UNION REFORM NOMINATIONS.

For Governor,

HON. R. B. CARPENTER, OF CHARLESTON.

For Lieutenant-Governor, GENERAL M. C. BUTLER, OF EDGEFIELD.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Gold at New York yesterday closed at 114. The New York cotton market closed dull; sales 600 bales at 20c.

-At Liverpool cotton closed quiet and steady at 91d for uplands; sales 10,000 bales. The reported drowning of Frank Vizetelly, the London artist, is contradicted. Nelson D. Young has been re-elected president of the New York Workingmen's -Among the cargo of the Herman Livingaton, from Savannah for New York, on Thursday, were 148 mocking birds.

Mr. William B. Walker, a brother of Hon. Alexander Walker, the well known journalist, and a brother in law of Dr. Warren Stone, of New Orleans, died a few days ago. He was one of the most successful planters in Louisiana, and a highly respected citizen.

Charles Morgan, the steamship king of the South, has now four new steamships in process of construction for the Texas trade—two to run between Indianola and Corpus Christi, one for the Brashear City and Galveston passenger trade, and one for an outside freight fdaho Territory has gone Democratic. At gether with all the Democratic local tickets.

Among the recent deaths of leading Northern men is that of Francis B. Cutting, a distinguished member of the New York bar. At one period he was a member of Congress from that city, and some sharp words, used in debate, reflecting on John C. Breckinridge, led to a challenge to a duel, which, however, was foremstely averted by the intervention of discreet friends. Mr. Cutting had retired, of late years, from active devotion to his profession. The day for fancy prices for paintings would seem to have gone by. At a sale in New York, the other day, a Blerstadt sold for $936, while a Church brought only $860-both characteristic pictures. The size we do not know, but anything from either of these artists, under four or five figures, indicates a return to a more reasonable scale of prices than has prevailed for several years past. And we are glad of it. The new order of things will be better, not only for the public, but for ar--Our latest Cuban advices report much despondency in Spanish circles, in consequence of the refusal of the Home Government to send more troops to the island. Españiel telegraphed to Madrid for 20,000 men, he offering to pay the expense of transportation, and the response: came back, "We cannot send you even five men." This refusal of aid causes great tribulation among the Spaniards, who the guerilla system of warfare adopted by the insurgents will enable them to carry on the confest for an indefinite period of time. Te add to the general perplexity and discomfiture, epidemic cholera has broken out along the coast and in the garrisoned places, and is making dreadful havoc among the unacclimated troops, worn down as they are by their arduous labors during the past season. It is sald, too, to be prevalent among the war vesseis cruising about the island, and some of the officers and many of the men on the gunboats and men-of-war have already died. The yellow fever cases as yet in the city have been very few, but a goodly number of sailors have been sent to the hospital from the various war vessels in the harbor. All this furnishes cause of depression, and incites gloomy forebodings for the future. The insurgents continue active in the Western Department, and, on the 18th instant, captured a convoy comprising fourteen carts, loaded with prisoners, while moving between Camasan and Bijaru, in the jurisdiction of Holguin. No further barbarities by the Spaniards, or executions of inoffensive American sojourners in the island, are reported O (1322) A (17) A New York letter, alluding to the prevailing disruntent among tradesmou's clerks, says: "There is one class of salesmen in New York who are pretty well satisfied. These are the lucky fellows who make from $5000 to $20,000 a year. It may surprise those who don't know it to hear that some dry goods salesmen earn over double the salary of the Chief Justice of the United States, yet it is perfectly true. Lastyear a man was discharged from one of the made; by salary and commissions, over $25,oou in one year. The head of the firm thought sons would substitute four other persons as the Doctor, as a recognition of his merits by that was too much for one man, and gave him the candidates to receive the 49,000 votes, and his venerated Aima Mater.

notice that he might leave. Another salesman | would elect them to serve with the six first made $20,000 the same year in the same house. It would be easy to name a score of buyers who receive regular salaries of from of proxy voting, which permits every voter to $8000 to $10,000, and whose expenses to Europe and back twice a year are paid besides. | and that person to represent him in the repre-Then there are many scores of salesmen who get $5000 and upwards, some of these drawing during the year as much as $8000. Of course they must be first class men, and they are the same men who become in time the great merchants of the metropolis. It has frequently happened, during the past few years, that salesmen have cleared more money than their employers. When business is dull, the emmakes or loses, the salesman draws his salary and commission regularly. No more striking instance of inequality could be found anywhere than is furnished by the relative condition of wholesale and retail clerks in New York-one class earning from $5000 to $20,000 a year (though of course some do not get even half the first figure) and the other struggling along on six or seven hundred."

