NEWSOF THE DAY.

Gold closed in New York on Saturday at -Cotton closed dull at 23c. for middling uplands; sales 1000 bales. -In Liverpool cotton closed steady at 191d. for uplands; sales 10,000 bales.

-The Atlantic National Bank of New York on Friday cashed a forged check to the amount OF$810.

Governor Hoffman, of New York, has signed the Staten Island Bridge Bill. The work will cost $1,000,000, and will be begun at an early day. -The old fashioned but sensible gingham sun bonnet will, it is said, be all the go this summer at the fashionable watering places.

-It is now confidently stated that Mile. Nilsson's tour in this country is to be managed by Mr. P. T. Barnum.

-By the decision of the arbitrators the yacht Sappho wins the three races with the Cambria, and is now the "champion" yacht of the world. There are nineteen candidates in the field for the next Governor of Pennsylvania, and as many on the Republican side in New York. -It is a little singular that every Cuban general officer of note is just now in New York. Doubtless there is less danger and privation in that city than on the island.

-An Englishman was last week taken into the New York gold room without being told what place it was. He thought he had got into a mad house.

-In Boston permits are now given to grind a hand organ or peddle fruit, only to persons who can show that they are in really needy circumstances, and have no other means of obtaining a livelihood.

-Washington correspondents says he white wash has been carefully prepared and will be literally applied to cover up the transactions of the immaculate head of that partisan machine, the Freedmen's Bureau.

-The evidence in the Georgia corruption case goes to show that Forney was not excessively modest in his advertising charges; the standing of two Radical senators, demonstrating that they knew what the word "bribe" meant, pecuniarily. The Mace-Allen fight was noted for its "gentlemanly" conduct. In the long sparring of the first round Mace remarked, "It's like two brothers fighting;" and Allen answered, "That's so, Jim." When Mace struck Allen the first blow in the stomach, he asked, "How do you like the 'darby,' Tom ?" And when Allen drove Mace's breath out of him, and made him gasp, Mace remarked, when he recovered and came up again, "If you do that again, Tom, I'll have to hit you on the nose," and Allen laughed. When Allen cut through Mace's shoe. into his left foot with the spikes, he said, "I beg your pardon; I did't mean to," and Mace smiled as he responded, "All right, Tom."

The one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Beethoven is to be celebrated next month by a musical festival on a scale never heretofore reached by the Gothamites. The projectors claim, of course, that it will surpass even the memorable Boston jubilee of last year. An immense building is to be eretced on Third avenue, sufficient to accommodate at least 25,000 people; a chorus of 3000 voices, and an orchestra of 1000 pieces, among them the Handel and Haydn Society, and Gilmore's renowned band, are announced; Mr. G. will also be one of the conductors. The principal feature of the festival will be the combination of star artists from all the operatic organizations at present in America, with many foreign artists of repute. -Charles Bowles, Esq., of the Paris banking firm of Bowles Brothers, recently testified before the Ways and Means Committee on the policy and practicability of funding our national debt at a lower r te of interest. His testimony, which is very voluminous and very interesting, has just been published. He claims that a great advantage of the dissemination of small bonds among the people of the various countries of Europe would result in a more general diffusion of knowledge of the resources. power and geography of the United States. and consequently in an increase of immigration. The proposed mode of funding the debt, being without constraint on the part of the pres ent bondholders, or coercion on the part of the government, is a new thing in finances for European countries, where the usual process is, in effect, a forced conversion, and therefore would be an especially interesting fact to place before the middle classes holding our bonds in Europe. He felt so confident of the avidity with which the bonds would be taken up by the smaller classes, even at four per cent. that he said there would probably be a demand for three times the necessary amount, provided they were made payable in the three international currencies, either dollars, francs or pounds, at the fiscal agencies of the United

-The sad life-history of Theodore Clay, the recently deceased son of the Sage of Ashland, is thus told: "At thirty years of ase, Theodore Clay was a promising lawyer. He was the image and the hope of the statesman whose fame was on every tongue, though there were whispers of wild living and indifferent morals. which were generally condoned as follies of youth. At this turning point of his life, the young man began to pursue with unwarying perseverance a young lady of Lexington, whom he had long hopelessly loved, and who is now one of the brightest ornaments of Kentucky society. She repulsed, firmly but kindly, every attention offered by the infatuated Price 75 cents. For thirty years he was one of the most noted inmates, on account of his personal graces as well as his distinguished descent. He imagined that he was George Washington, and was fond of assuming his traditional attitudes. At the occasional balls in the institution he was always exquisitely dressed, and was the beau par excellence. But in 1860 his insanity began to degenerate into hopeless idiocy, in which he has lingered till released by his recent death."

Senator Cain and Reform.

