A BELLIGERENT SHE .- An incident occurred during the parade yesterday that was evidently a case of woman's rights. The crowd, in the vicinity of the Mills House, witnessed a flerce attack made by a white female upon one of the sterner sex. Although a parasol was the only weapon used, legs did their duty nobly, and the victim of a woman's wrath left incontinently. The casus belli is unknown.

UNITED STATES COURT-HON. GEORGE S BRNAN, Judge, Presiding .- Yesterday, General eary, in behalf of David T. Grice, convicted of mail robbery, made a motion for a new trial. After General Geary concluded his argument, the case was continued to hear the United States District Attorney's reply, as several jury cases had been set for trial at 12 M. These were then taken up, and occupied the court up to adjournment.

PROFESSOR SACHTLEBEN .- We, are gratified to announce that this estimable gentleman and eminent teacher, who has won so enviable a name throughout this and neighboring States by his ripe scholarship and signal success as a professor in the State University, has returned from his visit to California, he ving found no more congenial and inviting field for his rare talents than is presented by our good old city. Professor Sachtleben is now making arrangements by which he expects, within a week or ten days, to open a first-class classical and practical school for youths. He will certainly be a great acquisition to the educational advantages of Charleston

THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH .-The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopai Church, South, which convenes in Memphis, Tennessee, early in May, will be, for several reasons, one of the most important sessions of that body which has ever been held. The General Conference, for the first time since its existence, will be composed of an equal number of 'ay and clerical delegates, and besides this there seems to be not only a general desire on the part of the laity, but an increased desire on the part of the clergy, for a restoration of what | geon; Rev. W. S. Bowman, chaplain. 4s known as the old two-year rule-the last General Conference having extended the term to four years. This change has never been popular with a large number of the laity, who now desire its repeal. This and other important matters will, perhaps, be acted upon.

SAVANNAH IN THE COMING REGATTA.-The Savannah Advertiser, in alluding to the invitation to the boat clubs of that city to participate in our regatta, under the auspices of the Charleston Agrigultural Society next week, says: "The question of accepting this invitation involves one or two difficulties. All of the various crews are busily engaged in preparing for our own annual regatia. and would find it hard to break in upon their valuable time. Moreover, the shell boats-of which we have several-would not, with any degree of hope, undertake to pull in the rough Charleston waters, against canoe-built crafts. Yet, even with objections so important, the King Cotton Club, we learn, indirectly propose to enter their famous boat, manned by a picked crew, to compete for the prizes offered by the society (the latter are altogether too limited in value for any enthusiasm that might be engendered,) and if the society would consult the true interests of boating, a greater incentive for competition will be offered before the day of the races. At our own regatta, last year, nothing less than $150 was given."

The line marched up Broad to State street, up It to Chalmers, down it to Meeting, thence to the fire well in front of the 1 'ic buildings. The Pioneer was first tried, and in a few moments there were two or more engines at every well within one hundred vards of the spot, and a casual visitor would have thought, from the number of engines at work, and the bustle, that a tremendous fire was in progress in the vicinity. About 6 o'clock the exercise was terminated, and the firemen carried their apparatus home.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Academy of Music-Somnambula. This melodious opera was well performed last night by the Richings Opera Troupe, to the great satisfaction of the largest audience of the week. Mrs. Rernard (Amina) was thoroughly at home in the music of her role, and was called before the curtain after the second and third acts. The brilliant "Ah! non Giunge!" with which the opera ends, was admirably sung by this accomplished artist.

The voice of Mr. Pierre Bernard (Elvino) is hard and ansympathetic, but he sang with spirit and good effect, especially in the beautiful quartette of the second act.

The Count Rodolpho of Mr. Henry Drayton was a finished performance, and although his voice was veiled and rather obscure in "VI Ravviso," he made a decided hit by his careful singing and his easy and natural acting. The Lisa of Miss Mischka was very good, as was the Donna Teresa of Mrs. Massen. The humor of Mr. White (Alessio) was rather coarse for this latitude. Perhaps this artist forgets the advice of Hamlet to to the player, "And let those that play your clowns speak no more than is set down for them."

The choruses were capitally done, especially the Phantom chorns, which was sung with a pre cision and an attention to light and shade, which cannot be easily surpassed. The scenery, moreover, was very pretty, particularly the set scene, in the third act.

To-night, we have Wallace's Maritana-to our mind one the most pleasing operas on the English stage.

CRUMBS .- Enoch Murrell and Edward Ray, the boys who stole several valuable Masonic jewels day pefore yesterday, have been committed to

The Mayor's Court now contributes but little in the way of fines to the city treasury.

