The Charleston News. TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1871.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

-Gold closed yesterday at 10}a10}. -In New York cotton closed strong; uplands 181 cents; sales 4029 bales.

-In Liverpool cotton closed strong; uplands 92d., Orleans 92a92d.; sales 15,000 bales. -In England minstrel companies are called American slave troupes. -Daniel Gleason, of North Adams, Mass., killed his wife with a dirk knife yesterday.

-Dr. Hartmann, a prominent physician of St. Louis, has brought suits against the Times of that city for three libels, laying his aggregate damages at fourteen thousand dollars:

-It is said that while the Chicago water works were out of order the milkmen distributed to their customers the richest milk ever enjoyed in that city.

-Hats of the kind just now worn by ladies for the last hundred years by the women of the Swiss cantons. -The Emperor William, of Germany, is now in his seventy-fifth year; but his hair and beard alone betray his age. His complexion is still fresh, and his powers of endurance are as great as ever. It is thought he owes his physical powers to his simple, soldier-like mode of living, although he comes of a strong and hardy family.

-In a suit brought by the widow of a passenger killed by he explosion of the Staten Island steamer Westfield, in New York, to recover damages, the owners of the vessel sel up the extraordinary plea that the passenger had no right on the boat, because, under the laws of the State, Sunday travelling is a misdemeanor. That is to say, remarks the Tribune, it was illegal for the murdered man to travel on Sanday, and therefore legal to blow him up on that day.

-Reports received from London by mail say it is estimated there are ten millions sterling belonging to the French government on deposit there, and held for payment of the German indemnity. The monetary disturbance in Paris has partially abated. It is reported the Bank of France intends to double its capital, making it $375,000,000 francs. Money is plen. tiful in Germany, and is rapidly drifting into American securities. Germany will next year redeem £30,000,000 sterling of war loan, half of It in January and February.

-Representatives of Brazil in foreign countries have received a circular from the Bra. zillan Minister of Foreign Affairs, dated September 30, 1871, which contains an official annonncement of the Brazilian emancipation act. Notwithstanding the fears entertained by some of the people of Brazil, that the passage of this act would produce serious labor troubles in that country, not the least disturbance of the tranquillity of the Empire, the circular states, has resulted from the emancipation of the slaves. -The bill now before the German Imperial Parliament for the government of the newly acquired region of Alsace-Lorraine, provides that the district shall furnish for the German army a contingent of 15,589 men, distributed into six regiments of infantry and four of cavalry. Wurtemberg, with a population about equal to that of Alsace-Lorraine, has been ordered to furnish a contingent of 17,784 men, being treated more harshly than any other German State. Wurtemberg formerly kept up an army of 13,468 men only, so that the military burdens now imposed upon the people are twenty-five per cent. greater than before the Franco-German war. The increase of the armies of Baden and Hesse, however, is only one and a half per cent.

-Communications have recently passed between the French and English governments on the subject of a tunnel under the Straits of Dover. There are eight hundred feet in depth of chalk between Dover and Calais, and chalk can be worked as easily as Dutch cheese. A tunnelling machine has been invented which can make a hole seven feet in diameter and eighteen yards forward in the chalk stratum in twenty-four hours. It is maintained that with this machine the drift-ways of the proposed tunnel can be driven in one year, and the enlargement and completion will follow in two or three years more. Though fifty million dollars has been put down as the probable cost, the statistics and success of the Mont Cenis tunnel causes many competent judges to reduce that figure considerably.

-The toys with which the Prince Imperial used to amuse himself before his "baptism of fire" were sold in Paris recently. A world of pains had evidently been taken with the Prince who was to have inherited the empire of the Napoleons, to get into his head by means of object lessons the technicalities of Vauban and Concorn. He was given toy for tresses with toy lunes and demi-lunes; toy ditches, toy counterscarps, toy positionssuch as woods, hills and streams, whose tin beds could be filled. Notwithstanding these attempts to initiate young Verhuel into the mysteries of campaigns and sieges, his mind, like the minds of plebelan children, longed for the vulgar delights of the Punch and Judy show, and a miniature theatre in which those two famous personages figured was evidently the most used of all the toys.