We print to-day a significant leading article from the Missionary Record, in which ciliation and friendship between the dis-Senator Cain, a leading spirit among the black citizens of the State, applauds the Maude and her lover, is both inconsistent purposes of the Reform Mass Meeting, whose and unnatural. demands, he says, "we second with all our "heart." Senator Cain, however, with a Price 50 cents. natural desire to perpetuate the strength of South Carolina Republicanism, urges the Ediza A. Youmans. New York: D. Applehonest men of his party "to purge out the "thieves and robbers," upon the ground that the Retrenchment and Reform which we need tan most surely be obtained "within the study of botany has a practical value in "the Republican party." This sentiment may be shared by some who have, up to this time, fought in the ranks of the Opposition: but any attempt to regenerate and reform what is known here as the Republican Party, would, at this time, we are fully convinced, fasten upon the State more firmly than ever the shackles of Dishonesty and Corruption.

The Scott Ring have made Radicalism odious by their wanton extravagance, their wilful waste, and their persistent disregard of tenths of the white people of the State would, for this reason, without going farther, flatly refuse to have anything to do with any movement saddled with the name of Repubearnest men who might go over in the hope of leavening the lump? Like pebbles cast and flowers of the South. into the mire, they would be lost to sight; with the filth of Fraud and Wrong above and around them, they would be utterly unable to help themselves or their people. Nor do the Scott Ring desire to obtain respectable recruits. They fear the advent of honest and intelligent men. Already they denounce and abuse any man who may go over to all young people. "The Mother's Recomtheir party with the expectation of sharing their power and their place. Their organ cries aloud that none but tried Republicans must be put on guard. And now it exhorts the party to trust no Democrat who joins them until they KNOW him to be an out-andout, thorough RADICAL FROM CONVIC-TION.

This is enough to show what decent men may look for if they go over to the Republicanism of the present. And, besides, the Ring, which has led the party for two years and more, leads it still. The men who compose that Ring are gorged with spoils, but they cry for more. They want more office, more jobbery, more bribery, more peculation. They are manipulating the party in the interest of their own greed. And however better men, like Senator Cain, may call for Reform within the Republican ranks, report is said to be very damaging to the it is as certain as the rising of the morrow's sun, that the triumph of the Radical Republican party in the fall elections will have as posed, and also more profound wisdom and its only result the perpetuation of the power of the Ring and the inauguration of another reign of Profligacy and Theft.

There is but one hope for South Carolina and it lies in the prompt and thorough organization of all the good people of the State, upon the broad platform of Reform. There may stand, Democrat and Republican, white man and black man, the native citizen and the adopted son of the State, all working manfully, under the law, for the triumph, not of race or party, but of the eternal principles of good government-for Honesty, Retrenchment and Reform.

A New York View of Reform.

The New York Times (Republican) editorially alludes to the Reform movement in South Carolina in the following terms:

"The union in South Carolina of 'all classes, colors and political parties' to advocate Retrenchment and Reform in the government of the State, represents a tendency of which the history of the next few years will probably furnish abundant examples. In the absence of any absorbing party issue, men naturally turn their attention to the most vital, though frequently the most neglected of all questions. corruption and misrule may be hidden for a and in this country the demand has, too, time under the shadow of party majorities, been too great to be supplied by even the but the hour arrives when the public sentiment, without respect to political distinction, demands with irresistible unanimity an honest and capable management of public affairs. When will Republicans in New York have arrived at that stage."

THE WOMAN OF BUSINESS; OR, THE LADY AND THE LAWYER. A Novel. By Marian Savage, author of "The Bachelor of the Albany," &c. author of "The Bachelor of the Albar New York: D. Appleton & Co. 1870.

As a novel "The Woman of Business" has much positive merit, while its faults are of a is touched upon in turn; but the views and negative character. It is free from sensationa'ism, and in its many pages are found neither the paroxysms of passion nor the ravings of despair. Love, sentiment and inci- like Mr. Disraeli, are "the masters and not dent march leisurely along, and, from the "the servants of their principles." A skilful rising of the curtain, the general dénouement is plain to even a careless reader. But the and allows nothing to be said or done which book is thoroughly healthy in tone, and the dramatis personæ, if not of a startling originality, are life-like and consistent throughout. Fatima Evelyn, "The Woman of Business," whom multiplication does not vex. nor fractions drive mad, is a charming creation; a dignified, loving woman, with the sense to know what her work is, and the pluck and energy to do that work well. A RACE FOR A WIFE. By Hawley Smart, author of Breezie Langton.

The reader will prefer to find out for himself in what sense this is really "A Race for a Wife," for if that simple riddle were solved there would be little inducement to read one hundred and sixty pages of the sayings and doings of a weak spendthrift, a pale-haired swell-of the Ouida order-a wilful girl, and a knavish horse-racing attorney. There is nothing novel in the book, except the curious use made of the old right of "heriot," upon which the plot hinges. The final recon-

PROVERBS, ECCLESIASTES AND THE SONG OF SOLOMON, with notes critical, explanatory and practical. By the Rev. Henry Cowles, D. D. New York: D. Appleton & Co. 1870.

The learning, analytical spirit and critical acumen of Dr. Cowles find full scope in the notes on the Proverbs, which are sent forth with the worthy hope that they will be specially useful to the young. Dr. Cowles is convinced that Solomon has more beautiful and worthy thoughts than is commonly supcounsel towards a virtuous and happy life; while a study of Eccleciates will, he believes, develope more consistent unity and more fitness, beauty and power, than have been often recognized. This is a thorough and scholarly work, designed "for both pas-"tors and people."

