NEWS OF THE DAY.

-Gold closed in New York, yesterday, at -Cotton was quiet; uplands 16% cents; sales 3500 bales.

-In Liverpool cotton closed firmer; uplands 9%d; Orleans 9%d; sales 12,000 bales. -Telegraphic communication with Havana and points heyond, has been restored. -Since the rinderpest has broken out among cattle in the German camps, the government has adopted the plan of having the animals slaughtered at home, and the meat corned and packed for transmission. -Politiciar's from Pennsylvania and other Radical States demand the removal of Creswell and Fish from the Cabinet, on the ground that they represent States' hopelessly Democratic, while Pennsylvania, which stands up to the administration, has no consideration from the President. No one need be surprised should Fish and Creswell both resign before January 1st. -It is stated that there are at present in Paris about six hundred English persons who have no means of support, and who have daily to be fed. The cases are examined into by visitors, and relief is afforded in the form of rations and a small sum of money. An adult man receives every week twelve pounds of bread, one pound of rice, two ounces of Liebig's extract of meat and one franc. An adult woman receives the same rations, with the exception of eight pounds of bread, instead of twelve. This class of distressed persons is evidently composed of English servants who have been left in Paris without means.

-The Galveston papers, which come to us in mourning, contain elaborate biographical accounts of the many leading citizens of that place who were lost on the ill-fated Varuna. Indeed, almost all of those lost were prominent not only In their husiness relations and in the commercial improvements of the City of Galveston and the State generally, but were also leading men in the Neither of the belligerents has a particle of Methodist, the Episcopal and Roman Catholic Churches. Immediately on receipt of the news a meering of citizens was called in the hall of the Chamber of Commerce to take measures for the observance of a day of mourning. A general religious service was decided upon, and all places of business in the city agreed to close on the day selected.

-There is a passage in her Majesty's Journal of Our Life in the Highlands, which receives an accession of interest from the impending marriage of the Brinces Laise. It occurrs in the description of the royal visit to Inverary. "Our reception," writes her Majesty, "was in the true Highland fashion. " The pipers walked before the carriage, and the Highlanders on either side, as we approached the house. Outside stood the Marquis of Lorne, just two years old, a dear, white, fat, fair little fellow, with reddish hair, but very delicate features, like both his father and mother; he is such a merry, independent little child. He had a black velvet dress and jacket, with a 'sporan' scarf, and Highland bonnet."

-Don Platt says: "To enter the counting room of a successful journal and ask for the leading editor is a hazardous business. You are generally regarded as the enemy, and treated accordingly. In that of the New York Tribune, for example, you are first insuited by a lofty indifference to the space you fill in creation, and, after pitching the animated arithmetic out of that, you are told from one to a dozen lies direct. The immediate, whereabouts of Mr. Greeley is a subject for romance on the part of the animated multiplication table that sits on end, and armed with steel pen, relieves 'the 'monotony of its existence by posting the old-hatted philosopher in all sorts of impossible places."

in correspondent writing from Lendon, says: "The most extraordinary machine in the exhibition is beyond question, the one for microscope writing. This enables a person to write in the usual way, and to duplicate his writing a million times smaller, so small, indeed, that it is invisible to the naked eye, yet with a powerful microscope becomes so plain that every line and dot can be seen. The inventor claims that with this instrument-he can copy the entire Bible twenty-two times in the space of an inch. The Astor library, I presume, could be transferred to a sheet of notepaper. Practically it will be of great service in preventing forgeries. With one of these machines, a private mark can be put on bills so minute and 'porfect that the forger can neither perceive nor imitate it, but the bank clerk or broker, knowing where to look, can at once detect that a bill is grauine. The machine is the invention of a Mr. Peters." -Colonel Sir Henry James, in a recent lecture on the Pyramids of Egypt, stated that, in the King's Chamber, inside the Pyramid, some of the stones were thirty feet long. These stones weigh. ng ninety tons, were not found in Egypt at all. but were taken down the Nile, a dis ance of five hundred miles, and then placed in their present position, one hundred feet above the level of the ground. With regard to their finish, these Svenite stones are the very hardest known, and yet they are so exquisitely polished, and built in the form a casting for the ing's Chamber) with such superior skill that the finest sheet of tissue paper could not be inserted, between two of the stones and this after a lapse of four thousand years. The scientific questions that arise out of these facts are curious. How these immense blocks weighing ninety tons, were handled; how they were taken on and off shipboard; how transport ed across a sandy desert, and then lifted hun dreds of feet to their positions in the Pyramid which no machinery known to modern times is equal to, is all a mystery which the world has yet ence. It bids fair to supersede the personal advertisement column. The agent of Satan, who keeps the shop, says: "I propose to keep a thoroughly genteel office, where anybody can have mail matter addressed and kept until called for. All classes of society, by means of this office, can exchange billets doux without danger of exposure. I have among mypatrons already the names of merchants, bankers, brokers and professional and business men of all grades, many of whom are well known in the community. Ladies, too, from the Fifth Avenue, Madison Avenue and other fashionable streets up town, stop in front of my door, and other points in the neighborhood, and send their servants to my office for their mail. Sometimes mysterious ladies come personally, who are heavily velled, and whose entrance and exit are almost instantaneous. They receive their highly-prized epistles and depart. It's none of my business who they are. If I did know I wouldn't tell. I never divulge any secrets I may have discovered." He declares that he receives and delivers two or three hundred letters a day. Old Sawney is evidently loose in England and Germany.