The Great Campaign Paper. The interest taken by the people of the State in the contest now begun between the Union Reform party and the Scott Ring, is well shown by the rapidity with which they pour in their subscriptions to THE CHARLES-TON WEEKLY NEWS. This successful weekly, containing all the social, general and literary news of the day, as well as full accounts now supplied at the rate of seventy-five cents for four months, or ten copies will be sent, to one address, for the same period, for six dollars. Beyond this, cheapness cannot go. No wonder is it, that an agent in an up-country village sent down yesterday a list of twenty-two new subscribers to THE WEEKLY NEWS-the Great Campaign Paper.

The Representation of Minorities.

The irregularity and the injustice of our present representation system are both plain and unmistakable, and the changing fortunes of political parties give all of them, in turn a bitter taste of the power of a bare majority. As the laws now stand, a majority of one, in the largest constituency, carries with it the entire control of the minority. The majority of one will make laws and unmake them, will take off one tax and put on shall be at liberty to cast them all for one another more grievous, will act in all things as though it were in very truth the representative of the whole people. And the evil in Congress by Mr. Buckalew, of Pennsylvais aggravated by the system of party organi- nia, and is the plan submitted for approval zation and party tickets now in common use. at the Illinois constitutional elections held The vote which elects one member of the on Saturday last. Its operations may party will, as a general thing, elect all the be illustrated thus: Massachusetts has rest-the majority ticket is elected through- ten representatives in the lower house of out, and the minority ticket is as thoroughly defeated.

No one contests the rights of the majority, under the existing laws, to have a majority of the representation. But it is argued, and with reason, that minorities, also, have their rights, and it is the aim of the more advanced and thoughtful of the statesmen of the country to devise a practical plan which shall give minorities their just share of representation without encroaching upon the just preponderance of the numerical majority. In short, the problem is to procure a legislative body which, at the time of its election, will faithfully represent the whole body of electors; so that each elector may have a representative to whom he has given authority to speak and act for him, and who will represent on the floor of the chamber only as many votes as he has received. To accomplish this end, six. general plans are proposed:

1. More than ninety years ago the subject of minority representation was broached in England, and a bill was introduced by the The Cotton Manufactures of Great Briof Connecticut, New York and Oregon, and Duke of Richmond in 1780, contained a clause gave the Democrats a rousing victory. Mer- looking to the representation of minorities. ritt, the Democratic candidate for Congress, is In 1855 a plan proposed by M. Androe was elected by eight to nine hundred majority, to- introduced into the representative system of Denmark. In 1859 Mr. Hare published his work on the election of representatives, which gave rise to many discussions in this country, in Europe and in the British Colonies. The plan of Mr. Hare is called preferential voting, and its operation is as fol-

> "It ascertains the quota by dividing the whole number of voters by the whole number of representatives. Thus, if the whole number of voters should be 800,000, and the number of representatives to be chosen 200, the quota of voters to each representative would be 4000. Then the voter is to deposit at the polls a voting paper, on which he shall have placed in the order of his preference the names of the candidates, or of so many of them as he pleases. No vote is to be counted for more than one candidate; any candidate receiving 4000 votes is to be declared elected; if the candidate first on a voting paper fails to obtain the quota, or has already obtained it, the vote descends to the next in order of preference; when a candidate has obtained the quota, his votes up to that number are to be laid aside, and the remaining votes are to be counted for the candidate next in order of preference, and so on, till all the votes are appropriated and the whole number of representatives is obtained. If there be not 200 persons credited each with 4000 votes, and the representative body is consequently deficient in number, tho deficiency is to be made up by taking the candidates who come nearest to the required quota This method is called by the Swiss reformers that of the electoral quotient (le quo tient electoral.)