FIRE .- A few minutes before 12 o'clock last night flames were seen issuing from the windows of the building occupied by Messrs. C. N. Averill & Son, on the east side of East Bay street, a few doors below THE NEWS Office. The alarm was given and the engines came on the ground, and the firemen worked gallantly to check the fire, which had gained considerable headway and threatened to destroy the buildings adjoining. By 1 o'clock, however, the flames, which had been confined to the one building, were extinguished. Everything in the building was destroyed. The amount of the loss could not be ascertained. Both the building and stock, we learn, were partially insured. We are sorry to add that Mr. Jerry Cohan, o the Palmetto Fire Engine Company, fell off the roof of a building adjoining the house which was ompanies was over, they put up their apparatus, and, by arrangement, assembled on Meeting street and were formed into line, the head of the column resting on Market street. After the line was formed, it was headed by Muller's band, and marched to Mr. Bennett's residence, at the foot of Montague street. On arriving there, threetimes-three cheers were given for General Lee who in a short time appeared on the porch, and was lustily cheered, the band playing Dixle. Chief Engineer Nathan then stated that the firemen had come to pay their respects to the General. The Firemasurs were then introduced to the General, and extend ed to him a hearty welcome to the city. Loud calls were then made upon General Lee to speak, but Hon. C. G. Memminger stepped forward and stated that the condition of the General's lungs would not permit of his making a speech, and he had deputed him to respond and express his feelings at the compliment paid him. When Mr. Memminger ceased, the crowd still called upon the General, not to make a speech, but only to "say one word." After these calls had continued for several moments, the General said: "I thank you, gentlemen, for the compliment you have paid me The reason assigned by Mr. Memminger prevents me from saying more; I can only say, thank you. After repeated cheers for the General, and 'Dixie" and "Bonnie Blue Flag" by the band, the line was reformed, proceeded down town and disbanded. There were not less than two thousand persons present, all of whom united in paying their respect to their loved chieftain.

THE WHITE FIREMEN PRESENT THEIR RE-SPECTS TO GENERAL LEE.

A Noble Welcome.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

Report of the Committee on the Reading Room-Adoption or Plans.

An adjourned meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held at the hall, No. 10 Broad street, yesterday morning, President Mure in the chair. The president stated the object of the meeting was to take final action on the report of the Committee on the Exchange and Reading-Room, and the reports were then read by Mr. S.

On motion of Mr. John Hanckel, the reports were unanimously adopted, and the same com-mittee requested to carry out the plans proposed. Mr. James Globes offered an amendment, which was accepted, that the agreement between the Chamber and Mr. Riggs be for two years, with the privilege of three additional. A letter was then read from Senator Sawyer, stating that he had received the memorial in regard to the Postoffice, and had presented the same to the Senate and the House. Mr. F. M. Burdell was elected a member, and the Chamber adjourned.

The following are the reports of the committee:
The committee appointed under resolutions of the Chamber, declaring the expediency of establishing a Merchant's Exchange and Readingthem, with instructions to inquire into and report as to the best means of accomplishing the obiect, respectfully submit:

port as to the best means of accomplishing the object, respectfully submit:

That, in the opinion of your committee, it is desirable that the location to be selected for such a purpose should be near the accent centre of our commerce, being in the immediate vicinity of the banks, the daily press, the cotton market, the shipping, and other great interests of the port, and not remote from the Castomhouse.

Your committee would nerefore indicate the junction of Broad street and the Bay as the most eligible site for a Merchant's Exchange and Reading-Room.

building both upon Brood street and the By B to be altered and improvel, as also exhibited in accompanying plans.

Mr. Riggs, in his conferences with your committee, has evinced wery desire to forward the interest of the Chamier, and the convenience of its members, and your committee feel convinced that his proposals to them have not been based upon considerations of pecuniary profit.

He has named the moderate sum of $600 per annum as rent for the rooms when completed, according to stipulations.

Your committee would 'urther report, that Mr. Ladder, of the Courier offce, offers to take charge of the reading-room to beestablished in one wing of the building, to furnsh and keep on file the latest papers from the principal cities of the Union, being his exchange, and also the journals of the principal cities of Europe, with such pamphlets and periodicid as he can obtain for this purpose from his oftee, or as may be contributed by members of the Chamber. His personal services and superntendence, with the exchange papers, journals and periodicals above referred to, he will contribute without charge. It being understood that my additional papers or books required, or shouldthe constant attendance of a person at the rooms be deemed necessary, the expense of the same to be borne by the Chamber.

adopted by the Chamber.

