-A curate writes to the London Standard: "We hear to much now to the discredit of royalty, that I think we ought to make known what we hear good of it. I heard yesterday from some people in my parish, who have re-lations living near Sanahingham, that the Prince of Wales is simply beloved by all who come into contact with him ou his Norfolk estate; his affability and kindness and really good nature displayed in his dealings with his tenantry land dependants is such as not often met with, even amongst those whose position is not so exhalted as his is."

-The Washington correspondence of the New York Tribune has the annexed in regard to Bepublican anti-administration sentiment in connection with the opening of Congress. and the prospects of a national Reform movement: "There has been no consultation or comparison of views upon the Presidential question by the Republican senators who opposed the administration last session, when the annexation of Santo Domingo was discussed, and the removal of Mr. Sumner from h's chairmanship was accomplished, but it is known that their opposition to General Grant is, it anything, more pronounced than ever." One of the incidents of the recent wedding of Senator Chandler's daughter is related by the Washington Capital: "It seems that when the charming Widow Aulick came to make her toilette it was discovered that the ruthless board of public works had torn up the street, and cut off the gas. A lady cannot dress without light. The prospect was dark. News of the trouble reached the Navy Department. The Navy Department was aroused. In a few hours an immense force was put upon the street, and in full time for the party light was thrown upon the charmed home. This carries ns back to the days of romance and gallantry. A softened, rosy light of more poetic times falls upon the rude streets of Washington."

-London papers of the 14th give a full description of two more days of the Tichborne trial. Several witnesses, both male and female, including Sir William Ferguson, were examined as to the identity of "Roger;" while Captain Burton, late consul at Damascus, proved that he met the claimant at Villa Nueva, near Buenos Ayres, preparing to cross the pampas, and that the claimant was then inindifferent health. The records of the United States Treasury Department show that there were two vessels named "Osprey," which were engaged in the foreign trade in 1854. Diligent inquiry is being made to ascertain if either of these was the one which rescued the supposed heir of the Tichborne estate from a wrecked British vessel, and took him to Meibourne, Australia

-The most interesting scene in the Whatton trial thus far was on Thursday last, when the daughter of the accused, Miss Nellie Wharton, was called to testify. The filial devotion which she has manifested without intermission since the date of the arrest, has conferred upon Miss Wellie an unsought celebrity. She has been her mother's constant companion above-mentioned, than when at Cha'tanooga.

s on Thursday. nooga, in Cincinnati's calculations, is regained simply as a geographical point, which it is important to reach, in the general plan of Southern connections. If the same end can be accomplished through other points, and by different and cheaper, or shorter lines, and more speedily, it is the rational argument of the Commercial that the pet scheme of a grand and costly and long-delayed trunk line should be abandoned, and the opportunities of the hour be seized and improved at once. It sees no doubt-if not, it can see-that already the Knoxville branch of the Louisville and Nashville road is completed to Livingston, within twelve miles of London, Ky., and that the extension of the Kentucky Central, from Nicholasville to Danville, a distance of twentyeight miles, will place Cincinnati in connection with that line. It might see further, that the Knoxville and Ohio (late Knoxville and Kentucky) road, already completed northward a distance of forty miles, is now in the hands of a company able and determined to complete it. It was bought with special view to its Northern extension, and its completion may be set down, at last, as a thing of certain accomplishment. An unfinished gap of eightyeight miles separates Knoxyille from the Lebanon branch, and this, added to the gap between Danville and Nicholasville, leaves a gap of only one hundred and sixteen miles to be closed up, to make complete the railroad communication between Cincinnati and Knoxville. The shortest line yet surveyed for the Cincinnati and Chattanooga line, we believe, is two hundred and forty-three miles in length-which is yet to be constructed. Ten months will suffice to complete the Knoxville line ; the Chattanooga route could be hardly opened in three years, where the present obstacles to its commencement out of the way. By reaching Knoxville, Cincinnati would practically accomplish all that could be obtained by the direct line to Chattanooga. And she would accomplish much more. She would secure a shorter route to Charleston, South Carolina, by way of Knoxville, than by way of Chattanooga, and at a much earlier day. The Southern Railroad Association has lately become the purchaser of the Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap and Charleston Railroad. From Morristown, on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad, this road is completed forty-three miles in the direction of Asheville, North Carolina. An extension of forty-four miles, which will certainly be made without delay, will take it to the latter point. From Asheville to Greenville, South Carolina, is but sixty-five miles. Greenville is the northern terminus of the Greenville and Columbia Bailroad, which has lately been purchased by the South Carolina Railroad Company, of which Mr. Magrath is President. Simultaneously with the extension of the Morristown Road to Asheville, the road from Greenville will be pushed forward to that point, thus completing Knoxville's connection with Charleston, by way of Asheville and Greenville, at an early day. The filling up of a gap of one hundred and nine miles will complete the connection. So that, by way of York. Knoxville, Cincinnati can, at less than onefourth the expense, and at a much earlier day, than by another course, secure all her desired Southern connections, being, when at Knexville, nearer to Charleston, by way of the line
