NEWS OF THE DAY.

-Gold closed yesterday at 13[al4. -Cotton closed strong in New York; uplands 204 cents; sales 3373 bales. -In Liverpool cotton closed with an upward tendency; uplands 93d., Orleans 10d.; sales 30,000 bales.

-A steam yacht is sailing on the Sea of Gall-

-Female orchestras are to be employed in seme of the New York theatres this season. -Rev. W. H. Milburn, the blind preacher, has withdrawn from the Fpiscopal Church and reunited with the Methodists. -M'me Caroline Richings-Bernard is announced to travel for three months under the management of Mr. John T. Ford.

-In Germany, the barbers have struck for five cents for hair-cutting, and two and a half cents for shaving. They are now receiving three and a half cents and one and a half cents respectively. -The English Bishop of Lichfield, who is coming to America to attend the Episcopal General Convention in Baltimore, is George Augustus Selwyn, who was for many years a leading missionary in New Zealand. -Chicago is to have a hospital in which sick women alone will be treated. The institution has already been chartered, and there are flattering hopes that it will be entirely successful. Some of the most prominent physicians and surgeons will be upon the hospital staff. -The Washington Citizen says: "There is a pleasing rumor among newspaper men, (though we can hardly credit it,) that bride cake, white ribbons, orange blossoms and plain gold rings are soon to grace a joyful occasion wherein the chief figures will be Mr. William H. Hurlburt and Miss Tennie C. Claffin. -A letter from Paris says that in one forenoon three American families together spent 24,000 francs ($4800) at the Grand Magazin du Louvre. A recent shipment to one firm in New. York comprised six hundred ball dresses. averaging 700 francs each; eight hundred averaging 600 francs each; a thousand averaging 500 each, and two thousand priced each at 250 francs. -Heary Ward Beecher delivered a sermon n his church, in Brooklyn, N. Y., on Sunday, on the alleged city frauds, which seems to have been a well considered and sensible production. He told his pew-holders very frankly that no political capital could be made out of these disclosures, as they were simply an evidence of the financial dishonesty of the times, which is as manifest in Washington as in New York, and is as true of commercial as

-The frauds perpetrated by what is known as the Tammany ring in the government of the City of New York are found to be more stupendous as investigation progresses. It is now developed that the expenditures for what is called the city account, which is separate from and in addition to the county account, in which latter the gigantic plundering system hitherto

-Who would expect to have to look to Russia for the latest victory of woman's rights Nevertheless, it seems that the Czar has recently ordered that women shall be permitted to become druggists and chemists, and shail be eligible to fill positions as clerks and accountants. More than this, in view of the efficiency of the Sisters of Mercy as nurses in hospitals, women are henceforth to be allowed to practice as surgeons—a permission which of course carries with it the right to qualify themselves by the necessary preliminary studies. This is an extension of the rights which the fair sex enjoy in this country, where, although they are admitted to medical classes in certain of our medical institutions, they are not, in any case, allowed to practice in the public hospitals.

-A correspondent of the New York Herald has been out to Minnesota and "interviewed" General Hancock. He found him, as usual, on duty, looking bronzed and hearty, and presenting every evidence of sound health and a contented spirit. The reporter was not long in reaching the subject of the Presidency. and upon this subject the General frankly said that the fact of his being freely mentioned as a Presidential candidate did not possess that interest that people probably suppose. He spoke with pardonable pride of his army position and record, and considered it "a little late to seek a new field of action." He, however, did not think it proper for any one to ignore the will of the people, and an expression of preference for himself by his native State he confessed would be taken as a very flattering compliment. His political views were stated in a few words. "I was a war Democrat; I am now a Conservative:" and he modestly disclaimed any desire to thrust Limself forward or become entangled in the intricacles of politicians.

-Living in Germany is said to be "cheap." and cheap it must be to enable all below certain classes and occupations to live. A little more than two dollars and fifty cents in gold represents the weekly earnings of a working man in that country; only a master workman can hope to receive one thaler, about sixty-five cents in gold, a day, and to earn this much he must work hard and falthfully. A common laborer receives about twenty cents a day; waiters at hotels and restaurants do not average this much. Male servants receive about four dollars per month, while servant girls are paid only fifteen dollars a year. There are some departments in household service where higher wages are paid, but the increase in wages is very triding. While this is the condition of affairs with labor and skilled mechanics elucational acquirements do not secure, pro portionately, a much better return for their service. From one hundred and fitty to three hundred dollars a year is paid to teachers in public schools, while professors in colleges average six hundred, university professors as that every fourth family in England, and rarely receive more than eight hundred in adevery seventh in Scotland, had one peripadition to the fees of their hearers. Tutors in tetic pauper, while Ireland had no such pau wealthy families are paid about four hundred

