FRIDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1871.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

—Gold at New York closed yesterday at 141 1/4.

—The New York cotton market closed firm but quiet; uplands 20 1/2; sales 1750 bales.

—At Liverpool cotton closed steady; uplands 9 1/2; sales 30,000 bales.

—The mackerel fishermen report the season a perfect failure.

—Commodore Maury, it is stated, has resigned the presidency of the Alabama University, which he recently accepted.

—The Cuban rebellion seems to still go on, notwithstanding the monthly announcements of its suppression. It is confined to remote mountain districts, however.

—Henry Ward Beecher is of opinion that the city government of New York "will be known as long as Sodom and Gomorrah are known, and largely for the same reasons."

—A defaulting bank cashier in Maine says that speculation had nothing to do with his deficit. He could not live on his salary of $400 a year when he took the office.

—The new railway depot of the New York Central Railway, said to be the largest railway station in the world, was opened for business on Tuesday. It is at Forty-second street and Fourth avenue, New York.

—A large magnet, said to be the largest in the world, was recently manufactured at Ansonia, Connecticut. In experiments made with it, the magnetism was found to be so powerful as to ruin the movements of the watches carried by people who were near it.

—Colonel Lewis W. Washington, the nearest living blood connexion of George Washington, and well known throughout the District of Columbia and neighborhood, died at his residence in West Virginia on the 1st instant, in the fifty-ninth year of his age.

—Tennessee State bond coupons to the amount of $72,000 are ascertained to have been stolen from the State treasurer's office, and it is supposed, placed on the market.

—They are of the "fundable" class, nearly all of which have been withdrawn from general circulation. A. M. Wade, chief clerk to the State comptroller, has been arrested charged with the theft.

—An old-time repeater of the ex-Emperor Napoleon on his cousin, Prince Napoleon, has just come to light. One day the Prince, who bears a marked resemblance to the first Bonaparte, and who was always jealous of the Emperor's good luck, said petulantly to his imperial cousin: "Come, now! You have nothing of your uncle about you!" To which Louis Napoleon promptly and sarcastically replied: "Pardon! I have all his family on my hands!"

—The Prussian lieutenant of one of the ten thousand French soldiers were held as prisoners during the war, lately sold at private sale the straw upon which these soldiers slept during their captivity. The result of this has been that great mortality has followed among numbers of the purchasers of the straw, many having died of smallpox and dysentery, diseases from which the French soldiers suffered extensively.

—Further accounts of the fearful famine, pestilence and other miseries which have befallen Persia, have been received at London. Besides the number of persons who perished from hunger and disease, forty thousand inhabitants of one province were carried off into slavery by the Afghans, who took advantage of the general disorganization to make incursions. Notwithstanding all this, the Persian Government yet refuses to avail itself of aid proffered by Great Britain and Russia.

—The unfriendly treatment to which German citizens of Lyons are subjected by the French inhabitants has been again formally complained of by the German minister to the French Government, and this time in very decided terms. He details the grievances, and expresses the opinion that the half-way measures adopted to remove them will prove very unsatisfactory to the government at Berlin.

In reply, the Count de Bismarck has given further and full assurances of protection and indemnity to the offended Germans.

—Private intelligence, coming from a trustworthy source, announces that the ex-Emperor Napoleon will settle permanently in England, at Chislehurst, where his household has just been increased in view of a permanent residence there. Many of his retainers, whose services were dispensed with after the disaster at Sedan, have been recalled, and the saddle-horses which Napoleon rode during the war, and which were at the Chateau d'Arenberg, in Switzerland, and were lately taken aboard a vessel at Ostend, on their way to Chislehurst.

—The trustworthy Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun writes: "Although its constant iteration from Washington has made it a somewhat familiar story, the facts would seem indisputable that Secretary Fish has decided on an early retirement from the Cabinet. He has intimated this to his associate officials, and has released the elegant mansion he at one time intended to occupy. He retires of his own volition, and the change has no political bearing; in fact, there is to be an entire reorganization of the State Department. Mr. Davis, the assistant secretary, goes to the German Conference, and the law officer has just resigned to accept a position under the Japanese Government."

—The arrival of the Russian Prince Alexis at New York is anticipated for the 8th instant. A private house adjoining, and attached to the Clarendon Hotel in that city, has been prepared in an appropriate manner for his reception. Here the Prince will enjoy a seclusion which he could not hope for in a hotel. His suite and personal attendants will also have their apartments in this building, and this portion of the Clarendon will, for the nonce, do a very Russian business. M. Catezay, the Russian minister, has charge of the duty of entertaining, and generally caring for, the young Prince during his stay in this country. The social features of his welcome to our shores will be controlled by M^{me} Catezay, who will hold in her hand the happiness or discomfort of many social snobs who aspire to the eclat of being noticed by ce cher Prince.

—Hon. Tom Murphy, collector of the port of New York, is now the king-pin of Gotham Radicalism. The delightful innocence of Mr. Greeley, who declares that the President can no longer afford to keep Murphy in office, passes harmlessly over his head, although their moral Republicanism various parts of the country. It is all one to Murphy what they may believe, for he knows what he and the President think about it. A more thorough piece of work was never seen than that done by Conkling and Murphy last week. They set out to get an endorsement of themselves and the President, and when the righteous Cheereyites bolted, they sent them off with cheers, confident that they would come up to the rack as soon as the mast was ready. Having fixed matters their own way, they force the recalcitrant ones to return to the support of the convention in which they had no voice and of the men whom they had denounced as thieves and scoundrels. Murphy had cowed the whole tribe of Radical protestants. But this is not all that Murphy has done. He has made his customhouse the most liberal passenger's office for administration employees, and has managed it with the sole purpose of perpetuating his power through that of his master. This is the man whom Grant "cannot afford" to keep in office! Truly, if faithful and successful servitors counts for anything in politics, Grant cannot afford to turn him out. Murphy and Casey represent Republicanism; and those who rebel must learn to eat dirt, like Greeley.

The Lexington Dispatch, which now enters upon its second year, is considerably enlarged in size and is printed with new type. The Dispatch is edited with judgment and spirit, and richly deserves the support of Lexington County.

Current Literature.

BLACKWOOD'S MAGAZINE. September, 1871. New York. The Leonard Scott Publishing Company.

The two serial stories—the Maid of Sker and Fair to See—maintain their interest, the former having all the charm of a quaint study from life. The paper on Wordsworth is written con amore, and is more critically just than the panegyric of Scott in the August number.

The "Secret History of the Loire Campaign" is well worth reading as a suggestion of what might have been. These, with the O'Dowd papers and two political articles, make up an attractive file of contents.

For sale at Mr. John Russell's in King street.

have given enough. It is only necessary to add that the Union never recalls its infamous charges, although they are proved, over and over again, to be wholly devoid of truth. The school-boy maxim, Tell a lie and stick to it, is sound doctrine in Columbia. It is determined to repeat in South Carolina the Ku-Klux trials which in Raleigh were a mockery of law and justice. We are powerless to avert it. The extra-constitutional powers given to the President will be strained to the utmost. And what has been done in North Carolina, and will be done in this State, can be done anywhere—wherever there are United States judges, marshals and grand juries; in any State or Territory of the Union. The Ku-Klux act applies to the whole country, and the Conservative States of the North and West may deem themselves lucky if they are not, ere long, treated in the same way as the States "lately in rebellion."
