dining-room, fitted up to correspond with the royal magnificence above, and the culinary department, capable of supplying the wants of a Claffin, the mother of the two lady brokers, says she "sometimes thinks it looks like heaven itself," or that the interviewing reporter overhauled his tale of Allah-ed-Deen before writing it up.

Our Supplement To-Day.

The pressure of advertisements compels us, in justice to our readers, to issue this morning a two-page supplement, which will be found to contain a deal of instructive and entertaining reading matter." The masterly speech of General Conner on the State finances, the discussion by two colored men of the relative merits of Radicalism and Reform, and the interesting details about the policy of Russia, will all repay careful perusal. The ladies will, of course, be eager to read the fashion revelations of Jennie June.

The Sophistries of Attorney-Genera Chamberlain.

The Reform party demands a change of government, because the Scott Ring have increased taxation, piled up the State debt mountains high, and, by their shameless conduct, brought a blush to the cheek of every honest man in the State. The Scott Ring, on the other hand, take up the gauntlet and declare themselves ready to stake their political fortunes upon the financial record of their party. The main assertions of the Scott Ring were exposed, and their misstatements pointed out, in the public prints. It became necessary to make out a better case than was shown in the official records, and Mr. Attorney-General Chamberlain, an adroit pleader of a bad cause, was put before the public as the champion of the financial policy of the administration. It is admitted that he did his work well, and his speech delivered at Chester is accepted as an official exposition of the financial condition of the State, and of the value and cost of the services performed by the ruling party. The best foot is put foremost in this speech, which is circulated all over South Carolina as a campaign document. We have the -The downfall of the Empress has carried | right, therefore, to require the Scott Ring to stand squarely upon the record as presented and the other that only $593,866 is due him. A slight difference surely. Looking closely into the accounts between Kimpton and the State, General Conner finds further, and still more startling, instances of discrepancies in the official accounts. It is plainly shown that Mr. Kimpton does not give the State er as paid to him. Who has that money Perhaps Mr. Chamberlain, who knows so much, can enlighten an anxious public.

Returning to the financial exhibit, General Conner shows that Mr. Chamberlain OVER-STATES BY $165,000 the amount of bills receivable outstanding in 1868. Unless the Scott government reissued $165,000 of these bills, they did not have to redeem them. purtenances in the style of Henry IV. The third Again, Mr. Chamberlain says that the Scott government found the treasury EMPTY, but the old government turned over to Governor Scott's treasurer nearly ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS. General Conner also shows the fallacy of the statements made by Mr. Chamberlain with regard to the Blue Ridge bonds. This closes General Conner's review of the financial administration of Governor Scott. dinner party of a hundred. No wonder Madam | The results are stated fairly, and the authority is given for every assertion. . It is shown clearly that Mr. Chamberlain is grossly ignorant of what he defends and pretends to justify and explain, or that he has, in cold blood, attempted to cajole and deceive the public. And the investigation which has brought to light the blunders, or false state ments, of Attorney-General Chamberlain, proves conclusively that the Scott administration, far from justifying the encomiums, of its tools, has been marked by official ignorance and extravagance-if not personal corruption. We hope that every merchant, business man and property-holder in South Carolina will read General Conner's speech. They may then, at last, understand how vitally important to them is the success of the Re form party,

The County Ticket.

The nominations of the Union Reform Convention for Charleston County have been well received. There are some malcontents, of course, but the masses of the people will cordially support the regular Reform ticket, and the unsuccessful candidates, the pain of their disappointment over, will not be willing to allow personal feeling to stand in the way of the success of the party. Our sister counties are working vigorously and efficiently, and, if we value the commercial position of Charleston, we cannot afford to set an example of discord and disaffection. Every chance word spoken at the street corners will be used to the detriment of the Reform movement. Out of every mole-hill will be made a political mountain. The ticket is not perfect in every respect, but it is a good ticket, thoroughly representative in character, and the unbiassed choice of the County Convention. An attempt is said to have been made to force a cut-and-dried ticket upon the Convention; and, if this be so, the whole scheme was an ignominious failure. The delegates were not men who could be tampered with, and they did their work honestly, expeditiously and well.

The duty of the people is now clear and plain. They know what are the characteristics of the Scott Ring, and what are the results of two years of extravagant misrule. They have before them two tickets-one made n;) of men who are sent to the Legislature for a special purpose, and who have no other object than to take things easily and retir

-About sunset on Friday evening two young men, of Alexandria, Va., in order to and in 1869 was $1,500,000 - more than settle a difficulty that had arisen between three times as much-points out the fact that them, armed themselves with knives, and, accompanied by some of their respective friends, repaired to the grounds around Lockabar, across the canal locks, where, having doffed their coats, they fought according to the rules in force in Western Texas previous to the war. Alter a prolonged conflict, during which both were cut and slashed to an extent that satisfied their friends, they were separated and carried to surgeons to have their wounds dressed. Neither of them was mortally hurt.

-On all the street railroads in New York and Brooklyn, with one exception, and on the Washington and Georgetown street railway, and on the Cincinnati and Philadelphia lines, the fare has been reduced to five cents, now that the United States tax is repealed, which allowed the collection of one cent from each passenger. The Washington Star says of the reduction to five cents in that city, it having been only six cents heretofore : "It may berough for the stockholders, but the public like the re duction amazingly. A five cent fare is so handy you know! An exuberant friend announces his purpose to ride over the road all day, to enjoy the luxuries of paying five-cent fares."

-A Sedan letter, of the 8th, says: "McMahon is here, very badly but not mortally wounded, and a prisoner. He is one of those who would not give their parole not to serve against Prussia during the present war. His in both 1859 and 1860 large sums were raiswife, the Duchess of Magenta, arrived here two days ago, bringing with her a surgeon from Paris and a well known Sister of Charity to help nurse her husband. She was at the Marshal's estate, near Nismes, and would have come to her husband in twenty-tour hours, but the Prussians would not allow her to pass their lines, and so she had to go round by the centre and west of France, reach Paris, then go by the Northern railway to Brussels, and so come through Bouillon to Sedan over the Belgian frontier. From all I hear, McManon would be likely to recover quickly from his wound were it not that he frets and fumes at the past and worries himself very much about the future. He blames the Enperor very much, indeed, for having surrendered this place, and declares that General de Wimpffen ought to have tried to can his way through the enemy, even rect. Deducting from the expenditures of df out of eighty thousand men he had lost forty thousand in attempting to do so."

-A reporter has dipped his pen in gold and verminou to describe the ladies' club-house of Mesdames Woodhull and Claffin, situated in the most iashionable part of New York, between Fitth and Madison avenues. Two staircases of brown stone lead to massive walnut doors, with plate-glass panels, which swing on Wist'er to a hall panelled with Parlan, Villetri, 'the accounts of H. H.