The train consisted of about twenty carriages, and among the company were many ministers, senators, mayors and other magnates, all in evening dress. All along the line and at the intermediate stations crowds of peasants from the neighboring villages, with bands playing the Royal March, saluted the party. As they entered the tunnel, enthusiastic cheers proceded from an admiring throng. The engine whistled, the passengers joked and chatted, and in an instant they were enveloped in thick darkness. All the windows were open, but no inconvenience was experienced from smoke, the locomotive propelling instead of pulling the cars. There was no perceptible difference in the temperature, and no disagree able sensation of any sort. The event was celebrated, on arriving at Bardonnecchia, by a grand banquet, with the inevitable speeches, and toasts drunk to all manner of persons and things. A director of the Victor Emmanuel Railway Company then presented gold medals from the Italian and French Governments to Signor Grattoni, the engineer, who, with much emotion, returned thanks in his own name and that of his colleagues. On the Italan and French ministers arriving at the station at Turin they were enthusiastically welcomed by the immense crowds which had collected. The railway station was spieneddly lliuminated, and there was a representative of Italy and France shaking hands before the tunnel. There is apparently nothing to mar the completeness of this great enterprise, which has reduced to a pleasant jaunt of twenty-one minutes the tedious, difficult and dangerous passage of the Alps.

England is the only country that has abandoned the hope of making home industries prosperous by tariff protection, and her ex- manner of good things about the Durand perience is regarded as the crucial test of German Troupe. the wisdom or folly of that experiment. The American Protectionists, who maintain that it would be folly in us to follow her example, assert that England, under the Free-trade policy is "going to the dogs," her workers becoming more miserable and her paupers increasing enormously in numbers. This is the stock in trade of those who uphold protection as a wise national policy. They are met by incontrovertible facts, whenever they attempt to show that high tariffs are beneficial to the people at large. They have nothing to say, when it is proved that the protected manufacturers grow rich at the expense of the toiling millions. Their one telling argument is founded on "English ex-"perience of the results of Free trade."

The report of the English Poor-Law Board is the only trustworthy authority on the subject of English pauperism, and that for 1870-'71, just published in the New York Evening Post, completely disproves this protectionist assertion, showing, in conjunction with previous reports, that the proportion of paupers to the whole population was in 1834, 8.3 per cent.; 1848, 6.8 per cent.; 1849, 6.2 per cent.; 1850, 5.7 per cent.; 1863, 5.3 per cent.; 1870-'71, 4.2 per cent.

After 1834 the Poor law came into operation, and for some years there was much irregularity in the rate, till 1848, when it was 6.8. In 1863, after a comparatively steady decrease, it was, though raised some what by the cotton famine, only 5.3, and in 1871 it has fallen to 4.2, or lower than it has been for forty years.

The percentage of the paupers that are able-bodied has similarly decreased from twenty-one to sixteen, showing either that work is more plentiful and better paid under unprotected competition, or that the people are less inclined to be paupers than they

The expenditure tells the same tale. Pe head of the population, it was Thus with wheat, the barometer of the expense of support, averaging for 1834 $11 54 per quarter, the rate was $2 20; in 1848, with wheat a tenth higher, the rate had fallen to $1 78; and in 1871, with the cost of support one-fourth higher, the rate was one fourth lower. Of course, with so many disturbing elements at work, this decrease was neither of unbroken continuance nor quable; but the fact is not the less incontrovertible that the expenditure in pauper support now, after many years of experience of "unprotected competition," is much less per head of the population than it was in the palmiest days of protection. The decrease of the percentage of assessment on property for the support of the poor is even more decided, showing not only that the amount of pauperism is less, but that the burden is lighter. Thus, from whatever point viewed, English pauperism is not increasing with the duration of unprotected competition. So often, however, have the American advocates of protection asserted the contrary, that they now seem really to believe this creation of their own fancy, and to see no absurdity or worse in the assertion above cited, that so "appalling" has the increase been that England has now three paupers to every four families.

