by the Christy Minstrels, and the London Times condescends to notice it in commendatory terms. -Ex-Confederate General Wigfall is at Central City, Colorado, representing an English mining -Flotow's new opera "Shadow," and Benedict's "Legend of St. Ceil," are the two coming events in the European musical world. -San Francisco proposes to tax the Chinese gambling houses for a fund to pay the expenses of the female slaves who want to return to the Flowery Kingdom.

-It is not fashionable for gentlemen to sead large baskets of flowers to their lady-lovers, but very small wicker baskets, with delicate handles, filled with the choicest cut flowers, are consider ed the correct thing.

-A bar of red hot iron entered the abdomen and passed through a workman's body in a Troy mill recently, yet a physican is made to say that "the wound is not necessarily fatal."

-The Examiner, commenting on cotton pro duction, says indefinite expansion of manufac turing in England is a dissolving view. Capital and population increase faster than employment. tution and discontent would become a political danger. The accumulation of monster fortunes

-The German Commercial Parliament, which Bismarck inaugurated in the hope of bringing about German unity, does not promise to realize his expectations. The South Germans are as anti-Prussian as ever, and are made to exhibit their feelings more strongly by being brought in contact with the Prassians. A late meeting gave evidence of this.

-The Australian preserved meat imported into England, has, it is asserted, hitherto proved an unsuccessful experiment, as people will not touch altogether rather than taste an untried dish. The ortation of live cattle from Brazil has, therefore, been attempted, and the River Plate Compary has recently sent 500 oxen, which arrived in good order at Falmouth.

-The advance sheets of the ex-Premier's novel, n of Appleton & Co., are said by those who have been privileged to read them, to show no falling off in the wit, satire, political aphorisms, sparkling narrative and shrewd observations on men, women and things that distinguish his early romances. This is Disraell's first appearance as a novelist since about 1847-a circumstance that greatly provokes curi- giving strength and stability to the new osity to see his new venture.

-An earnest beginning of an extensive plan of emigration has been made by the British and Colonial Emigration Society—the object being to rid the country of a surplus unemployed and dangerous portion of the population. The first party of emigrants sent out by this society, numbering about 600, left London recently for the Dominion of Canada. The party consisted of men, women and children from the distressed districts of the metropolis-laborers and mechan ica-whose condition cannot fail to be improved by the movement, whatever prospects may await them in Canada The Medway screw steamer in which they sailed is an iron vessel, and it is said that careful provision was made for their comfort on the voyage, which is much more than can be said in respect to the ordinary arrangements for the transportation of emigrants to this country. Other parties of emigrants are preparing to follow this, and the Canadian government is making provision, by the establishment of suitable depots and agencies, for their reception and designation to places where work is awaiting them, and where, in comparison with their fleroe struggie for existence at home, they confidently look for a splendid industrial inheritance. -The "Wendell Phillips among women," Mrs. Cella Burleigh, of Brooklyn, N. Y., under the auspices of Scrosis, ventilated her ideas regarding "Children," on Thursday evening. She was surrounded on all sides of the platform by such lovers of reform, if not of children, as Mrs. Jennie June Ocoly, Miss Kellogg, Mrs. Wilbor, Mrs. Harland, and several lesser lights. Mrs. Burleigh is a lady above the medium height, and has the general bearing of a respectable school teacher; is self-possessed, and talks passionate and fervid words without visible emotion. She addressed her audience as gentlemen and ladies, placing decided emphasis on the first word. The distinct tive rights of children were defined and insisted upon with grace and spirit; their rights to beborn under the best conditions and into a peace ful atmosphere, to pure air, to care that is no fussing, and to a great deal of judicious letting alone. A child she regarded as an embodied interrogation, and had a right to have his questions answered. The differences in the education of children, to her mind, were all wrong. Girls should be taught to use the jack-knife, the hammer and the saw; to teach the boy how to take entire charge of his room would not lessen his changes of an honorable manhood. The child should also be permitted "sovereignty of his person and freedom from invasion," which right precludes unwarrantable and indiscriminate

-The Senate Committee on Pensions, in making up their report on what they evidently consider a most avaricious demand on the part of President Lincoln's widow, say there is no principle on which pensions have hitherto been granted in the relief asked for. They cite the fact that no similar provision has ever been made for the widows of many civil officers, who, from the earllest periods, have lost their lives while in the performance of public duties, and who left behind them widows and orphans in bereavement, aggravated by poverty and want. The committee were constrained to find, from the facts before them, that Mrs. L. could not in fact be in the destitute condition which had been represented, and that her means must be reasonably sur. a party. When a political organization and for

