The Rival Breech-Loaders-The Needle Gun and the Chamepot.

If this new war does not produce some other weapon hitherto known only to those accustomed to manipulate it in secret practice, the Chassepot and the Prussian breech-loader will be fairly tried against each other. But there are already suspicions or rumors that each foe brings into the fight new weapons which will contemplate the test. There is the French mitratlleuse, it is said, which can rain bullets like hail. There is also the Prussian kugelhitsen. Whether hall or conical shot will carry the day it is impossible to say; but it is noticeable that the war of the nineteenth century is transferred to the artisan's shop, and that diplomacy and "texted fields" are but agencies and instruments wherewith is obtained a trial of the inventive genius of bellicobe nations. The Prussian needle gun is the invention of Mr. Breyse, a manufacturer of arms at Sommerda, who spent over thirty years in trying to construct a perfect breech-loading rifle. The cartridge is inserted at the rear, and the ignition is produced by the intrusion of a needle into the fulminate attached to the cartridge. The barrel is 36.96 inches long, and is rifled with four growes down to the bresch, where the chamber, or bed for the cartridge is smooth and a little larger than the bore. The bed enlarges slightly to the rears of as to admit the barridge freely, and the lower part of the bore for a distance of 8.17 inches is enlarged so that the ball is gradually compressed into the groves. The rear of the barrel is conical, and is called the induthplect lover this part there is a six-sided cylinder, which holds all the mechanism of the piece. The ar-chamber, next to the cylinder, has the needle pipe screwed into its breech. The bealt is spheria-cunical. The charge of powder is 66 grains. The weight of the Prussian needle gun is 10.27 pounds to 11.3 pounds. The mechanism can be taken apart without screw-driver, vice, &c. It can be safely and easily cleaned, and the gun being small is particularly adapted for use in the contracted space of loopholes, on horseback, &c. The objections to the Prussian needle gun are the danger of a weakening of the spiral spring and the possibility that the needle may not be propelled with sufficient force to piece the least ridge. harry in get well that his convalescence is retarded by his efforts to help nature in doing more than the doctors prescribe. At one time, in the midst of a severe attack of the gout, he was found by his attendants applying lighted lucifer matches to the soles of his feet as counter-irritants. At another, when troubled with a headsche, he put so much emetic ointment on the nape of his neck that he was blistered down to his shoulder-blades. "I have overdone it, doctor," he said, in reply to a remonstrance from the latter, "and it is all very well for you to say that I had, better, wait for, you, but you see, I haven't time to be sick." Indeed, his impatience has become quite feverish; he seems to think that he will die before he can establish his son on the throne, and directly he begins to benefit by a change of air or of medical treatment, overtaxes his strength, bodily and mentally, taking fong and fattguing walks, and working with his secretaries, during all of which time a cigarette is never out of his mouth. It is also stated that the Emperor has done what a great many people far less magnificent have done before him. While continuing to take the prescriptions of the allopather of the secretaries, and this own personal symptoms. Into this rather slight concession, it is averred, has he been "caudled" by her Majesty, who has all a woman's faith in globules. nan's faith in globules.

French War Preparations. The Paris correspondent of the London Daily

News, writing July 9, says : Preparations for war are said to be going on agonal scale. Marshal LeBourf has desired generals of division to send in to him within three days a full report of the state of the arsenals, depots, and barracks, within their supervision. Circulars calling upon all solders on firstength to him their regiments are ready supervision. Circulars caling upon all soldiers on furlough to him their regiments are ready to be posted. Powder and munitions of war are hourly rolling by fast trains towards the eastern fronter. The handful of 150 000 men are all ready to be thrown upon the Rhine at the first legal. Eighteen commissariat officers have been sent to Hungary to buy hay, which, it is said may be got there for half the price which it now costs in France. Six hundred carriages of the Eastern Railway Company, have been engaged to transport forage from Hungary, made portable, in bundles, by a new system of compression.

England's Interest in the Conflict. The London Times, July 11, says :

in urging that every effort should be made in urging that every effort should be made for the maint-uance of peace, we are moved more by moral considerations than by those of traditional European policy. We may say at once that we care very little about the balance of power, which within the last two or three years has significantly disappeared from the preamble to the Mutiny act. A war between france and Prusma would be a war for the left bank of the Raine and would no doubt be fought out until the capacity of the one to conquer or of the other to defend that debatable land was fally decided. The military result of such a war would affect us but little. The time, as passed when it could matter to England whether any Western power possessed a few square miles more or less, or the command few square miles more or less, or the command of this or that for ress. Since the last settlement of the world which three are to dwarf the ordinary members of the European system. Russia and the United States are the powers which the next generation will look upon as the most formidable. Moreover, the interests and attention of England are chiefly concerned with her own growing colonies, and with the vist populations of Asia. The result of the Franco-Prussian war is of little moment to us politically, but we have an interest, in common with the whole of Europe, that the two most advanced nations of the Continent should not plunge into a contest the effect of which may be to divide them for a generation by an enduring hatred. How much the real strength of civilization may lose by such a convulsion it is impossible to foretall. We can only be certain that the importance of Western Europe, the principal field of human progress, will be directioned. fratricidal strife.

