BOTANICAL TEXT-BOOKS. By Professor ASA GRAY, Of Harvard University,
Author of "How Piants Grow," "School and Field
Book of Botany," "Manual of Botany," "Struc-tural and Systematic Botany," &c., &c.

"Botany should be taught in every school, and these Volumes should be the Text-Books."—Proj. J. S. Davis, University of Virginia.

The publishers beg to call the attention of those about forming classes in Botany to the well known works by Professor Gray. Having been carefully revised, they present the latest and most accurate principles and developments of the science and it is sufficient indorsement of them to state that they are used in almost every noted college, High School and Seminary in the country, and are recommended over other series by nine-tentis of the School and Seminary in the country, and are recommended over other series by nine tenths of the leading Professors and Botan cal Teachers in the United States.

No author has yet approached Professor Gray in the rare art of making purely scientific theories and dry details popular and interesting. From his charming elementary work. "How Plants Grow," to his more claborate "Manual" the e is one simple Foncise and yet exhaustive method of teaching the various grades of the study.
