De Bellaigue holds his appointment from the Thiers Government, and says that the new consul-general entered the diplomatic service as an attache in the French Foreign Office, whence, after a course of special studies, he was sent to Italy. M. De Bellaigue is only thirty-five years old, and is endowed with the rare qualities required for the discharge of the important and delicate duties entrusted to his care. In Charleston M. De Bellaigue has many warm friends, who regret his departure, while they are and to hear of his well deserved promotion.

THE ASHLEY. At the present time there is no locality in South Carolina which more abounds in features of general interest than the Ashley River. The remark applies not slone to the tourist, but to our own people, of whom there are thousands who know nothing of the curious scenes and reminiscences belonging to that locality. The neighborhood is not more rich in phosphatic attractions than in revolutionary lore, and between the two, a visitor must possess little appreciation, either of present progress or past history, not to derive erjoyment from a day's trip. The place has already become a weekly resort, and arrangements have been perfected whereby our citizens may indulge in recreation at once entertain ag

One of the most successful of these recent excurs ons "Up the Ashley" was made on Saturday last, when the Pilot Boy, under the command of Captain Sly, carried nearly two hundred persons to every interesting point on the river within a day's journey. The company consisted of not a few prominent citizens of Charleston, and distinguished persons in social and public life from the North. Tully was also on board, and probably never gathered so many laurels on any one occasion as he then did in offering to his guests table after tableful of the choicest products of the cuisine which the season affords. The excursion embraced dissolving views of the various phosphate enterprises along the river; new, fresh looking factories, busy in manipulating the great piles of the fertilizing rock that line the past 9 o'clock, at their store, hams, shoulders, &c. banks; old time plantations in the background; fields once rich in cotton and rice, but now denuded and bare, stretching far away from the river bank until lost in the prospective; patches of home life embroldered in oaks and shrouded with hanging moss; deep excavations fringing the steamer's course, out of which protrudes the luxurious crop of phosphates and fossils which have made millions of capital subservient to their use; vessels loading with lumber for Northern and West Indian ports; and finally on reaching Magnolia and Drayton Hall-flowers. The Garden of Eden could scarcely have presented a greater array of unobtrusive loveliness than was observable on these places. The very avenues were almost hidden in the luxurious growth, and it was hard to resist the temptation to pluck rose and azalea, and bear away these blooming poems through which beats the tender heart of nature. Many of the visitors remained at the above named places to revel in the beauty by which they were surrounded, and picule parties were improvised on the spot for the enjoyment of an hour. The boat then proceeded to the place of Mr. Williams Middieton, by long odds the most interesting locality of the kind in South Carolina.

Here is to be seen the work of ten generationsand in the same glance the desolating power of one brief hour. An old mansion that was like a palace—now a mass of charred rulns; miles upon miles of avenues, pends, lakes, drives, vistas, live oaks thirty-eight feet in circumference, lawns whereon ranged choice cattle from the Indies and from Europe; the wreck of a stable fit for a prince, which once sheltered the best blooded horses of the South; the massive quarters of the house servants; the remakes of a Horary which once held ten thousand volumes, and pictures of priceless value; and last, the old ancestral tomb, where the 56th New York Regiment, breaking down the doors, tore open the comine and scatter. ed through the grounds the skele ton of one who was formerly the United States Minister to Russia, and of others whose names were identified with the history of our country; a tomb from which were stolen the bones of two members of the family and carried North to be hung the house of some Ghoul. The company lingered at this point for two or three hours It was difficult to make the strangers present believe that such descovation was possible in thenineteenth century. Here, too, the rare natural peauties of the place were enjoyed, though the visitors felt loth to obey the injunction not to plack the flowers and vines which for a hundred years or more, in peace and war, have borne their blessings and constituted a portion of the wealth of a princely home.

The exentsionists returned to the city by moonlight, and all without exception appeared to feel that they had enjoyed, indeed, "a day missed from Paradise." On Saturday, the Pilot Boy will probably make another trip of the same kind, and we are sure that Mr. J. D. Aiken, Captain Sly, Mr.

we are sure that Mr. J. D. Aiken, Capitain Sly, Mr. Phouron, the purer, and Tully, the caterer, will again use their feet endeavors to contribute to the happiness of their guests.

UNFORTUNATE ACCIDENT, Testerday morning, shout half past to door. Dr. Edward Ravenel met with a scribbary of East Bay street. He was driving along their bury in troof of the First Material Bury, and a colored tervant by his side great the swing street and the light test under his till past to clear the rein frightened the horse, and, dashing off obliquely, frightened the horse, and, dashing off obliquely, he struck a dray-in front of Mr. Campsen's store. Both of the occupants of the buggy were thrown riclently to the ground by the shock, and the porse rushed down the street with the vehicle. The latter struck the sidewalk, as the horse turned down towards the wharf, at the store of Messrs, Bulwinkle & Co., and, being overturned, so encumbered the frightened animal that he was secured. Dr. Ravenel received a severe qui across the head, and was taken into a store opposite the place of his fall, where his wound was dressed. It is not thought to be of a serious nature. The servant got of with a bruise on his foot and a sprained ankle. The dashboard of the buggy was knocked off, but, beyond this, the vehicle auffered little damage.