C.ESAR'S COMMENTARIES, with explanatory notes, by Albert Harkness, LL. D. New York: D. Appleton & Co. 1870. Professor Harkness has given us a new edition of Casar, for which all but very lazy schoolboys will bless him. The notes are full and interesting, and a special dictionary at the end of the volume renders the beginner in Latin independent, in great measure, of a separate lexicon.

The Saturday Review did not over-rate the mingled surprise and impatience of the British public when it said, some weeks ago, that if Mr. Disraeli had given notice that, on Monday, the 2d of May, he would sing at the opera, dance on a tight rope at the Crystal Palace, or preach a sermon at Mr. Spurgeon's Tabernacle, popular surprise and curiosity would not have been more strongly roused than they were by the announcement that on that day would be published his new novel, Lothair. It was twenty-three years since Mr. Disraeli had published his last romance, and his career during that period had been of a character well calculated to cause the public to look with keen interest upon the resumption of his old character as a novelist. It is not strange, then, the efficiency of the executive power. Waste, that in England Lothair has created a furore; teeming presses of the Appletons. The book will be read, we take it for granted, by every man, woman and child who takes an interest in politics and social science, or who cares to be in the fashion, and a few words of general criticism upon the manner and matter of the book is all that the Southern public may desire.

There is no indication that Lothair was written for a great purpose. Every phase of modern philosophic thought, of political doctrine, of religious belief, of polite society, opinions of opposing sects and warring schools are stated with a dispassionate clearness, which is possessed by those only who, novelist, he casts his lines in pleasant places. would shock the delicate sensibilities of a super-refined society. Lothair has no plot worthy of the name, and there is no flesh and blood individuality in the characters. Theodora is a splendid impossibility; the hero is led by fancy and not by conviction, by a promise to an adored woman and not by fixed belief. There is no fixity or stability in the mind of this naud, the muscular missionary, who takes young Lothair, who settles down at last to bosom of the British aristocracy.

But Lothair is a brilliant work; one wel worthy of the genius of the author of Sybil Gray; and it has all the freshness and vivacity of youth. There are the keen satire, the sparkling epigram, and the wonderfu sketches of man and manners, as we knew them of old. Neither age nor the din of partypolitics has dulled the edge of the author's fancy or dimmed the brightness of his wit. There is a gem in almost every paragraph, and a cluster of bon-mots in nearly every

Most of the characters in Lothair are said to be drawn from life, but, having taken the general idea from living men and women, Mr. Disraeli tints and groups his personages to suit himself. Lothair is understood to be the Marquis of Bute, the Duchess is the Duchess of Abercorn, Cardinal Grandison is Archbishop Manning, the Oxford Profes sor is Goldwin Smith, Catesby is Father Capel, an English Priest, and the Bishop is comfitted Pearman and the triumphant Bishop Wilberforce. And by this time the ofiginal has doubtless been found of every other character in Lothair. For sale by John Russell, King street.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

We beg leave respectfully to call the attention of the public to our Superior Plavoring Extracts. As ten years have now elapsed since we first introduced them to the notice of the American pub-

A substitute for Yeast in making Hot Bread, Rolls and Batter Cakes of every description, having the advantage of making the dough or batter perfectly light, and ready for baking without delay, and greatly diminishing the liability to become sour.

Many dyspeptics, who cannot tolerate fresh, light cakes when made with yeast, can eat them with impunity when raised in this way.

When used according to directions, it is warranted to make rich, sweet, light and nutritious Bread and Biscuit, Muffins, Waffles, Corn Bread, all kinds of Griddle Cakes, also Boiled Puddings, Dumplings, Pot Pies, &c. PURE YEAST POWDER.

PREPARED ONLY BY DAVIS & MILLER,

A. J. MILLER, Sole Proprietor. We have been appointed Agents for the State of South Carolina for the above desirable goods and can offer them to the trade at proprietors

DAVIS & MILLER'S FLAVORING EXTRACTS.

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES.

QUALITY STILL FURTHER IMPROVED.

As ten years have now elapsed since we first introduced them to the notice of the American public, we deem it unnecessary at present to enter into a lengthy description of their merits, &c. There is hardly a city or town of any note in the country into which they have not found their way. The reason of this widespread popularity and daily increasing demana is owing entirely to their peculiar excellence and intrinsic worth. Being determined to make the interstandard Extracts of the day, we have still further improved their quality, and now we firmly and honestly believe that they stand without a rival. Our Vanilla Extract cannot be surpassed for richness and delicacy of flavor. It is a strictly pure and highly concentrated Extract of Vanilla Beans. In short, we think it the best that is made, at least, this is the decision of the best judges in the country. We don't pretend to compete in price with many of the so-called Flavoring Extracts of the day, which are really but worthless compounds, undescrying of the name.

For quality and style, we defy competition.