The committee appointed by the Chamber on the subject of an exchange and reading-room, whose report at your lastmeeting was recommitted to them, for the purpose of considering any other proposals that might be tendered, do further respectfully report:

other proposals that might be tendered, do further respectfully report:

That a proposition has been made to your committee by Mr. John B. Isilite, president of the People's Bank, to rent to the Chamber, for the Sum of $600 per annum, he second story of the building known as Courtmay's bookstore, No. 9 Broad street. The necessary repairs to the broken ceiling and walls of the room, and the proper whitening of same, to be done by Mr. Laftte; but no extra work to be furnished.

Your committee having duly considered this proposition and carefully xamined the premises referred to, are of opinior that neither the location of this building or the access to the second story, are at all adapted to the wants or convenience of the members of this body.

The room is also unnecessarily large for the purposes of the chamber, and to divide it into compartments for committeeer reading-rooms, and properly furnish the same, would be attended with greater expense than your committee feel justified in recommending to be incurred. For these and other considerations affecting the interests of the Chamber, our committee would again bring before you tien former report, and ask for some definite acion upon the same, or else for the discharge of year committee.

Respectfully submitted.

Meeting of the Charleston Bar-Tribute of Respect.

A meeting of the Charleston Bar was held in the Equity court-room at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, to pay a tribute of respect to the memo ry of the late Hon. Richard Yeadon. Nearly all As soon as the inspection of the white fire of the members of the Bar were present. A few minutes after 10 o'clock, John Phillips, Esq., called the meeting to order, and on his mo tion, Hon. Isaac W. Hayne was called to the chair C. R. Miles, Esq., elected secretary, and Hon. R. B. Carpenter requested to take a seat beside the chairman.

The chairman announced the object of the eeting, and briefly alluded to the mental en dowments and moral attributes of the deceased. Hon. W. D. Porter, after a few eulogistic remarks, introduced the following preamble and resolutions, and urged their adoption as an expression of thefeelings of the Bar:

pression of thefeelings of the Bar:

The Bar is again assembled, after a brief interval, for the discharge of melancholy offices. Another brother has ceased from his labors; another soldier has fallen in the ranks, "weary with the march of life." One by one the sheaves are being gathered to the harvest of death. We know that all shall soon be taken. We only do not know who shall be next in order.

Richard Yeadon was born in the year 1862; in the year 1820 he graduated at the South Carolina College with the second honors of his class, and in the year 1824 he was enrolled a member of the Bar. After a long and useful career, professional the year 1820 he graduated at the South Carolina College with the second honors of his class, and in the year 1824 he was enrolled a member of the Bar. After a long and useful career, professional and public, he was on Monday last called away from this earthly estate, and with him have gone from us forever great talents, great industry and great learning, indomitable energy, and an integrity of purpose and conduct worthy of all initiation. Whatever good men can leave behind them, he has left—the recollection of his virtues and the incentives of a pure and noble example.

Mr. Yeadon was essentially a lawyer. The structure of his mind, and his habits of thought and study, fitted him for this profession, of all others. He was capable of a severe logic, and of great subtlety of distinction, while his varied reading and his singular tenacity of memory supplied him with ample resources of expression and illustration. Forensic discussion was his delight. He thoroughly enjoyed the rapture of the strife. He went into a cause with his whole soul, when satisfied of the justice of his case, and devoted himself to the service of his client without reserve of any kind. With clear and acute perceptions, and a love of labor that was measured only by his wonderful capacity of endurance, it may well be supposed that he was a thorough worker, and a most formidable antagonist. And so he was. How he could do so much, and such various work, and dit all at one time, with such completeness, was a marvel to all who knew him. His sagacity and earnestness, his knowledge of principles and searching preparation, would have given him a distinguished position as a lawyer at any Bar in the country. His last elaborate principles and searching preparation, would have given him a distinguished position as a lawyer at any Bar in the country. His last elaborate principles and searching preparation, would have given him a distinguished position as a lawyer at any Bar in the country. His last elaborate principles and searching preparation, would hav scorn. He had moral and civil courage; and this is not only intrinsically a most noble possession, but it is practically a quality or attribute of vastly greater value to a community than is generally supposed. The man who, in times of popular delusion or passion, can and will throw himself across the angry current, and, stemming it with insty resistance, labor to break or stay its headlong fury, is a public benefactor, and must have a large element of heroism in his nature. An act of this sort oftentimes recalls the public mind to its propriety; but whether it succeeds in doing this or not, it is, at all times, eminently deserving of the public respect to a nently deserving of the public respect to a far higher degree than is usually accorded to it.