A special telegram from London, printed yesterday, gives the distressing news that the whole tide of popular opinion, in England, is running in favor of the French, and that there is now a hearty wish for the repulse of the German armies. This feeling was encouraged by the small affair known as the Battle of Orleans-a French victory which has created indescribable enthusiasm in France, but which is a mere scratch upon the hand of victorious Germany. The surrender of the French armies at Sedan and Metz putit out of the power of France to offer any successful or serious resistance to the German advance. There may be a check here and a repulse there, but, upon the whole, the invading armies will move steadily forward until there is a party strong enough to confess the French defeat, and a government stable enough to make peace and keep

But Austria is growling, and England has come to the conclusion that she will be "the "next victim of German ambition." There is nothing in the course of events to indicate that the German policy is, or will be, one of wanton aggression. It is conceived to be the mission of King William to unite all the German-speaking peoples of Europe in one mighty government, or under the hegemony of Prussia. This is the objective point to which are directed the thoughts and hopes of every one of the fifteen hundred thousand armed Germans who keep watch and ward in France, and within the borders of Fatherland. And this, sooner or later, will be accomplished; not with a view of building up a military despotism, but to protect the progress of civilization, to enlarge the scope of modern thought; and to lay surely and deeply the broad foundations of constitutional freedom. This consummation England can no more prevent than the word of Canute could halt the crested waves which thundered on the shores of his kingdom.

England has lost her opportunity. energetic protest from the British Cabinet, at the time of the withdrawal of Prince Leopold as a candidate for the throne of Spain, would have prevented the bloody war which breaks the heart of France, and wreathes with laurels incarnadine the victorious crown of Germany. The Emperor Napoleon, in the face of the remonstrances of England, would not have dared to plunge his people into the sea of troubles which now encompasses them. But England was confident that France would be victorious, or that both combatants would so exhaust themselves as to strengthen the commercial power and maritime force of Great Britain. The calculation was an unworthy one. respect for the present suggestions of the not allow any power which gave her the cold-shoulder when the fortunes of war were uncertain, to tell her how far she shall go in the day of her surpassing triumph. Germany is well able to manage her own affairs. Forced into the war, compelled to take up the sword, she will make peace upon her own terms, though all the rest of Europe were banded together to wrest from her the material guarantees which she holds as the prizes of successful war. Germany is anxious for a firm and lasting peace, but the terms of peace will be determined by her own ministers, and not by a government which she neither loves nor fears.

The Next Congress.

The table printed below shows the probable political complexion of the House of Representatives of the Forty-second Congress. Elections are yet to be held in California, Connecticut, Georgia, New Hampshire and Texas, and the result in those is only estimated. We think, however, that a close scrutiny of the list will make it evident that the calculation is not too favorable to the Democrats.

In view of the general Democratic gains throughout the country, the New York World claims 5 of the 7 members coming from Georgia, 2 of the 4 from Connecticut, 2 of the 4 from Texas, and the 3 California members. We concede the three New Hampshire districts to the Radicals. By this estimate we foot up a total of 103 Democrats. 133 Radicals, and 2 Independents, leaving a Radical majority in the next House of only 25 against 109 in the present House:

and all sorts of claudestine and illicit correspond- circumstances, the Democratic gain must be enormous. The Radicals will find themselves deprived of the two-thirds majority which they have used so constantly in securing the immediate passage of obnoxious and injurious measures. A powerful minority will watch the Radicals at every turn, and, at all times, make a gallant fight for Purity, Economy, Free Trade and Low Taxation.

Columbia Hospitality

The citizens of Columbia were "on hos-"pitable cares intent" during the whole of last week, and exerted themselves to the utmost to give a worthy entertainment, to the busy thousands who thronged the thriving capital. All the arrangements connected with the State Fair were excellent. The Grand Ball of the South Carolina Club was a model of refined taste, courteous care, and skilful management. And the dinner provided for the delegates to the State Survivors' Association was a fine example of bounteous cheer, coupled with a cordial and generous greeting.

A host of pleasant memories remain with those who had the good fortune to visit Columbia during the State Fair.
