NEWS OF THE DAY.

Gold at New York, yesterday, closed at 123.
 The New York cotton market closed dull at 21c.
 Liverpool cotton market closed quiet; uplands 9 1/2d; sales 19,000 bales.
 M. Thiers said the Bank of France has $104,000,000 in its vault, and has a circulation of only $48,000,000.

Mrs. LaGrange, the eminent French singer, has lost her voice almost completely, and retires from the lyric stage permanently.
 General Rosecrans acted as grand marshal in San Francisco at the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Pontificate of Pius IX.

Major General Walker, of the British army, who accompanied, as a military attaché, the Crown Prince's army during part of the war, was refused permission to be present at the grand celebration of his triumphs in Berlin.
 The French gentry are adopting the plan of inviting guests by series to their chateaux. Each invitation sets forth the exact length of time the guest is expected to stay, as well as the day he is to come.

Over three hundred and seven million people carried on English railroads in 1869, only seventeen were killed by causes beyond their own control, while in the streets of London one hundred and forty persons were killed, and it is estimated that the orange peel on London pavements kills more people than all the English railroads.

The re-examination of the plaintiff in the contested baronetcy case of Highbury vs. Lushington has been brought to a close, and the case adjourned until November. This will give Sir Roger ample time to refresh himself for a renewal of the contest or run away, just as the possibility of the being ultimately proved an impostor may strike him.

A Philadelphia young lady who appeared at the Lyric Hall, Cape May, on the 4th of July, enjoying the distinction of having a dress made entirely of white lace, which was purchased in Brussels at a cost of about seven thousand dollars. It is kept in an air-tight case, and the sunlight is never allowed to fall upon it. The young lady will undoubtedly create a sensation before the season closes.

The statistics of immigration indicate a considerable decrease in the arrivals of foreigners for the year ending July 6th, as compared with the arrivals up to the same time last year. The arriving aliens at New York number for this year 116,211; at the same date last year, 129,855 landed at that port. It is quite evident from this showing, that, so far at least, the anticipated immigration from Alsace and Lorraine, and other portions of the districts ravaged by the late European war has not developed itself to any great extent.

This year's end comes the final squelching of the beautiful little spots devoted to society and gambling in Europe. The astute Emperor William of Prussia is bound by his mind to close up Homburg, Baden-Baden, and Wiesbaden, and to compel the habitues to retire from places which have become more than homes to them. Belgium has sought the moral reform, and the senate has prohibited gambling at Spa. So that the great continental summer resorts will soon be desolate of the gambling fraternity, to the great advantage of society.

Among the evil effects of the war it has been observed that in the vicinity of the scenes of great battles vegetation has been generally if not entirely destroyed at any rate, materially impaired. Such plants as have not actually died, have withered or grown up wan and sickly, as if poisoned by some injurious substance in the air or soil. German chemists have explained the phenomenon as arising from the diffusion of sulphur in the air and over the surface of the soil. This sulphur, in the shape it is contained in, the smoke of gunpowder, is supposed to combine with the oxygen in the atmosphere to form sulphurous acid, a deadly poison in its effects on organisms of any kind.

Queen Victoria's retreat to Scotland during the summer entails a vast deal of trouble on the government and some expense. A member of the cabinet is always obliged to be in attendance on her, and at the height of the parliamentary session his absence is often most inconvenient to his colleagues; then every evening a "Queen's messenger" is dispatched with State papers from London to Balmoral. Those journeys, including many miles of posting with horses, mount up to a pretty little sum. The Queen's persistence in going to Scotland in the London season as well as in the autumn, together with her utter neglect of Ireland, excites a great deal of quiet yet strong indignation.

A curious and fatal use of photography is reported from Paris. It seems that among photographic views taken in Paris during the Commune were pictures of the destruction of the Column of Vendôme, together with the multitude assembled there, and also of several of the barricades, with their defenders grouped thereon in defiance, and dramatic attitudes. By some evil chance it had entered into the heads of the detective police, in whose hands these photographs have fallen, to cause these views to be enlarged in such a way as to enable them to make clear the faces of MM. the National Guards so triumphantly portrayed. It is believed that the tell-tale likenesses thus shadowed will in many cases lead to the arrest and condemnation of the originals of the portraits.