PRESENTMENT OF THE GRAND JURY .- In the Circuit Court on Saturday morning the grand ury, before being discharged, made their usual presentment, which was read aloud in court. In this presentment they deplored the unsettled con dition of the State, and the evils of the present government. They presented the inadequate mail facilities of Lancaster County, and auggested that the contractor carry the mail with more care. The jail they reported clean and well-managed, and the food good. They further said the interior of this place required whitewashing and many repairs, and expressed their astonishment that it should be in this condition when so much money had been expended of late by the county commissioners. Lastly, they expressed their graification at the work lately begun on the old

In reply to this presentment, Judge Bond said that while he was convinced that the grand jury were expressing their honest convictions, they were entitled to speak officially only by presentment or indictment, and that whatever evils may exist in the State government did not come within their province to mention unless the United States laws were violated, or a remedy be give by statute. The custom was only apt to lead to dissensions and conflicting statements of conduct anless they were charged with the power to punish the one or change the other. The judge also said that what was said about the jall would have the attention of the court.

THE STATE DENTAL ASSOCIATION.

Annual Meeting-First Day.

MORNING SESSION. The annual-session of the South Carolina State Dantal Association began yesterday morn-thg at 11 A. M., Dr. J. B. Patrick in the chaft. The neeting was opened with prayer by the Rev. J. r. Wightman. The roll was called and fifteen members were found to be present. The minutes of the semi-annual meeting were read and con-

The president introduced Professor George T. Barker, of the "Pennsylvania College of Dental Surgery," to the members of the association. Professor Barker, in a few well timed remarks, stated that his object in visiting this association was to contribute his mite in elevating the standard of the dental profession.

A preamble and resolutions on the death of Dr. O. Starr Brewster, formerly of South Carolina. but later of Europe, were unanimously adopted, and a copy of the same was ordered to be traps mitted to the family of the deceased. Dr. Winkler presented application for member-

Trade offering their rooms for the use of this asso-Two members of the committee who were appointed to make arrangements for entertaining the Southern Dental Association being absent, Drs. T. T. Moore and B. C. Hart were appointed in their stead, with Dr. Wright as chairman.

A committee, consisting of Drs. Wardiaw and Redrigues, were appointed to examine the books of the treasurer. The chair informed the association that Profes or Barker had kindly consented to hold a clinic

before this body. On motion of Dr. Winkler, a committee of three was appointed to extend the thanks of this asso ciation to the president and members of the Phoenix Engine Company for the numerous acts of kindness shown the association.

On motion of Dr. Chupein, the following gentle men, Drs. Chupein, Wardlaw and Bond, were appointed a committee to tender the thanks and high appreciation of this association to Dr. S. C. Barnum, of New York, for his valuable gift of Rubber dam" to the profession.

On motion of Dr. Winkler, the association pro ceeded to eject a delegate to represent the South Carolina Dental Association in the Southern Dental Association. Upon ballot, Dr. T. T. Moore, of Columbia was elected.

Dr. Wardlaw offered the following amendment to the constitution, which was unanimously

Resolved, That Article IV, Section I, of the con-titution be altered to read: "This association hall hold its meetings annually." The selection of a place for holding the next regular meeting being next in order, on motion of Dr. Patrick it was made a special order for half-past 10 A. M. to-day. At 3 P. M. the association took a recess until s o'clock, P. M.

EVENING SESSION. At 8 o'clock the association was called to order by the president.

Dr. Winkler presented an application for memership from Dr. A. M. Snider. Upon ballot he was elected a member. Dr. Wardiaw read a very interesting paper on 'Filling roots of teeth;" after which, following some very able discussions, participated in by Professors Knapp and Angell, of the "New Orleans Dental College;" after which the "Treatment of Alveols Abscess" was freely discussed by the above-named gentlemen and others. Dr. Chupeia moved that the Southern-Deuts Association be invited to be present as the deliv

PAROCHIAL SCHOOL OF THE CHURCH OF THE HOLY COMMUNION.-We will print to morrow a fall report of the Easter celebration of this school which took place yesterday.

THE FREUNDSCHAFTSBUND The members of this society enjoyed last evening another of those, musical and dramatic entertainments which the varied talents of the members enable them to afford. The vocal and instrumental music was as usual, of the highest order, and the popular German drams of "Das Fest der Handwerker" was rendered in a manner that has seldom been equalled by amateurs. The inevitable dancing followed, and the reunion closed in the happiest and pleasantest manner.