-They have introduced a novel method to guard against certain rallroad accidents on one of the Michigan lines. This consists simply in placing a bell in front of the boiler of the locomotive, either under or over the headlight, where it is arranged in such a manner that, at each revolution of the driving-wheels, it is struck by a hammer, and, therefore, when the train is in motion, keeps up a constant din. This, it would seem, must be derogatory to the tympanums of the engineer, fireman and passengers generally; but people who have travelled on these ringing trains assert that they experience no annoyance, as the bell, under ordinary circumstances, cannot be heard on board of the train, owing to the rapid motion which throws the sound forward, from its position in front of the locomotive, so that it can be heard a considerable distance in advance of the train, thus giving timely warping. The general superintendent of the road thinks that some recent accidents would have been certainly prevented by the chase system ceased, regulating for the future the appointment and promotion of officers in the British army. According to this, first appointments may be given to (1.) successful candidates at competitive examinations; (2.) Matriculated students of any of the universities; (3.) Queen's cadets, Indian cadets and pages of honor, who pass a qualifying examination, and to non-commissioned officers who pass a professional examination. Sub-lieutenants, to qualify for the rank of lieutenant, must serve satisfactorily in a regiment for a year, and pass (except promoted non-commissioned officers) a professional examination. If they fall to pass such examination within three years, or prove morally or physically unfit for their duties, they may be removed. Lieutenants in the militia, by passing this examination, may obtain a lieutenancy in the army. A qualified lieutenant shall be eligible for promotion to the rank of captain after two vears' service. A qualified captain shall be eligible for promotion to the rank of major after six years' service. In the case of officers entering the army after August 26, 1871, the length of service shall begin to reckon from the date of their commissions as lieutenants; in the case of other officers from the date of their first commissions. A qualified office holding the substantive rank of major shall be eligible for promotion to the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

A Wonderful Project.

Perhaps the grandest scheme for the utilization of science which the mind of man has yet conceived, is that recently broached by Commodore Maury looking to the establishment, by international co-operation, of a general and systematic plan of meteorological observations and crop reports, through the medium of a Conference of the leading meteorologists of this and other nations. similar to that which was held at Brussels in 1853.

There are two purposes, in particular, that are said to be reproductions of the styles worn | Commodore Maury seeks to effect by the establishment of an uniform international system of meteorological and crop reports. The first is, the dissemination throughout the rural districts, both at home and abroad, of forecasts of the weather from day to day, so that farmers shall be able the better to guard their crops against the injuries they so often suffer from cyclones, and storms, and prolonged foul weather; and next, that they shall be furnished with trustworthy reports of the crop prospects in all parts of the world, and thus, by an easy calculation, ascertain whether the market price of their products is likely to rise or decline. At present, owing to the vague and uncertain accounts that reach them, they are incapable of fixing the market value of their products, and are obliged to take what the middlemen think proper to give. "Usually," says Commodore Maury, "the buyer asks "the seller the price of the wares. But, with "regard to all of the chief agricultural staples, the producer knows so little about "the yield in competing States and coun-"tries, that he is compelled to go and ask "the buyers about it, and request them to "fix the price. What," he asks, "would "you think if your neighbor, who, wishing "to sell a horse, should go to the man who "wanted to buy, and ask him to fix the "value and set the price? Yet this is ex-"actly what you do with your cotton and "grain, rice, sugar and tobacco, and all of "your staple productions. To relieve you from this, and to put you on a footing with "the factor in knowledge as to the yield of the crop everywhere, is exactly what these "resolutions aim to do." We do not care to go into the details by which Commodore Maury illustrates the dependence of the farmer and the planter upon the factor. The fact of this dependence is so well known that it will be very generally conceded. He also says, and very truly, that the reports of the crops, as given to the public through the press, or to the farmers through the circulars of factors, are partial and often wrong. He does not assert that this proceeds from design. He disclaims impugning the integrity of the factor; but he holds that the mode of acquiring the information is at best irregular, and is often deceptive, and he cites numerous instances, drawn from what are regarded as the best authorities, in proof of his assertions.

He next takes up the current reports of the cotton crop, and to show how frequently, by over-estimates, the price has been depressed, he gives the following table. He

"The cotton crop after it had all gone for ward, and had been delivered for shipment, was found to fall below the estimates in the following named years, as follows, viz: The real crop of 1833 fell below the estimated crop 25 per ct. 1838 fell below the estimated crop 244 per ct. 1840 fell below the estimated crop 25 per ct. 1843 fell below the estimated crop 15 per ct. 1846 fell below the estimated crop 151 per ct. 1849 fell below the estimated crop 231 per ct. 1856 fell below the estimated crop 18 per ct. 1860 fell below the estimated crop 211 per ct.

"These are not all the erroneous estimates that occurred during this period of thirty-four years. They are only extreme cases; but they show that on the average every fourth crop is over-estimated to the extent of more than one-fifth." As most of the planters sold at a price corresponding to the estimated yield of the crop, it was not they but the middlemen, capitalists and speculators who profited by the rise in market value, when the crop was found to have fallen from fifteen to twenty five per cent. below the earlier estimate. What he aims to do is to establish such a system of reports, from all parts of the world, as shall show the average yield of each of the agricultural staples for that season, and thus do away with that element of uncertainty to which the farmer and the cotton, tobacco, sugar, and rice planters, are now subjected. He does not ask any aid from the government in the shape of money. He simply desires it to use its friendly influence with other nations to bring about an International Conference for the advancement of science, and for the especial benefit of all those everywhere who till the earth. He

"The machinery for putting the plan into operation is, so far as this country is concerned, all ready; all it wants is the gearing up. You have your signal office where weather reports are contin ally received by telegraph, and whence telegraphic forecasts are issued daily, and though this work is so new to officers engaged in it, their progress so far is in the right direction. You have also the Agricultural Bureau, in the service of which reports, embodying many of the facts and obports, embodying many of the facts and ob-servations required, are already made, or might be without any additional expense."