United States, either at home or abroad. A recapitulation of her assets disclosed that at the time of her husband's demise she was pessessed ductive real estate, besides no end of clothing, plate, household goods, &c. The lady, it appears, does not urge her claim entirely on the ground of actual want. In her petition transmitted from Frankfort, praying for a pension, she stated that she had been advised to try the mineral water during the summer and then go to Italy, "but," she modestly (?) writes, "my financial means do not permit me to take advantage of the urgent advice given me, nor can I live in a style becoming the widow of the Chief Magistrate of a great nation, though I live as economically as I can. The committee say-from the stand-point of a European kingdom and European society-this very probably is correct; but in a republican country, where there is no distinction of rank, and where performance, the committee think a fortune of $60,000, or even one third of that sum, for a lady, necessities, in consequence of the casualties of public service, give them a claim upon the treasury. Finally, they do not think that either sentiment or duty requires a further provision in accordance with her request, and recommend an indefinite postponement of the bill.

Our Dead!

To-day the graves of the Confederate dead at Magnolia, and in the different city cemeteries, will be decorated and adorned by the fair women of Charleston. On this morning, at least, our people are one in purpose and one in spirit. Bound together, as with hooks of steel, by the memory of a common hope and a common sorrow, we may unite with the whole South in venerating and loving the fallen Southern soldier, whose unselfish life found a heroic close in the crimson glory of his death.

The Mechanics' Lyceum.

The workingmen of Charleston are laboring in earnest to improve their position. and native intelligence. Let them dig deep in the mines of knowledge; let them polish the mind as they sharpen the implements of their calling; let them explore the broad fields of literature and science-and, assuredly, they will dignify themselves and their handiwork and win the most valued prizes of rank, fame and fortune. These workingmen have a fair start in the long race of life. They are protected in the enjoyment of every civil and political right, and they can protect themselves wherever the law may fail them. Prejudice and intolerance are powerless to harm them, and the Lyceum which a crop of terrible outrages springs forth from they have just established is an evidence that they are resolved to increase their power by making mind and muscle toil and strive together.

By establishing the Mechanics' Lyceum the workingmen of the City of Charleston hope to give the young men of the city, the mechanics and the workingmen, something more than a bare education. This, for the most part, they already have. At the Lyceum they will be informed of the progress made in every department of science. All the latest inventions in tools and laborsaving machines will be brought under their notice. The Lyceum will enable every workingman to show what stuff there is in him. Co-operative enterprises will be fostered and encouraged, and, in general, the workingmen will be taught how to economize capital and labor, and how to use most effectively the force which they possess. All this is lucidly set forth in the preamble and constitution of the Lyceum, printed in THE News of yesterday. So far, the institution workingmen, rising rapidly in wealth and in the social scale, will do good service in liberalizing and energizing the State, and in South Carolina.

And who shall say that this is predicting too much? Is the workingman of Charleston less vigorous, less intelligent or less industrious than the workingman of England or Ireland or Germany? Our workingmen are staunch sons of sturdy sires, and looking across the broad Atlantic they find an hundred lessons of confidence and hope. Jeremy Taylor, the most poetical of divines, and Lord Tenterden, one of the most distinguished of the Lord Chief Justices of England, came from the barber's shop. Shakespeare himself was a wool-comber. The class of day-laborers gave rise to Burns, the poet, Ben Jonson, the learned dramatist, and Hugh Miller, the geologist. Inigo Jones, the architect, and John Gibson, the sculptor, were journeymen carpenters. Shoemakers have given as Admiral Sir Cloudesley Shovel, and Robert Bloomfield, the poet. Cardinal Woolsey was the son of a butcher, Bunyan was a tinker, and Michael Faraday was the son of a blacksmith. The father of Gregory VII was a carpenter, of Sextus V a shepherd, and of Adrian VI a poor bargeman. But enough of these. The United States is rich in examples of men who have raised themselves, by strenuous individual application, to the first places in the commonwealth. And the workingmen of Charleston have among their number some who can, if they will, achieve distinction in any walk of life, and all of them can by steady working improve their position and that of the children who come after them. Had ciches been necessary to man's highest culture, the world would not be so largely indebted to those who sprang from the ranks. Poverty, indeed, may be converted into a blessing, rousing a man to that struggle with the world, in which the right minded and true hearted find strength and confidence and triumph.

Workingmen of Charleston, think of these things!

"Outrages."

There was a certain venerable preacher, once greatly esteemed in Charleston, both for his intellectual and moral qualities, who in his old age fell into the habit of preachthis country which warrants them in granting ing one and the same sermon on every Sunday. The old gentleman never repeated the same text. He ranged from Genesis to Revelations. But whatever might be the inspired sentence with which the weekly homily begun, the discourse in its progress soon fell into the old rut, which it pursued to the end of the "Sabbath day's journey."