> 2. A second plan is that of limited voting, by which is to be understood that of requiring the votes to be cast for a less number of candidates than the whole. Thus, if the number of voters were 100,000, and the number of candidates to be elected from the State, or district, ten, and each voter were allowed to give only one vote for one candidate, and 10,000 votes were to elect, the result would be that every 10,000 persons might have a representative if they would. This plan is generally referred to in connection with several candidates, rarely in connection with single ones.

3. "A third plan is that of substitute voting, which permits candidates to cast anew the use less votes given to them, and substitute a third person in their place. Thus, supposing again the number of electors to be 100,000, and of representatives 10, and 10,000 votes to be sufficient for election; and then supposing six candidates to have received each 15,000, that is, 90,000 in all, and two others each 5000. Here are 30,000 surplus votes cast for the elected candidates, and 10,000 insufficient votes divided between two persons, so as to give neither of them enough to elect him; the plan we are speaking of allows the three elected candidates to cast 30,000 surplus votes, and the two principal houses in New York because he had defeated candidates to cast 10,000 insufficient votes for new candidates. Those eight perelected. 4. "The fourth plan is sometimes called that give his vote or proxy to any person he pleases, sentative chamber if he can unite upon him self other proxies sufficient to make up the electoral quota, and if he receives more than this sufficient number, then to cast additional votes in the chamber, proportional to the number of proxies received. This is the plan put forth three years ago by the Personal Representation Society of New York.

5. The fifth plan is that of list voting, or what is called the free concurrence of lists or the open list-a plan recommended by the reformers of Germany. It supposes lists of candidates containing each the names of as many as there are representatives to be chosen, ranged in the order of preference, to be deposi ed with the proper authorities a certain time before the election and numbered. Each elector gives his vote for a particular list. The whole number of votes for that list is divided by the electoral quota, and the result gives the number of candidates chosen on that list. For example, if there be fifteen representatives to be elected, 15,000 voters, and five lists of candidates. List A receiving 5000 votes secures five representatives; list B receiving 4000 votes secures four representatives; list C receiving 3000 votes secures three representatives; list D receiving 2000 votes secures two representatives; list E receiving 1000 votes secures one representative. In the case of a vacancy caused by death or resignation, elecof the progress of the political canvass, is tion on more than one list, or other cause, the place is to be supplied by the candidate next in order. This plan would operate thus in a State having 100,000 voters and ten representatives in Congress to choose, and three parties with each a list: List A receiving 60,000 votes; list B receiving 30,000 votes, and list C receiving 10,000. The quota or electoral quotient being 10,000, list A would be entitled to six representatives, list B to three, and list C to one. The six highest names on list A. the three bighest on list B, and the one highest on list C would then be chosen as the representa tives of the State in Congress."

6. The sixth plan, which we have purpose ly reserved to the last, is that of cumulative voting. The theory of this is, that, a quota being ascertained as before, each voter shall have as many votes as there are representatives to be elected, (either from the whole State, or from electoral districts less than the whole State, as may be determined;) and candidate, or divide them among several, as he pleases. This plan has been proposed Congress; each voter has ten votes; he may give them to ten candidates, one to each, or he may cumulate them upon a less number than ten, even to one. One-tenth of the voters may thus be sure of a representative, if they choose to unite upon one person. Thus, suppose the number of voters to be 200,000, and each with ten votes, making 2,000,000 votes in all, of which 200,000 shall be sufficient to elect; the friends of any one candidate might secure the concentration or cumulation of the 200,000 votes cast by 20,000 voters, and those would have one repre sentative, though all the remaining votes were cast for one person. In practice, no doubt, tickets would be made up by the two parties, and each party would send represen tatives merely proportionate to its constituency. This plan of cumulative voting seems to be the simplest and plainest yet devised, and, where it has been tried, it is found to work exceeding well, as we shall take occasion to show.

One thing was made very plain at the Fourth of July celebration of the Columbia Radicals-the colored men are heartily sick of Hoge, and the rest of the adventurous crew, and intend to have their full share, and more than their full share, of all the spoils of office. And it is equally clear that the colored Radicals have very little faith in t he whites who have just jumped over the fence, and who now expect that their unselfish virtue will be handsomely rewarded.
