Steadily pouring down—
Drip, drip, drip,
It kept on its tireless play;
And the poor little woman signed, "Ah, me!
What a wretched, weary day!"

An eager hand at the door,
A step as of one in haste,
A kiss upon her lips once more,
An arm around her waist;
Throb, throb, throb,
Went her little heart, grateful and gay,
As she thought, with a smile, "Well, after all,
It isn't so dull a day !"

Forgot was the plashing rain,
And the lowering skies above,
For the sombre room was lighted again
By the blessed sun of love;
Love, love, love,
Ran the little wife's murmur'd lay;
"Without, it may threaten and frown if it will,
Within, what a glorious day!"

LITERARY GOSSIP.

-The Scientific American predicts that, in less than twenty years illustrations will be as common a feature of daily papers as market reports are now.

-The Revue des Deux Mondes, which is generally considered the best European magazine, has a circulation of twenty-one thousand

-The acts of the Œcumenical Council are to be commemorated in a history, which is to be published in six magnificent folio volumes, in a most luxurious style. -An elaborate poem by George Eliot is to appear in the April number of Macmillan's Magazine. It will be looked for with interest -but it is a great pity she does not keep to her novels. -There is some talk in London of starting a great international financial paper. The capital is fixed at £250,000, half of which is said to have been already subscribed. The elect of the scheme is to kill the Times.

Stone of the Journal of Commerce, Wood of the News, Marble of the World and Brick of the Democrat put their heads together and make a new conglomerate pavement." -All of John Stuart Mill's writings have been translated and published in Russia, except his essays on "Liberty" and on "Utilitarianism," and we learn that governmental permission has at last been granted for the publi--Nearly one-third of the books published in England go through two or more editions. The remaining two-thirds are largely composed of purely ephemeral literature, such as pamphlets, sermons, nursery-tales and the like-works that either enjoy a very limited sale or none at all.

-Speaking of The Holy Grail, the London Examiner says: "Mr. Tennyson is distinctively the poet of sadness; and his present poem is the very saddest thing he has ever written. The Holy Grail might have been called the History of an Enthusiasm by a sympathetic

-On the first appearance of "Paradise Lost," now considered a gem of the purest water, Waller wrote concerning it: "The old blind schoolmaster, John Milton, hath published a tedious poem on the fall of man; if its length be not considered a merit, it has no other."

-The number of Every Saturday for April 9, to be published next week, will contain the opening chapters of Dicken's new story, "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," the first long work from his pen since 1864. It is to be printed here from advance sheets, simultaneous with the publication in London, and will be accompanied by all the original illustrations from the designs by Mr. S. L. Firdes.

-A curious book is announced for immediate publication in London "on a hitherto neglected subject of our social annals," to be called "A History of the Rod (Flagellation and Flagellants) in all Countries and Down to the Present Time." The work will be adorned with numerous characteristic engravings, and the author (a Rev. Mr. Cooper) assures the reader that his sole aim has been to give, to the best of his ability, a true history of the rod as an instrument for correctional purposes in the church, the State and the family.

-Mr. Samuelson, member of Parliament for Nottingham, and owner of several manufactories in England and Saxony, has lately published a little book concerning the condition of workingmen in Germany and Switzerland. He says that drunkenness is the greatest curse upon the material and intellectual progress of the English workmen; and as an effective means against this bane, he advises that instead of the formation of temperance unions, or of totally closing beer houses, German beer should be introduced in place of the heavy adulterated English beer. 2-An autograph letter of Goethe, written in 1793, has been lately found among the old correspondence of the well known publishing house, Vieweg of Brunswick. It censists of but two sentences, and is as follows: "Accompanying this letter I send you a manuscript in a sealed envelope. If Herr Vieweg declines to purchase it for 200 friedrichs d'or, he will please return me the packet without breaking the scal." The publisher, who was a prudent man, did not like the idea of buying a pig in a poke, and took a few days to reflect; after which he tore open the envelope and found the poem of Hermann and Dorothea. We need not say that his 200 friedrichs d'or could not have been better invested.

-The French paper, the Gaulois, which is doing all it can to rival and supplant the Figuro, offers two bottles of champagne to every one who will subscribe to it for the next six months. The Figuro, to trump the Gaulois' premium of a case of champagne, has made arrangements with an armorer to supply all its subscribers with a waiscoat-pocket six-barrelied revolver at half-price-namely, 15 francs so that all readers of the Figure, when travelling by railway, may escape the fate of Dr. Constantine James. But the possession of a pistol may bring some of the subscribers to the galleys, and thus subscribers be lost. The Figaro pathetically says it will feel richly rewarded if its idea should save only one life from a railway assassin.

AN EMIGRATION SCHEME.—The Northern Pa-AN EMIGRATION SCHEME.—The Northern ra-cific Raliroad has a vast emigration scheme on foot. They have a land grant equivalent to a strip of land twenty miles wide from the head of Lake Superier to the Pacific Ocean. To stimulate emigration to these lands, and to se-cure labor to build their road, the company have organized the grandest scheme of emi-gration ever devised, and they propose to send Senator Schurz, ex-Secretary McCulloch and ex-Governor Marshall to Europe to stimulate the desired emigration. They propose to offer the desired emigration. They propose to offer the emigrant abundant employment in build-ing the road for the first year or two after his arrival. Then when he has finished his work Ing the Foad for the first year or two after his arrival. Then when he has finished his work for the company he is to have a farm of 40, 80, or 160 acres, with a neat frame dwelling-house ready erected thereon, and a lot of reasonable size fenced in, all at the expense of the company. The terms of payment are so long and on so low interest, that they cannot prove a burden to the poorest. It is expected that the surplus wages received for constructing the road will stock the farm and provide the tools, so that every person employed in the construction of the road may, as soon as it is finished, go to raising the corops, which it will bring to market. The company will manufacture the houses, by the thousand, exactly alike. By the plan thus devised, labor for the road is secured and a population on the line of the road to furnish it business. The idea is novel and significant, and if effectually carried out will bring wealth and development to an immense portion of the Northwest.