Spanish Official Version of the Crown

Question.

A circular dispatch has been addressed to the Spanish aimsters at the various European Courts. After referring to the instructions given to General Prim, it proceeds: "Invested with these ample powers, General Prim had in his favor, in the discharge of his difficult mission, and besides his high personal political position, the moral authority of the whole government, the strength given by unity of purpose and of action and the guarantee of the most absolute secrecy, (reserva.) . It was to the hoped, then, in spite of the unfortunate issue of his first proceedings, that he would succeed in vanquishing difficulties of every kind. and in proposing to his collesques in the government, and presenting to the approbation of the Counstituent Cortes, a candid the worthy to assume the Crown of Spain and equally acceptable to all the men of the great Liberal monarchical party. The government, chariabed this confidence, which has not been disappointed, and to day it has the satisfaction of announcing through me to your Excellency that in the council of ministers held at La Granja on the 4th, of the current month, under the presidency of his Highness the Regent, Prince Leopold of Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen was designated as candidate for the Throne of Spain. Impeachment of Napoleon III. The Paris Soir publishes from the pen of M. Edmond About the following masterly review of Napoleon's official career, and the statement of the sufferings he has entailed upon

May I be mistaken? But it seems to me that we are now beginning to pay very dearly our collective abdication in 1851 and 1852. A people may imagine itself in clover when it has relieved itself from the trouble of managing its own affairs, and when it has confided its destines to the hands of a bold and able man. The constitution leaves to this man the power of communding the land and sen forces, declaring war and making treattes of peace and siliance. What an excellent prefert for humble individuals to spare themselves the trouble of thinking about public matters, and laying themselves out to make as much money as possible in their own private occupations. But let us sure, as that the master elected by the people has more imagination than genits; that he has the appelite of a conqueror without the firmness and the settled purpose necessary to success; that he reckons too much upon his star, and expects from luck and the mistakes of others the results which he ought desherately to prepare for himself. Let us suppose that he lives from hand to reach tempting for insigned of making May I be mistaken? But it seems to me Let us suppose that he lives from hand to mouth, tempting fortune instead of making himself master of it. RUSSELL'S SOOTHING CORDIAL FOR INFANTS TEETHING.

ALLAYS INPLANMATION OF THE GUMS, CURES C. CHOLERA INFANTUM, DYSENTERY. AND ALL DISEASES TO WHICH CHILDREN ARE SUBJECT

CONTAINS NO ANODYNE.

RUSSELL'S SOOTHING CORDIAL is offered the public with an absolute guarantee against all danger from its use. Read the following certifi-

CHARLESTON, May 16 Mr. J. B. RUSSELL, one of our careful and intel ligent Pharmaceutists and Apothecaries, has sub-mitted to my examination the formula for the preparation of a Soothing Cordial prepared and vended by him. preparation of a Social vended by him.

It affords me pleasure to express a favorable opinion of its safe and efficient adaptation to the particular cases of the diseases of children, which it is designed to relieve.

E. GEDDINGS, M. D.

Having had occasion to prescribe Russell's Soothing Cordial in severe cases of Bowel Complaints in children and delicate females, I have been much pleased with its effects. I consider it a valuable medicine in all cases, in which it may be advisable to avoid the use of anodyne, and particularly for family use, as it is perfectly safe.

W. T. WRAGG, M. D.

CHARLESTON. S. C., 1868.

I certify that I have most successfully used Russell's Southing Cordial in the Summer Compizants of infants. He has fully exhibited the ingredients of his remedy, and the tedious method of preparation. I recognize the prescription—containing no anodyne whatever—as a most safe and efficacious one in bowel affections of children. When much pain or restlessness attends the affection, doses of Paregoric can be added to the prescribed doses of the Cordial according to the age of the patient. The compound, though more often, acts in an efficient manner without any addition of anodyne.

In the Diarrinea of the aged, in increased doses, it is of great value as a remedy; never disagreeing with the stomach—increasing appetite, improving digestion, and acting as a slow but efficient astringent agent.

W. M. FITCH, M. D. CHARLESTON. S. C., 1868.

Dear Sir—I have used your Southing Cordial for Diarrhea in teething colliders, and find it a very excellent preparation. It has a great advantage over most preparations of the kind in containing no Opium or Narcottle.

When these are required the property of the containing in the c over those personnel of the case.

When these are required they can be added in proportions applicable to the case.

I therefore can recommend its use in the affections for which it is designed.

Respectfully yours, &c.,

T. L. OGIER, M. D.

MOUNT PLEASANT, S. C., 1868. Mr. J. B. Russell:

Dear Sir.—I have used your Soothing Cordial for children extensively in my practice, and most cheerfully testify to its merits. I have found it, without an exception, to accomplish all it claims, and count 'er it superior to anything in use for children.

Its freedom from anodyne of any kind recon mends it as a perfectly safe preparation in the hands of mothers and inexperienced nurses.

Very respectfully, &c.,

D.R. WILLIAMS, M. D.