But it is necessary to put this "machinery" to practical uses, and these are his suggestions: "Let us suppose, merely for the sake of illus use of this melodious arrangement.

—A royal warrant was issued in Great Britain, October 31, the day on which the pur-

the crops as well as upon the Weather, and that at first, and in a tentative way, a special that at first, and in a tentative way, a strict of crop reporter be assigned to every district of ten thousand square miles in the States. It is his business to travel over his beat continually and to put himself in communication with intelligent farmers in all parts of it; and through them, together with his own obser-vations, to keep the central office posted by regular reports (say monthly at first) as to the state and promise of each one of the staple crops of his district. At the same time, the meteorological observers in the district would send forward their observations and reports in detail for the same period, also by mail; while the telegraph observers keep up their daily reports both as to weather and

"This would give five crop reporters for Alabama; five for Tennessee; four for Kentucky; and four for Ohio—and so on in this country. In Europe, twelve for Great Britain, nineteen for France, one for Holland, one for Belgium.

"These reporters would have their attention, at the first going off, so as not to be lost in a wilderness of data, directed chiefly: in Alabama, to cotton and corn; in Tennessee, to corn and wheat; in Kentucky, to corn, wheat, hemp and tobacco; in Ohio, to corn and wheat; and in each State and county to its chief staples only. So far the plan is simple enough, and may be carried out easily for this country, by

But to obtain full and accurate informa tion of the yield of the crops elsewhere, so as to get at their probable market value, it is necessary, as he says, to secure "the friendly co-operation of all States and nations that are concerned in the produc-"tion of any of the chief staples of agriculture, and so make the system universal.

Such is the international plan of crop and meteorological reports as advocated by Commodore Maury, and if it can be carried out there can be no possible doubt of the benefit it would confer upon all those who are engaged in agricultural pursuits, or of the greater steadiness it would give to values generally.

Germany and Russia.

The Czar having completed the reorganization of his army on a scale of immense power and efficiency, the practical effect of the increased strength of the nation is seen in the intimation which comes from Moscow that the lately victorious Prussia will be called upon to give pledges against the too great growth of her ambition. The demands of the Moscow Gazette are such as could not be made without the confidence which heavy artillery supplies, and are of more important account than any to which Bismarck has of late been obliged to listen. The neutralization of Denmark is of itself a concession which Prussia would be slow to make, and when to this is added the request that Northern Schleswig be restored to that plundered nation, every hair in Empe ror William's grey moustache must bristle with indignation. The fact that such measures are urged by the Moscow Gazette is of itself evidence that the government looks that way. The Russian press is even less independent than that of Prussia, and the gag of the Minister of the Interior would be speedily applied to any journal offering so important a suggestion unless it was in accordance with the Imperial policy. The millions of troops now ready to support the demands of the Czar add a meaning to this menace, which Prince Bismark can easily read between the lines.

hostetter's Bitters. ARREST DECAY.-WHEN A plant or a tree begins to decay it must needs die. It cannot be revitalized. But it is not so with human beings. A human ruin can be repaired, trengthened, restored, though a brown leaf or withered blade of grass can never be made green again. In the autumn of life, or even in its winter, when nature seemsto be giving way under the pressure of years, it is still possible to retard the progress of decay, and to lend to age more than its wonted vigor. As a means of promoting this object, HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS is unquestionably the most potent of all restora-It will not make the old young, but it will prevent, lessen, or sooth the inarmities which are the usual accompaniments of the decline of life. For debility and a lack of nervous power, from whatever cause arising, it is the medicine that of of all others before the world, best deserves the name of a specific. In purity, in invigorating properties, in its adaptation to weak stomach and feeble organizations, it has no competitor among the tonics of the pharmacopæla, nor among the proprietary remedies. Besides its strengthening principle, it possesses alterative and regulative properties of the highest order, and as an anti-billious medicine is far preferable to any of the preparations containing mercury. Time has shown that for physical decay, nervous debility, dyspepsia, bilious disorders, and intermittent fever, HOSTETTER'S BITTERS is a remedy without a rival. This is the season of the fall of the leaf; let it remind the old, the feeble, the sickly, to invigorate and regulate their systems with this great vegetable tonic and altera-