THE CHICORA DRAMATIC CLUB. -The Hiberpian Hall was crowded last evening with the guests of this popular club, and seldom has a more in telligent or respectable audience gathere in this city to witness a play by amateurs. The hall was well ventilated, and a fine band in attendance added to the pleasures of the evention The "Hunchback" was played in a manner which did-honor to the corps, and evinced careful prenaration and a true understanding of their reles by the amateur players. "Julia" was particularly good in several scenes, and, after repeated an plause, was called before the curtain with Master Walter at the end of the third act. The performance was altogether a success, and was highly enjoyed by the numerous guests present.

THE UNITED STATES COURT .- The Circuit Court was opened at 10 o'clock, Monday morning, Hon. Hugh L. Bond, and Hon. Geo. S. Bryan presiding.

The jurors having been called, all answered to their names, and the court resumed the consideration of the Beaufort commissioners' case. Mr. O'Connor concluded his argument for the defence and the district attorney was heard in reply.

THE CHARGE OF JUDGE BOND. After Mr. Corbin had closed, the judge charged the jury to the following effect: That the defendants were indicted under the act of Congress of the 31st of May, 1870, to enforce the rights of citizens in elections, and that the jury, who had listened to the testimony of the witnesses in the case, needed no reminder of the great importance of the trial-that the purity of the ballot-box was involved. He cautioned them to consider the testimony with the utmost deliberation. That they must divest themselves of all party feeling, if any they had, and look at the facts proved, not as partisans, but a citizens and sworn jurymen. They must deliberately weigh the testimony upon the solemnity of their oaths, and give their verdict promptly. Tast in judging of the value of the tes timony of the men and witnesses before them they were to take into consideration their manner of testifying, their capabilities and experience in the matters to which they testified-the style. tine, face, appearance and everything respecting a witness on the stand—that when they came to discuss this matter of handwriting, the value of it as testimony depended entirely upon the opportunities the witnesses had for knowing the handwriting of the party with whom they are familiar and their experience In distinguishing one man's handwriting from that of another. That it must be apparent to them that there are some men who are infinitely better prepared to testify about men's handwriting than other persons are. The teller of a bank; for instance, being a much better witness, as to the handwriting of any party. than the jury or the court. That it was their duty, in this case, to find whether or not the crimes charged in the indictment had been comni ted at all, for if they found no such offences had been committed the case was at an end. That the offences were set forth in four separate counts of the indictment, the first charging that the defendants, as commissioners, had not done their duty; the second that they had erased the names from ballots cast by the citizens; the third that they had abstracted ballots and put others n their places, and the fourth that they had made a false return. That upon the indictment they could bring in several verdicts: First, the general verdict of not guilty as to all; second, guilty as to one or more, and the rest not guilty; third, guilty as to all upon one or more counts of thendictment, &c. That they were to bear in mind that the affirmative of this issue was upon the United States. That the government must convince them that the defendants-were guilty bevond a reasonable doubt. That it must be a reasonable doubt, and not every remote suspicion would be reasonable. That it must be a doubt for which a reason exists, and the case was submitted to them. That the testimony was fresh in their minds, and possessed no intricate matters of law. That it had been fairly presented to hem, and the case had been argue ability on both sides. That he did not deem it necessary to rehearse the testimony to them, it being their province and not his to deal with it and that he hoped they would use their best efforts to reach a verdict this time.

With these remarks the case was left with the jury, who retired and remained in their room until evening. A messenger was then sent to the court at 6 o'clock, but it was found, after the court had opened to received the verdict, that they had not agreed, and only wanted fresh instructions. They wanted to know whether the poll lists, in their possession, were the original ones or authenticated copies from the office of the secretary of State. The answer that they were copies having been returned, nothing more was heard from the twelve until 10 o'clock at night, when they returned into court with their verdict, anding Gleaves guilty on the fourth count of the indictment, and Williams and Langley guilty on all four. The defendants were taken in charge by the marshal, and will be brought into court this morning to be sentenced. It is understood that a motion for a new trial will be made in their be-

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Mari on Steam Fire Engine Company; held in their hall on the evening of the 7th inst., the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted: Whereas, It has pleased the Almighty Provi dence to remove from our ranks our brother mem ber, James A. Sanders. The span of life how short—the record how brief. Life had just began its course, when closed by the pitfless shaft of death. All the graces and virtues of youth were embodied in the fair and manif form of our young friend. Entering upon life's career, all things wore a roseate hue, and a bright halo tinted al his dreams of a future usefulness, for sorrow had not curtailed his young soul nor chilled the ardor of opening manhood. Like a bright and golden summer day sped the years of his short life, and calmly sank our friend to rest. His death will be leeply feit among an extensive circle of friends and acquaintances. Be it, therefore, and acquaintances. Be it, therefore,

Resolved, That in the death of our member,

James A. Sanders, we have lost a cheerful comrade and good member.

Resolved, That we wear the usual badge of mourning, and a blank page in our minute book be insorthed to his memory.

Resolved, That we offer to his bereaved relatives our heartfelt sympathies, and a copy of the above be sent to his relatives, and the same be published in the daily papers.