Letters from Paris by the steamer mail of Saturday speak of great and increasing distress there. Many thousands of persons are dependent on private charity for support, and the wives and families of the workmen who were enrolled in the National Guard have suffered greatly since the liberal pay which the men received from the Commune Government was withdrawn. In Aunell alone there are 6000 persons who are totally dependent on the municipality for support. It is calculated that, counting the prisoners and those killed, wounded and shot during the insurrection, no fewer than 80,000 men have ceased to be able to support their wives and families. On the supposition that there were three persons dependent on each breadwinner as a rule, this would give a total of 240,000 persons who have become dependent on public charity.

A couple of initiative genies, who reside at Lehigh Dam, on the Lehigh Canal, in Pennsylvania, taking a hint from a custom of Egyptian navigation on the Nile River, have been nipping the sturdy sturgeons of the Delaware River; pretty much as draft horses are made use of on land. They have purchased a pair of large strong-backed fish of this tribe, and have properly harnessed them to a sort of boat made in the shape of a shell, and which, serving as a vehicle for our curious weights, is transformed into a pleasure rack, wherever they diaport upon a neighboring pond about four feet in depth. The sturgeons proved tractable enough in their new calling. They are not guided by reins, but their driver, seated like Neptune in his sea-chariot, impels them at his will with a long pole armed at the end with spikes projecting at right angles. The sturgeons obey this goad with alacrity. Stuck in the tail, they go faster; touched on the side of the head, they tend in the direction indicated; pried in the front of the head, they come to a standstill. To the casual looker-on a pleasant deception connected with the equipment of the boat leads to the belief that the shell is drawn by swimming swans, as two large hollow floats, made in the shape of swans, and painted white to resemble those birds, are attached to the traces below the surface, while the delusion is heightened by a pair of gay gulls, which reach from the boat to the pretended birds. This novel establishment is carefully kept by the owners, a boat house and facilities for the funny team being provided in the pond.

The Redemption of the City.
 The voters of Charleston, irrespective of party, class, or color, who mean to secure a municipal government which shall be a credit and a source of strength instead of a disgrace and a stumbling block to our city, should be earnestly considering and consulting with the delegates to the City Convention. The better class of Radicals here are every day getting more disgusted with the working of "the Party" machinery. We learn that they are to address an appeal to the Radical City Convention to nominate a ticket that shall be composed, in part at least, of men of respectability and intelligence. The appeal is likely to be words wasted. The black and white demagogues who will rule the Convention make no secret of the fact that they want the offices—all the offices—for themselves. The more moderate and sensible of the Radicals, anticipating that their counsel will be unheeded, are already talking openly of "a bolt." Now the Citizens' Convention, although styled "Democratic" by its opponents, has, in fact, no party or individual interests whatever to serve. The welfare of Charleston, in a business point of view, is its only aim. It should therefore take care to nominate such an Aldermanic ticket as will attract rather than repel any well-meaning Radical who is really anxious that the city should prosper. A full voting majority of the nominees for Aldermen, in our opinion, should be chosen from among those citizens who, by reason of admitted integrity and business experience and tact, are best qualified to adjust with success the financial burdens of our community. The rest of the nominees might properly be honest and intelligent men, who would render the ticket, in the largest sense, representative of every class and interest. With such a ticket, we believe that one more long pull, strong pull, and pull altogether, will accomplish the redemption of Charleston.

