-Shocking ruffianism was developed at a boat race rowed by women on Harlem River, abreast of New York City, on the 25th instant-The contestants and their friends mutually "fouled," shrieked and swore.

-All employees of Lowell corporations who refuse to be vaccinated are promptly discharged, the mills having had to be run with more than one-fourth less than the usual complement of help on account of the injection. The same scarcity prevails in Fall River, Lawrence and other centres of textile manufac--The New York Tribune says: "The yellow fever exists at New Orleans in a malignant form. There is hardly a question of this, though the New Orleans papers deny it, and the board of health of that city conceal the presence of the epidemic. The news of the existence of the yellow fever in New Orleans as an epidemic was sent to New York by a lady, whose son is travelling agent for a large business house here. The information had been obtained by the lady from her family physician, a prominent member of the board of health. She excertained from him that the members had advocated the publication of the fact that the disease existed in order that the people in other sections of the country might advisable; and that the opponents of this policy based their claim to have the matter kept secret on the ground that any excitement re sulting from the matter, becoming known, would be detrimental to busine s interests.'

-Diamonds continue to be rumps in South Africa, and correspondents write home the most dazzling descriptions of the riches that are waiting to be gathered up on these far-off coasts. The Cape Standard says that the discoveries are now simply enormous. Steam engines are now used for sifting eart i to get the precions stones, and, it seems, with success. A gentleman writes from Du Tcit's Pan that he sees, newly-found diamonds of from twenty to sixty carats every day. At one place some men bought a claim for five hundred dollars and in less than a month took out of it sixt -three stones, including some of fifteen carats and over. A poor man came out from England with barely money enough to ke op him a fortnight. In three months he went home worth a quarter of a million of dollars. Another correspondent writes that he is purchasing all the stones he can find for the American market. There are about twenty diamond merchants on the field now, and there is no difficulty in the miners seiling their "finds" at a good price on the spot. Already they have bowling-alleys, markets, &c., and a company is about to introduce a system of water-pipes in the various "farms," This reads like a description of El Dorado, and the only danger is that the ardent imaginations of the lucky fellows may indirectly lead many

-The London press continues to discuss the aspect of the Continental situation. The Times considers it unquestionable that there may yet be a chance for the Bonapartes, but regards the action of the church and the decline of military prestige in France as un avorable omens for Napoleon. A correspondent describes the Imperial meeting at Falzburg, and affirms that the result was not so great as imaginative people have supposed it, and yet enough was done to guarantee a common policy for the future, and this without making a formal alliance, offensive or defensive. King Amadeus seems to have made a successful tends to show of what stuff her good citithing out of his royal tour. His progress has been attended with enthusiation popular demonstrations; but on one occasion he had to submit to a humiliating snubbing, administered by the bishop and clergy of Valencia. Prince Napoleon's new pamphlet, according to the London Echo, is a useful contribution to the secret history of the recent be paid in advance. This is the way to make war. It shows Denmark to have been the first and Italy the last hope of the French Emperor. sist upon prepayment has no confidence in The Echo also gives an interesting sketch of its own strength, and flabby journals, as the the Communist refugees in London. Their "club-room" is within a bow shot of Oxford street, and there they meet-doctors, editors, students, tracesmen, all under the same banconverse with feverish enthusiasm, and drink deep toasts to Universal Fraternity. One plays, another recites Barbier's burning themes, or sings tender-old French love songs, while others hurl eccentric diatribes at la Re spectabilite and clink glasses at allusions to la libre Angleterre. A sprinkling of the grisette element perfects the thoroughly Parisian tmosphere of the club.

-The trial of the first batch of so-called petroleuses of the Paris Commune was concluded at Versattles on the 5th of September. The prisoners, five in number, were charged backs, and so, exhibitors will find it.

with complicity in and assisting at the incendlaries and assassinations which took place between the 22d and 23d of May at the Palace of the Legion of Honor and at a number of private residences which were named in the charge. The prisoners "were women upon whose faces," says a correspondent, "debauchery had placed its irremovable stamp; the youngest is twenty-four years of age, and the eldest thirty-nine. They were all dressed in black, or some very dark-colored stuff, looked unhealthy, and seemed to take more of the interest of a looker-on in the trial than that of the persons most concerned." The women denied the grave charges brought by the prosecution, and claimed to be cantinieres and ambulancieres in the service of the Commune. The evidence against them was a mass of heresay, fact and surmise, with nothing of any importance proved, which would not have been admitted as testimony in any American court. The prisoners were all, with one exception, unmarried. One of them was a dressmaker, another a pasteboardmaker, another a seamstress, and two were laundresses. The prisoners were found guilty by the court, and three were sentenced to death, one to transportation to a fortress, and the last to ten years' solitary confinement. It is thought, however, that these sentences will be commuted to transportation for life. The prisoners received their sentences in tears, but did not proceeded with, and that the former is the last attempt to speak.

A Hoax of the First Water.