far higher degree than is usually accorded to it. Mr. Yeadon was a man capable of this sort of self-sacrifice or martyrdom. He had the independence to speak his thought, however unpopular it falight be, and the courage to stand alone whenever the multitude declared against him. His whole history, as known to us all, is an attestation of the truth of this statement. He was a sturdy, strong, conseientious, self-reliant man. He would not patter with his convictions; he would not for any price or consideration debase. would not for any price or consideration debase or violate the moral seuse—the conscience—that God had planted in his bosom. His true and honood had planted in his obsolut. In the aim ton-est counsel was always at the services of the com-munity, but he gave it heedless of personal con-sequences; and in all matters of public concern he manifested the fidelity and self-denial of the true patriot. Those who differed from him, con-fessed his honesty; while those who agreed with him, felt that they possessed in him a pillar of strength.

lessed his honesy, who chose was agreed with him, felt that they possessed in him a pillar of strength.

And so, in all matters of private trust and duty, Mr. Yeadon was scrupulously exact. His integrity was the innucliate jewel of his soul. No temptation could make him betray a trust or seduce him into any wilful dereliction of duty. "Integer vitae celevis que punts" may with perfect truth be written on the shaft that will mark his resting place.

And this friend and brother of ours, so endowed with high intellectual and moral attributes, was also large-hearted, generous and sincere. If Heaven, in reward of his many excellencies, gave him affluence, he became the almoner of Heaven, in grateful recognition of its blessings. His heart could not shut itself against the pleadings of want or the cry of distress. He knew by experience that it was more blessed to give than to receive, and, in accordance with a law of God's moral economy, he enjoyed to the full the luxury of doing good. How many will miss the ready, liberal hand that scattered its bountles in profusion!

liberal hand that scattered its bountles in profu-sion? How will the widow and the orphan, the poor and the distressed, look in vain for the friend that never falled them before. In charity with all mankind, with an humble faith and a sincere trust in God his Maker and Redeemer, he has gone to his account. The great mystery of life and death is solved for him. We trust and believe that his many virtues, his many good and charitable purposes, his many, many deeds of kindness and generosity to those in need, his simple faith and unshaken reliance upon the deeds of kindness and generosity to those in need, his simple faith and unshaken reliance upon the Divine goodness and mercy, will win their way to the chancery of Heaven, and will secure for him from the Great Judge of all the earth, amid the acclaimed of saints and angels, the glorious welcome of "Well done, good and Juithful servent".

Resolved, That the Bar of Charleston lament with heartfelt sorrow the loss they have sustained in the death of their venerable and beloved brother, Richard Yeadon.

Res steed, That the chairman be requested to convey to the widow of our deceased brother assurances of our condolence and sympathy with her, and of our high respect for the memory of her distinguished husband.

Hon. C. G. Memminger seconded the resolutions and in making some eulogistic remarks upon the works and character of the deceased, said that he did not think he could regard the decease of

Mr. Yeadon as a loss. He looked upon his death as the finishing of the work for which he was sent into the world. His Creater had sent him here to do a noble work, and now he was at rest with that labor successfully accomplished. General James Simons, Honorables E. McCra dy, Sr., and M. P. O'Connor followed in brief re marks, all speaking eloquently of the deceased his clear and strong intellect, strength of purpose, his devotion to justice, and his earnestness in espousing whatever he believed to be right and affectionately and touchingly alluded to their private and official relations with him, who was ever ready to encourage and assist them. On motion of Hon. Mr. Memminger, the pre amble and resolutions were unanimously adopted.

On motion of Hon. W. G. DeSaussure, it was Resolved. That the preamble and resolutions be published in the daily papers, and copies sent to the family of the deceased, and the proceedings be spread upen the minutes of the United States and State Courts. The meeting then, on motion of Hon. Mr. Mem minger, adjourned.

People's Bank of South Carolina.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of this bank was held yesterday, at 12 e'clock M. On motion, James S. Gibbes, Esq., was called to the chair, and James B. Betts appointed secretary. The president, on behalf of the Board of Di rectors, read a report of the transactions of the bank since its resumption of active business, in December last, showing an excess of assets over Habilitles of $250,018 15. Z. Davis, Esq., offered the following resolution seconded by H. H. DeLeon, Esq., which was manimously adopted: Resolved, That the report be received, and that the purchase of the premises No. 9 Broad street, for a banking house, be approved. Colonel C. H. Simonton offered the following