Orangemen and Ribbonmen.
 That good men and true, in the year of grace 1871, in these United States, should be found ready to shoot, stab, beat and break each other's heads, on the twelfth day of July, who live at perfect peace with each other on the other three hundred and sixty-four days in the year, is surely a remarkable phenomenon. That James, the last King of the house of Stuart, and the last Catholic sovereign in England, was on that day defeated in the now celebrated battle of the Boyne; and that William of Orange, the Dutch hero, should have succeeded in establishing the power of the old dynasty, and establish himself and Protestantism successfully in the three kingdoms—all this appears insufficient cause for the brawls and riots which annually disgrace some Irish cities. The ministers of religion, both Catholic and Protestant, with exceptions rare and few, have uniformly pronounced against these encounters, as might naturally be expected from the character of their holy office. Today this unblest anniversary has come round again; and for days past the air has been thick with presages of riot and bloodshed in New York between Protestant Orangemen and Catholic Ribbonmen. Although difference in religion is the prime cause of this difference in politics, it is quite safe to assume that the leaders and followers on both sides can have but little real concern for religion, when they resort to such means as regularly disgrace the celebration of the twelfth of July. The institution of Orangemen, with their lodges, badges, songs, taunting speech and insulting practices, naturally evoked a counter organization—the Ribbonmen—whose raison d'être, whose whole end and object would appear to be to see to it that the Orangemen shall not ride over their heads. But this is only one of the merits of this famous invigorator. Its regulating properties give it an immense superiority over all the tonics of the Pharmacopœia. In cases of chronic constipation it is the most useful and certain of all aperients. It creates no violent commotion in the discharging organs, but gently relieving them of their obstructions, leaves them in a healthy, vigorous condition. It seems unnecessary to state, in view of the mass of testimony as to its effects in dyspepsia, that it is a permanent cure for that terrible and but too general complaint.

The numerous "biters" under various names, which mercenary dealers endeavor to substitute for Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, should be avoided, for their own sakes, by the sick and the public at large. Hostetter's Bitters are procurable in bottles only, and never sold in bulk.

 the body is the Liver, whose office it is to withdraw the bile from the blood; when this important organ does not act, the skin assumes a yellow appearance, and generally a sick headache sets in, with chilly sensations, and cold hands and feet, accompanied with loss of appetite. The system becomes clogged, the machinery does not work well, and both mind and body are disordered, the afflicted becoming cross and fretful, finding fault with everything around them. To remedy this condition Dr. JAYNE'S SANATIVE PILLS are recommended; by their stimulating action the Liver soon recovers its healthy tone, and is enabled to perform its proper functions. Constipation is cured, and all the obnoxious humors removed. Sold every where.

 and through millions of orifices oozes the transparent fluid which nature does not need for vital purposes. This is a wise provision of Providence; but excessive perspiration is, nevertheless, extremely weakening. During the heats of summer all hard-working men perspire to an extent that is more or less debilitating. They, of all classes of the community, require a wholesome invigorant at this season. Let them not seek it in the liquors of the bar-room; they will not find it there. A medicated stimulant, pure and undefiled, is what they need; and among this class of remedies, HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS stands alone. No valid plea can be urged against its use, even by the genius of Temperance itself; for even the Maine law permits the sale of distillate stimulants for medicinal purposes. As a general renovating preparation, the Bitters has no equal anywhere. But this is only one of the merits of this famous invigorator. Its regulating properties give it an immense superiority over all the tonics of the Pharmacopœia. In cases of chronic constipation it is the most useful and certain of all aperients. It creates no violent commotion in the discharging organs, but gently relieving them of their obstructions, leaves them in a healthy, vigorous condition. It seems unnecessary to state, in view of the mass of testimony as to its effects in dyspepsia, that it is a permanent cure for that terrible and but too general complaint.

The numerous "biters" under various names, which mercenary dealers endeavor to substitute for Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, should be avoided, for their own sakes, by the sick and the public at large. Hostetter's Bitters are procurable in bottles only, and never sold in bulk.

THE LARGEST WORKSHOP OF
 the body is the Liver, whose office it is to withdraw the bile from the blood; when this important organ does not act, the skin assumes a yellow appearance, and generally a sick headache sets in, with chilly sensations, and cold hands and feet, accompanied with loss of appetite. The system becomes clogged, the machinery does not work well, and both mind and body are disordered, the afflicted becoming cross and fretful, finding fault with everything around them. To remedy this condition Dr. JAYNE'S SANATIVE PILLS are recommended; by their stimulating action the Liver soon recovers its healthy tone, and is enabled to perform its proper functions. Constipation is cured, and all the obnoxious