But it will be said that, in addition to what may be called the permanent paupers, there are the casual poor. Of these, in 1869, there were 55,617 in Massachusetts and 95,751 in Scotland. The interested protectionist writers and speakers take these casual-relief figures as representing separate and distinct individuals, which they do not do. They simply represent the number of persons relieved, and the same persons may be counted two, ten, or twenty times, according to the number of reliefs each received. The ninety-five thousand in Scotland were made up on an averrge of 6417 for three separate days, and probably did not number more than one to two thousand individuals altogether, in place of ninetyfive thousand, as protectionists assert in this magnification of British pauperism. The number of such reliefs given last year, according to the several official reports, was:

Boston, 1 for every 2 of the population. New York City, 1 for every 16 of the popu-Massachusetts, 1 for every 16 of the popula-

England, 1 for every 23 of the population. lland, I for every 35 of the population. Ireland, none. Now, it would be just as unreasonable to assert, from the returns supplying these figures, that half the people of Boston, or one-sixteenth of the people of New York City, were the recipients of charity last year, pers at all.

Cenis, will probably never forget the trip. swollen, as in the above extract, to three millions, and that we meet continually with the reproach that one in every twenty-one of her people are paupers. The interpretation which would thus convert the greater and more commendable care of Boston and New York for their city poor into evidence of their pauperization-the greater and more disgraceful in proportion to their efforts and attention in the relief of distress-is too preposterous and unjust to deserve comment as applied to America, and can surely neither be right nor fair when applied to

The Amusement Season.

We begin to feel that winter is approaching. The long-closed doors of the Academy of Music will be thrown open in less than three weeks' time, and workmen are now busily engaged in preparing that elegant lyrical temple for a brilliant and prosperous season. It is expected that the glorious Nilsson will visit Charleston, with her company, and delight the public in Marta, in L'Ombre, and in Ambrose Thomas's Hamlet. Janauschek, the famous Tentonic tragedian, is expected to appear in the parts which she has made peculiarly her own, and, for all that we know, the fascinating Capoul and redundant Parepa-Rosa may favor us with their presence. One positive engagement is made. A German opera company will make its bow on the 23d instant, and will play for six nights. Its members are highly spoken of, and, if rumor does not flatter them, they may count on a warm reception. In Charleston a good opera company always dfaws full houses, and we hope to be able to record all

Sensible and Patriotic.

John Quincy Adams, of Massachusetts, never writes a letter intended for the public eye which is not worth reading. Here is an extract from his letter accepting the Democratic nomination for Governor:

"Now, as formerly, I think it wise to use calm and moderate methods in dealing with questions of State; to adhere scrupulously to constitutional forms in enforcing the will of the people, and to make haste slowly with revolutionary reforms. But I may be pardoned if, in view of a hesita ion which lingers here and there, I declare my especial satisfaction at the position adopted by the convention in respect to the later amendments to the Constitution of the United States. I am heartily glad to see good citizens who have disputed the plan of adjustment required by the party in power, so long as it was debatable, acquiesce cheerfully when once it has become irre-

"It seems to me to be the part of patriotism now to accept honestly and without mental reservation those amendments as the final settlement and pacification of the civil war, and then to turn resolutely from the irritating and painful memories of the past to the pressing duties of the future. That future, if we wisely improve it, may be made to redeem, and more than redeem, all the sufferings and all the errors of the past. It may warn us to guard jealously the invaluable habit of local selfovernments, while we yield to the irresistible instincts of national unity. It may teach us to alleviate oppressive taxation by economy and skill in fiscal management, so that a tariff may no longer strangle trade. Universal amnesty and equal rights may once again demonstrate to the world that the people at their homes may be trusted to preserve the peace and maintain the principles of liberty without soldiers to make them afraid. And, above all, a kindly and considerate policy toward vanquished citizens may make us again a prosperous and happy people, cordially united in a friendship based upon mutual esteem and cemented by identical interests."

fostetter's Bitters.

AN UNPROTECTED SYSTEM .-Do not fancy because you feel strong that you are impregnable to sickness. Whole neighborhoods are frequently prostrated at this season by ma'arious fevers. Vigorous muscles and strong sinews, broad shoulders and sound lungs, are no defence against the mephitic vapors of automn. Frames which have withstood the summer heat may succumb now. Many an athletic man, whose family depends for its support on his industry, now lies prostrate, weak and helpless as a babe, under the periodical assaults of chills and fever, or billous remittent fever. This could not be if all were wise enough to provide against such a contingency, by toning and fortifying the system with HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. This approved vegetable tinic is absolutely harmless, so that it is sheer folly not to take it as a safeguard at a season when diseases of the liver. the stomach, the bowels, and indeed all the visceral organs are generally prevalent. To keep the system in order and insure health, or to put it in order when this precaution has been neglected. is the duty of every human being who values life. For both these purposes HOSTETTER'S BITTERS is designed, and it answers both. Petty local dealers are endeavoring, in many parts of the country, to substitute preparations made of im pure and dangerous materials in its stead. Give them a wide berth. They are prepared by unskilful experimentors, who want to turn a penny at the expense of the public health.
