-Tue German steamship Union, on her last sel left Bremen war had been declared for forty-eight hours, rendering it a hazardous undertaking to put to sea closely scrutinized by one of the most powerful fleets on the ocean. The Union, however, resolved to make the trial, and left in due time with a large cargo of emigrants. As she steamed by the mouth of the Weser she sighted the German ironclad fleet, which was then sinking craft and rendering the waters of the impassable to ships of war. She also saw the same movements at the Yada. Once past this point, the Union, instead of going o Southampton, immediately headed for the northern passage, in order to avoid the French cruisers then sailing about the English channel. The captain was now at sea, and at once proceeded to disguise his vessel. He painted a red stripe around the smokestack to imitate Williams & Guion's vessels, and having thus got under false colors he had a jolly passage. All was plain sailing until off Montauk Point, when a strange steamer, not showing her colors, was seen, and the Union was discreetly turned on a safe course under all steam, and was soon out of reach. The Union is now at the Hoboken docks, where she must remain until sold or the war ends. This extraordinary passage of the Union, on the eve of war, by vigilance keeping out of harm's way and the the French cruisers, was certainly a remarkable undertaking.

The State Debt more than Doubled in Two Years.

The Scott Ring know that for them there is no middle path. They must persuade the people to condone their offences by electing them again to office; or they must, after a full trial, stand before the public as convicted thieves and plunderers. The popular vote in October will determine the fate of the Ring, and they are busily engaged in the endeavor to convince the people that the Scott government is wise, honest and economical. This is their sole remaining hope, and their Paid Organ is now striving, with the calm desperation of despair, to prove that the debt of the State "has been increas-"ed, by the Republican party, just $700,000, "and not nine millions, as, with wilful and "malicious falsehood, is charged." This is bold way of meeting the assertion, reiterated in these columns, that the State debt has been more than doubled during the rule of the Ring; but as no charges of financial mismanagement have been made by us which cannot be proved by the official statements of the officers whom they condemn, we are ready to enter the lists with the champion of Robbery and Corruption, and allow the public to be the judge whether our assertions are either malicious or false.

1. The debt of the State on the 1st October, 1867, according to the official report of Comptroller-General Leaphart, was $5,407, 300; and, on the 1st October, 1868, according to the official report of Comptroller-General Neagle, it was $5,407,306 27. To this must be added the bonded debt incurred during the Scott administration, which the Organ of the Ring states thus:

For redemption of bills receivable.
For funding bills of the Bank of the ..$500.000 ...1,250,000 1.000.000 relief of the Treasury..... 700,000 $4,450,000 Add total debt, October 1, 1867..... 5,407,300

Total debt. $9,857,300 According, therefore, to the official state nent of the Organ of the Ring, the public debt, in two years, has been nearly doubled, without taking into account the $4,000,000 of Blue Ridge Railroad bonds, which, as we will show, are a certain and not a contingent liability of the State. By their own statement, then, the Ring acquit the Reform party of malicious falsehood. But as much cannot be said for the Ring. Governor Scott, in his message of 1869, (page 4,) says "the "State debt is comparatively small, amount_ ing in the aggregate to $6,183,349." And the Comptroller-General, in his report for 1869, sets down the funded debt of the State, (page $7,) at the same amount. Here is a deliberate official statement of the public debt, and that statement does not show the whole truth by more than $3,000,000: Neither Governor Scott nor Comptroller-General Neagle includes in his estimate of $6.183.349, the past due Fire Loan bonds, or the State bonds in the hands of, or pawned by, the financial agent of the State. Adding these amounts, we make the actual debt on November 1, 1869: According to Governor Scott $6,183,349

Governor Scott and Comptroller-General Neagle were, therefore, guilty of a falsehood in speaking of the total debt as $6,183,349. And we claim that it was a "malicious false-"hood," because the effect of its publication would naturally be to enhance, without good cause, the price of State bonds, of which, according to the Organ of the Ring, Gover nor Scott held a large amount. This is, we hold, an unfortunate turning of the tables for the defenders of the administration, and dis poses summarily of the accusation of "mali-"cious falsehood" made against this paper and the Reform party. While admitting the fatal fact that the Scott Ring have added $4,450,000 to the public debt in two years, the Party Organ endeavors to evade responsibility by the plea that the whole amount, (excepting the issue of bonds for funding bank bills, and for the Land Commission,) was actually contracted by preceding administrations whose legacy it was. In support of this plea, the Ring Organ says that when the Scott Party came into power, (1,) there was not a dollar in the Treasury; (2,) there was a floating debt, due and unpaid, of $995,973; and, (3,) the unpaid interest on the State debt to July 1, 1868, was $355,204 32. That is to say, if these statements be correct, the Ring had to provide for: Floating debt...... Total.....$1,351,177 And they provided for this debt by issuing bonds as follows:

.....$ 500,000 For bills receivable. 1,000,000

$2,500,000 The Ring, therefore, taking their own Great harmony prevailed. A constitution statements as the truth, piled up a debt of was adopted, officers elected, and the sy-cu-$2,500,000, (to be paid in coin,) to provide tive Committee requested to invite Judge for a debt of $1,351,177 in currency. This Carpenter and General Butler to address the passage from Bremen to this country, arrived is enough to justify the charges made against citizens of Chasterfield on the 8th of August, at New York on Saturday. > in the State Treasury. On the 1st May, 1868, when Mr. Treasurer Hood turned over his accounts, there was $95,546 26 in the State Treasury, the receipt of which amount is admitted by Mr. Treasurer Parker in his_report of the receipts and expenditures at the State Treasury from May 1st, 1868, to October 31, 1868.

2. It is untrue (or the official record is incorrect) that there was a floating debt of $995,973 when the Ring came into power. According to the report of Mr. Treasurer Hood, the whole amount needed for carrying on the State Government from May 1, 1868, (when the Ring took charge,) to the end of the fiscal year, was $265,727. Is it then possible that there could have been at that time "due and unpaid," a floating debt of nearly a million? The statement is absurd. And we are not without more specific proof. Gov ernor Scott, in his message of 1869, says: "When the present State Government came into power, I found that the Provisional Government, controlling the State from the "close of the war, had contracted many debts among these liabilities was a floating "debt amounting to $477,965. This debt was "due to various county officials, sheriffs,

"magistrates, coroners and other claims against the State. There had also been put in circulation bills receivable to the amount of $222,000." Now we begin to see day light. Governor Scott, whose word cannot be doubted, sets the floating debt, when he came into power, at $699,965; while his own Paid Organ declares that this debt was $995,-973. Here is a difference of $300,000 between two infallibles. And this is not all. Governor Scott says that on May 1, 1868, there were in circulation bills receivable to the amount of $220,000. But Governor Orr, in his message (page 7,) says: "On "the first day of May, 1868, there was out-"standing and in circulation of these bills re-"ceivable only $135,687." Now, can it be expected that any faith shall be reposed in the solemn declarations of Scott and his Organ, when they contradict each other, and are, both of them, contradicted by Governor Orr and the State Treasurer under his administration? We deny that the Ring administration were without money, or that to the reason, and not to the sensibilities they had to provide for, as they claim, a If so, Euclid, and not George Eliot, should floating debt amounting to $1,351,177. We be the XIX Century's beau ideal of a great admit that the interest on the State debt to July 1, 1868, was $355,204, according to Governor Scott; and that there were in circulation bills receivable amounting to $135,687, as stated by Governor Orr. We will throw in $100,000 for miscellaneous claims. This is the result :

This is the whole amount that the Scott Government had to deal with, and in providing for it they issued State bonds to the amount of $2,500,000. We need say no

One further statement is made by the Or gan of the Ring. It admits that the debt is nearly doubled in two years, and by its own figures convicts itself of conspicuous inexactness. But it declares that the four millions of Blue Ridge bonds are "in no legal or "technical sense a debt to-day," and says "they are at most only a contingent debt, never, in all human probability, an actual "debt." Our reply to this is contained in Governor Scott's message for 1869, page 8. Governor Scott there shows that it will require $8,000,000, instead of $4,000,000, to put the Blue Ridge Railroad in running order, and says:

"It must be apparent . . . that the first mort gage, ($4,000,000,) covering the entire property of the company, and the work but little more than half completed, the whole investment must remain as dead capital until the means are provided to finish the road In any failure ... to open communication with the West, the State must be the sufferer. It would be adding to a direct investment of a million and a half of dollars, a contingent liability of four millions of dollars, neither of which can be made to pay the accruing interest without the expenditure of more capital for the completion of the road."

