, and the people and the land invite!

We shall have laborers from Europe beyond all question. And we shall, as certainly, draw them from the North and the Northwest.

We hoped that the resolution of inquiry into the management of the affairs of the Blue Ridge Railroad Company would be adopted. The public want to know, among other things, why $75,000 was paid to the contractors for doing $1500 worth of work.

SENATOR LESLIE vows and declares that "Democrats will steal." Well, Mr. Leslie was a Democrat himself, until it became more profitable to don the cloak of Republicanism.

AN attempt is making to upset the Land Commissioner, and to have, in his gracious stead, a land commissioner for each county. But Leslie is "an honest man!"

IF Senator Corbin does really want to know who "Free Trade" is, we doubt not that his curiosity, in that particular, can be easily gratified.

The City Extension Bill.

We print this morning the concluding sections of the Charleston Extension bill. This bill, if passed, will injure every capitalist and every workingman in Charleston. The enlargement of the city will add to the city expenditures, and this must be met by additional taxation, which will be felt by all classes.

If the Radicals want an election in April next, they can have it. They can turn out Mayor Pillsbury without increasing the cost of the city government. There is no justification for orgies like that at the Guard-house yesterday, when hundreds of dollars were spent in regaling the City Fathers and the city policemen. But when Charleston is extended to the "Six Mile House," or to the limits of the old Parish of St. Philip's, there must be more taxes, higher rents, a further depreciation of real estate, and a greater inability to meet the municipal liabilities.

A rumor is abroad that the Radicals desire to crush out Charleston, because of the "rebellious temper" of its people. The first blow may come in the shape of this bill to extend the limits of the city.

PRATT'S "ASTRAL" OIL

Unlike many other Illuminating Oils, is perfectly pure and free from all adulterations or mixtures of any kind. It emits no offensive smell while burning, gives a soft and brilliant light, and can be used with the same assurance of safety as gas. Chemists pronounce it the best and safest Illuminating Oil ever offered to the public; and Insurance Companies endorse and urge upon consumers the use of the "Astral" Oil in preference to any other. It is now burned by thousands of families, and in no instance has any accident occurred from its use; a lamp filled with it, if upset and broken, will not explode. To prevent adulteration, the "Astral" Oil is packed only in the Guaranty Patent Cans, of 1 gallon and 5 gallons each, and each can is sealed in a manner that cannot be counterfeited. Every package with uncut seal we warrant. Be sure and get none but the genuine article, Pratt's "Astral" Oil, for sale by dealers everywhere, and at wholesale and retail by the proprietors

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

Tenth appearance of the celebrated young English Tragedian, MR. NEIL WARNER. Fourth night of the popular young American actor, MR. JOSEPH T. FANNIN.

THIS (Thursday) EVENING, January 13, 1870, Mrs. Lovell's delicious play, in five acts, entitled INGOMAR, THE BARBARIAN.

What love is, if thou wouldst be taught,
Thy heart must teach alone,—
Two souls with but a single thought,
Two hearts that beat as one.

And whence comes love? like morning's light,
It comes without thy call;
And how dies love?—a spirit bright,
Love never dies at all!

Ingomar.....Mr. NEIL WARNER.
Polydor.....Mr. JOS. T. FANNIN.
Parthenia.....Miss LILLIE ELDRIDGE.

On FRIDAY, Mr. WARNER'S BENEFIT. Shakespeare's Grand Tragedy of HAMLET, PRINCE OF DENMARK, (With a Powerful Cast.)

Hamlet.....Mr. WARNER.
Claudius, King of Denmark.....Mr. FANNIN.

Mr. Fannin has kindly offered to sustain the character of the King, on this occasion, for Mr. Warner's Benefit.

On SATURDAY NIGHT—MACBETH, KING OF SCOTLAND.

Macbeth.....Mr. NEIL WARNER.
Lady Macbeth.....Mrs. ISABELLA PRESTON.