A similar procedure marks the dotage of scient to the just necessity of a citizen of the loses its fertility of idea, and even of language, when it deals only in commonplaces, when its resorts and devices can be anticipated, when it lives in the past, when its joints cease to be supple, and it drivels in its speech, we may be sure that such a party is antiquated, and soon will become obsolete.

Now this is precisely the condition of the corrupt leaders of the Radical party. They have done so thriving a business upon "out-"rages," that they regard this as the trump card in the suit. An election that does not put one of their tools in office has been overawed by outrages. A State which does not honor the most contemptible of its citizens and the base among its resident aliens, is so disorderly as to require martial law-it is an amphitheatre where creatures fiercer than Numidian lions are tearing the martyrs to pieces. If a knavish fellow, who buys stolen cotton at night, is "interviewed" by a vigilance committee composed of his plundered neighbors; if a forgetful fellow who has failed to pay his taxes is visited by the sheriff's posse; if a thirsty fellow who has de frauded the revenue loses his distillery-all these creatures send their appeals to Washington. A Southern outrage has been like Mr. Weller's famous alibi-a resort in every case of difficulty. And now a new field for its application has presented itself. The character of the heartless marauder, whose march was traced in fire along the fertile valley of the Shenandoah, has been seriously compromised by the slaughter of the Piegan women and children, not even infants at the breast having been spared by the infuriate soldiery, whom he urged not only to strike, but to "strike hard." More atrocious than that of Glencoe was the massacre which at once involved the mother and the babe, and butchered the invalid who lay dying with smallpox in his lodge. The heart sickens with horror as we read that, in the little winter settlement attacked by the United States troops, not less than six persons were dying Already they have numbers, manual skill daily under so revolting and terrible a scourge.

Now, how do Butler and Sumner and Sherman and their crew seek to save the reputation of their favorite General? Let a New York contemporary reply. Says the Sunday

"From all parts of the frontier come alarming reports of intended Indian insurrections, and the telegraph is made to convey frantic calls for Sheridan. The Indian outrage business is suspiciously like the rebel outrage business in the South. Whenever the Radicals in Congress are contemplating some unusually villanous scheme to rob or ruin the people, the Southern soil. The Radicals are old hands at the machine. The device is now being used to help along the Washington Indian ring and the battered reputation of Piegan Phil."

The trick is transparent—we woul. add, it is quite played out, did we not know that rather than sacrifice Sheridan these men will provoke the outrages which they now invent. They would have done the same thing at the South, had not the sagacity of our people penetrated, and the self-command of our people frustrated, their atrocious design.

The Reform Movement-Barnwell to the Front.

In calling a county meeting, to be held on the 14th instant, to nominate delegates to the Reform Convention, our vigilant contemporary, the Barnwell Sentinel, says:

"Let, then, all of our good men, white and black, in every township or school district, on some day previous to the 14th, assemble at some convenient place in the township and appoint two delegates to the County Convenis in its infancy, but, if it be supported as it tion; let one of them be a prominent white man, deserves to be, this city, in the course of a and the other a prominent colored man; and few years, will have a Lyceum of the highest when they are chosen let them be furnished by the secretaries of the meetings with certificates of appointment, so that none can sit in the Convention except those who come with the authority of the people. It is plain that such a body so assembled, will nominate for office such men as will use their talents and their offices, if elected, for the welfare, prosperity and happiness of Barnwell County and the State.

This is an admirable plan of organization, and faithfully reflects the spirit and purposes of the CITIZENS' REFORM movement.

Drugs, Chemicals, &c. S WEET QUININE

Is a recent improvement. Replaces the use of the Bitter Sulphate Quinine, with which all are familiar. DOSE FOR DOSE, it is warranted fully equal in every way to Bitter Quinine, and, like it, is the one great, posi-tive and unfailing cure for all DISEASES OF MALARIOUS ORIGIN.

Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Bilious Fever, Dumb Ague, and the long train of disorders following these when neglected.

SWEET QUININE is made solely from Peruvian Bark (so is Bitter quinine,) thefore it is of vegetable origin, and not a mineral polson, but, on the contrary, is proved to be one of the elements found in the blood of all nealthy persons.

SWEET QUININE acts as an antidote to, as well as a cure for, Malarial or Miasmatic Poison, the absorption of which by the lungs causes Intermittent Fevers, &c. The only advantage claimed for SWEET QUININE over the use of old Bitter Quinine is the entire ab-sence of that intense, persistent bitterness, which in the latter is an insurmountable obstacle to its use with most persons, and always with children.

SWEET OUININE is in two forms—in Powder, for the use of Physicians and Druggists, and Fluid for use in the family and for the general public.