This is strong enough; but Governor Scott, growing more emphatic, tells the Legislature they must assist the company to complete the road, or must "repeal the act of September, 1868, whereby four million dol-"lars more of bonds, guaranteed by the 'State, would be sunk and made worthless.' This is all that we have to say at present on the subject of the State debt. We have shown (1) that the State debt, including the Blue Ridge bonds, is admitted by the Ring to be nearly $14,000,000, as compared with $5,500,000 in 1867; (2,) that Governor Scott, in his message to the General Assembly in 1869, set down the total debt, (exclusive of Blue Ridge bonds,) at $6,183.349, while, in truth, it was $9,367,793; (3,) that the Ring began business with $95,546, instead of without a cent; (4,) that the Ring Organ declares that the floating debt in May, 1868, to be paid by the Bing, was $1,351,177, while Governor Scott declares it was only $699,-965, and while Governor Orr's report makes it about certain that the floating debt did mot exceed $600,000; (5,) that Governor Scott stated that on March, 1868, there were in circulation $220,000 of bills receivable while Governor Orr and Treasurer Hood show that the amount was only $135,687; (6,) that the Ring have issued $2,500,000 in bonds, payable in coin, to meet the floating debt of $600,000 in currency; (7,) that Gov ernor Scott declared, less than a year ago, that unless the State furnish the whole $3. 000,000 or $9,000,000 required to complete the Blue Ridge Road, the $4,000,000 of bonds of that company, guaranteed by the State, will "be sunk and worthless."

This is exposure enough for one day, and enough, we believe, to impress upon the people more firmly than ever the urgent necessity of Retrenchment and Reform.

A PUBLIC MEETING was held at the Town rall, in Cheraw, on the 26th ult., to form a club to co-operate with the Union Reform party. A good number of the citizens of the town, and a considerable number from different parts of the county, were present Mathematical Novels.

A fly once lit upon the horn of ar ox and buzzed. "If I weigh you down," said he, "I will go away!" But the ox replied: "Tknew not when you came, and care not when you go."-Eson's Fables ..

The celebrated XIX Century, like the above famous fly, has in its August number, perched upon the coffin of Mr. Dickens, and

The purport of the buzz is this, that Mr. Dickens is not a great novelist, but that George Eliot is, and in that remarkable opinion we may as safely leave the XIX Century as the ox did the fly.

OR RENT OR SALE, A BEAUTHFUL ESTATE in orangeburg District; situated on Lyons Creek, three and a half miles from the South Carolina Railread. The tract contains 2500 acres, soil rich red clay, adapted to cotton, corn, wheat, root crops and clover.

A splendid range for cattle; sunny hillsides for vineyards, and low lands for meadows. Lyons Creek, a large, never-failing stream runs-through the estate, and furnishes one of the finest water powers in the State. But in this instance we have a philosoph cal fly, and it gives its reasons for buzzing as it does. The principal support for the position that Mr. Dickers is not a great now elist, is in the following sentence:

"His power over the hearts of his reader 'arises in a great degree from what, critically considered, must be regarded as a fatal de fect-a false, or at least impertect conception of life, which led him to exaggerate certain phases of human nature, and by viewing humanity partially and in a narrow and restricted light, to produce thereby an intensity of effect which fascinates and enthralis the sen-'sibilities, but never touches the reason."

Truly, our fly is funny. Mr. Dickens's power arises from a fatal defect." Would it not be well if some of the modern magazines had a "fatal defect" of that kind? And, "by-the-by," the XIX Century ought not to say, "By viewing, &c., to produce "thereby." One "by" is enough. So care less a blunder cannot be allowed in any composition higher than a lalla-by ba-by. But the point of the sentence is this, Mr. Dickens enthralls the sensibilities, but does not touch the reason, therefore he is not a great novelist .- Q. E. D.

Surely, this is a modern discovery, which was reserved for the XIX Century. The thing is so very funny that we are inclined, in charity, to think the XIX Century sat up too late the night before its issue, and penned this gem in a sleepy condition. We see something at the end about a "sphere" and a "tangent." Perhaps the writer got novels confused with mathematics, and was really proving Mr. Dickens to be no mathematician. If so, the opinion would be less striking, but more correct.

Shall we have more light on the subject in the next number?

FLAVORING EXTRACTS. IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

QUALITY STILL FURTHER IMPROVED.

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES.

We beg leave respectfully to call the attention of the public to our Superior Flavoring Extracts. As ten years have now elapsed since we first introduced them to the notice of the American public, we deem it unnecessary at present to enter into a lengthy description of their merits, &c. There is hardly a city or town of any note in the country into which they have not found their way. The reason of this widespread popularity and daily increasing demand is owing entirely to their peculiar excellence and intrinsic worth. Being determined to make them the Standard Extracts of the day, we have still further improved their quality, and now we firmly and honestly believe that they stand without a rival. Our Vanilla Extract cannot be surpassed for richness and delicacy of flavor. It is a strictly pure and highly concentrated Extract of Vanilla Eyans. In short, we think it the best that is infade, at least, this is the decision of the best index in the country. We don't pretend to compete in price with many of the so-called Flavoring Extracts of the day, which are really but worthless. compounds, undeserving of the name.

For quality and style, we defy competition. 31,287 28 For quality and style, we defy competition.