The tidal-wave prediction, which struck error into the souls of the old ladies of both sexes, especially along the Gulf coast, is a rebash of a sensational dish prepared for an- gual impossibilities, and picture it as skirmishother locality and another season. An old naval officer in the English service was the original seer, and announced that the mighty wave would submerge the coast of Albion on October 5, 1869. A paper on the subject appeared in the London Daily News of September 27, 1869, which speaks of the anxious questionings which the subject has awakened, and shows that there was no cause for the alarm felt. The paper is from the pen of Professor R. A. Proctor, who said that on the 5th of October of the year in question the sun and moon would be in such position as to be favorable for the production of high spring tides. "But, after all," he adds, "high tides depend very importantly "on other considerations than astronomical "ones." He then speaks of a predicted high tide some two years before, which turned out to be a very insignificant affair. As for predicted weather changes, any length of time in advance, he regards them as "mere "moonshine," and altogether unreliable. This article from the London News is reproduced entire in Proctor's work, entitled "Light Science for Leisure Hours," from which work, when it appeared in the North, the new tidal-wave story was undoubtedly manufactured. The scene was changed to this side of the Atlantic, and Agassiz, a "heavy swell" in science, became its putative parent. There is, however, positive proof that Agassiz made no such prediction, and any one who new feels alarm, in consequence of the mythical prophecy, will, on or about the 7th proximo, confess that his courage was cooled by a hoax of the first water.

The Columbia Ring.

The Columbia Radicals are in hot water. It seems that the city officials, all Radicals, have determined to erect a new City Hall and Market, for which they propose to pay board of health had discussed the propriety of exorbitant prices. The contractor for the making the matter public; that one of the City Hall is Mr. Allen, the Radical senator for Greenville County, whose price is $138. 000, although it is believed the work can be done for $75,000. A similar margin is found be warned of the danger, and enabled to take in the contract for the new market, and the such precautionary measures as they deemed | Phoenix, backed by the taxpayers, demands that the plans and specifications of both buildings be submitted to a committee of BANKING disinterested citizens. We are afraid that the movement-although eminently proper-will come to naught. The thick-hided Radicals scout public epinion, and, as long as their pardoning friend Scott is Governor, do not even fear the Penitentiary.

In a Peck of Trouble.

Our Savannah neighbors seem to be sadly n need of municipa! reform. A correspondent of the Morning News informs that journal that the bonded debt of Savannah is nearly three millions, while the taxable property of the city is valued at less than fifteen millions. The gross expenses and expenditures of the City of Savannah for the past three years amount to very nearly eight million dollars, and the excited taxpayers cry out for immediate retrenchment. Savannah, in a municipal sense, is as hard up as Charleston, but, at least, she ha had a respectable city government, which we shall not get until the first week in November.

The Darlington Fair.

The Darlington County Fair will be held at the Courthouse on the 4th and 5th October. We are informed by the secretary that the Cheraw and Darlington Railroad carries, free of charge, articles intended for exhibition, and that the Wilmington and Augusta Railroad carries them at half rates. The pas senger fares have been reduced on both roads. Ample accommodations are provided, at the Fair Grounds, for stock, produce and machinery, and care has been taken to consult the convenience of exhibitors as well as the pleasure of the public. On the opening day General E. M. Law will deliver an oration, and on the second day the premiums will be awarded. Darlington evidently inzens are made.

Cash vs. Credit.

The Wilmington Journal reduces its subscription price to $8 a year, and gives notice that it will require that all subscriptions money. A newspaper which is afraid to inpublic know, are not worth the postage. These journals throw in long-credit as a bribe to a reluctant public, and make up their subscription list of folk who don't intend to pay, and folk who can't. Neither class, we may venture to remark, will support a live and vigorous paper.

WE understand that the prizes to be distributed to exhibitors at the State Fair, which will be held in Columbia on November 6, are valued at $7000. Honor is something substantial, when it comes in the guise of a silver tankard, a gold medal or a roll of green-

THE Augusta Chronicle and Sentinel wants to know whether ex-Governor Orr signed the ordinance of secession.

-Governor Orr was a delegate to the Seession Convention, and served on the committee appointed to draft the ordinance of secession. The ordinance was passed by a unanimous vote, and was signed by all the members of the Convention.

A Philological Problem.

The intelligent follower of the events of the last war in Europe will recall some of the more noticeable philological difficulties that lay in the way of a clear and impartial understanding of who was who and what was what, among the individuals and localities that figured in the conflict. These troubles may always be anticipated in the case of a foreign war, the more's the pity; but in the case of some foreign wars, the difficulties arising from the atrocious spelling of some of those foreign words would be immeasurably increased. Here, for instance, comes the reported Russian preparations for war against Austria. What may be anticipated should these two nations, with their unpronounceable proper names, and names of towns, come into collision? Already we are told that the Russian fortifications at the railway stations of Radziusllow and Wolocysk are rapidly station towards the frontier of the-pause and reflect-Brest-Berdyczew-Radziwillower Railway. If these things be thus at the beginning, what may be expected before the campaign is over? Let the imagination rest for a moment upon the result of a forward movement of the Russian army into Gallicia, with its nest of lining at Zaleszekzyky, flighting a pitched battle at Brzezany, retreating from Szczurowice, and performing prodigies of valor at Rzeszow, not to mention the result of filtering these monsters of language through the cable.

The English Postal Cards. The English experiment of the half-penny postal card system has proved to be very successful, although it is not without its features of evil. These cards are cream-colored, and about the size of an ordinary envelope. Upon one side are printed directions to the writer of the message, the head of the Queen, and the coat-of arms of England; the obverse side is left blank for the message. When the card is written, it is put in the postoffice or in the nearest lamp-post box, and in two hours is delivered at its destination, if anywhere in London. All this costs only a half-penny, or one cent of our money. Within the last six months 58,485,960 cards have been sold in England by the government, giving a revenue of nearly £122,000. The objectionable features of the postal card is, that the messages written upon them are necessarily not private, and that the cards may be used-as they frequently arefor the purpose of sending vulgar and libelious messages to individuals by anonymous scrib-blers, who may have a spite against the reciplent of such messages. When a man can safely be mean for one cent, average human nature finds it difficult to resist the temptation.
