The City Council and the Police.

We know that the City Council deeply regret their inability to grant the petition of the police force for an increase of pay. Taxation has reached its extreme limit, the bonded creditors of the city are clamoring for their money, and the City Council know that, if they add to their expenses, they cannot make both ends meet. There is the additional fact that the Mayor and Chief of Police assure the Council that there are many more applications for positions on the police force, at the present pay, than can be accepted, and with this statement before them the Council had no alternative but to reject the proposition for an increase of pay. Unless the advocates of higher wages can show where the money is to come from, and can demonstrate that efficient policeman cannot be had at the existing rate of remuneration, the City Council owe it to their constituents not to exceed the appropriation already made. This view of the subject was forcibly presented to Council on Tuesday night by Alderman E. F. Sweegan.

We do not admit the proposition, laid down by some of our Charleston demagogues, that all taxation, at last, comes out of the pockets of the poor; but, upon that hypothesis, the proposed increase of pay would be unwise and unjust, inasmuch as the whole amount would have to be paid, in taxes, by the very classes who are least able to carry any additional burden.

Sanitary Measures.

We publish below a very interesting article from the "Report of the Board of Health "of New York for the year 1871," and propose to reproduce, as frequently as practicable, articles on kindred subjects, and to offer our own suggestions in relation to general hygiene. In this way we shall hope not only to interest those whose habits and opportunities of study lead them into this field of inquiry, but to instruct and benefit the masses of our people, who, from force of circumstances, are usually ignorant upon these important sanitary questions. Health is the paramount interest of every community, and to secure this all measures should be promptly inaugurated and persistently employed, which by universal consent are pronounced to be the most beneficial and efficacious. We are pleased to witness the energy and determination of our present civil administration in this very serious matter. For months past the whole network of public drainage has been uncovered and thoroughly cleansed, and such additional drains, diagonal and otherwise, trunks and ditches are in course of construction, as shall, we doubt not, effectually drain every foot of low land within the city limits. The Board of Health, regarding this as the most efficient means of preserving the public health, are determined to accomplish this as the first great specialty of the administration; and though the treasury of the city will not warrant such expenditure of funds as may be necessary to accomplish this object as they would desire, still, by economical and judicious management, they hope to complete the work to the entire satisfaction of the community.

The attention of our readers is specially invited to the following article upon "clean-"ing the streets:"

"The constant sweeping of the streets is so essentially necessary to the preservtion of health that it seems scarcely worth while to refer to it. Yet it is supposed by some that, unless the accumulation of mud or dirt becomes so great as to be offensive, scavengering is a useless expense; and it is probable that if it were put to a vote in some cities whether the streets should be swept twice instead of three times a week—the latter materially increasing the expense—it would be decided in favor of sweeping but twice. It is not, however, generally known that there is sometimes more danger to the health of a city from removing an accumulation of refuse matter than to leave it alone. For this reason frequent scavengering becomes a necessity. If the refuse has once been suffered to accumulate, it should not be removed in hot weather. An attempt to clean the streets of Vera Cruz, after they had been neglected for some time, almost involved the destruction of that portion of our army stationed there during the war with Mexico.

"The material obtained from the streets has, in many instances, been used for filling sunken lots and redeeming low ground. No greater folly could possibly be exhibited, for such a course has never failed to be followed by the most aggravated fevers; besides, the material properly belongs to agriculture, so that, in an economical view, it is wrong so to dispose of it. The proper course to pursue is to secure a piece of waste ground outside the limits of the city as a place of deposit for this material. By a proper arrangement of pits, night soil, and even offal, might be added to this deposit; and in time a most valuable accumulation of the richest kind of fertilizing material would yield a revenue to the city.

"All the streets should be swept at least three times a week, and the thoroughfares every night. The manner in which it is done in Paris exhibits the advantages derived from a thorough system. The general supervision of this branch of municipal administration is confided to the mayors, while its special supervision falls under the prefect of police. The sweeping of the streets is done at the charge of the proprietors, or where there are shops, no matter of what kind, at the expense of the owners of these shops; the average annual tax for this purpose is two dollars. The receipt for this money comes from the prefect of police.

"Thus the citizens pay directly for the sweeping of the streets directly in front of their houses, but the city carries away the sweepings. This labor is now done by contract. The sweeping costs $300,000 annually. The contractors who carry off the rubbish, after allowing it to rot a certain time in pits, sell it as manure at the rate of three to five francs the cubic yard, and realize a total sum on its sale of $700,000. The direct superintendence of the street sweeping is confided to officers responsible to the city government. The number of scavengers employed in this work in Paris is twenty-five hundred, including both sexes. They are divided into four legions, comprising twelve battalions, or thirty-six companies of four sections each.

"The persons found employed in this work are almost exclusively Alsatians and Germans, but very many of them speak French as well. They are not at all miserable-looking people as one sees employed in similar labor in other cities, but, for the most part, young or middle-aged persons in apparent robust health. The men are paid twenty-four sous or cents per day; the women twenty sous, and the children sums in accordance with the labor they are capable of performing, for here street-sweeping, like other of the menial occupations, is elevated to the dignity of a science, and is learned by an apprenticeship. The sweeps collect at given points, in companies of forty to sixty, every morning before four o'clock; they take their places in rank, two by two, men and women, and the roll is called and the absent ones marked; at four o'clock they are all at work. The work is performed by means of long switch brooms.

"They finish at or before eight o'clock, accomplishing the work in four hours. These hours are fixed, and invariably at eight o'clock the carts carry off the rubbish; no rubbish from the houses can be thrown into the streets after the hour fixed for the carrying off the street sweepings.

"At eight o'clock in the morning the fountains are opened and the gutters are filled for an hour or more with streams of pure running water, a measure that is repeated in the course of the day according to the wants of the season; and all this is accomplished every morning without confusion, and with the regularity of clock-work—a result due entirely to a careful organization and efficient superintendents.

"The streets of Paris are thus always as clean as well-used brooms can make them. There are no relaxations, no experiments; it is a regular system, which works from January to January with the same daily efficiency, and is never the cause of complaint from any source. It is not regarded as an extraordinary feat of administration, and any inefficiencies in its performance would be a matter of surprise. Besides this, a certain number of workmen, called cantonniers, are employed all day to work on the streets, to scrape up the accumulating dirt, and to keep the gutters clean. A certain number of carts are retained all day to carry off the sweepings of these cantonniers. The sweeping of the public squares and gardens is done exclusively at the charge of the city."

"The South Carolinian."

This vigorous daily newspaper is now conducted by Colonel J. P. Thomas and Mr. Thos. J. Lamotte. It is fully armed and equipped for the war with Radical corruption, and will do good service as the champion of the taxpayers at the capital of the State.

A DISRESPECTFUL correspondent of the New York Tribune speaks of the South Carolina Radical Administration as "that den of thieves "in South Carolina, whose grotesque caricature and criminal travesty of representative "government are a disgrace to modern civili-"zation." If the staunch Republican who wrote this were to say the same thing in Columbia, he would at once be denounced by the State Radicals as a lying Democrat or a bloody Ku-Klux.

WE welcome the Abbeville Lantern to the ranks of the advocates of proportional representation. The Lantern very properly declares that the majority have the right of decisive but not exclusive representation. Under the system of proportional representation the State is controlled by the majority, but the minority have a voice proportioned to their numerical strength. We warn our contemporary, however, that we must, if we would succeed, advocate proportional representation because it is right and just, and not merely because, in this State, the negroes are in the majority.

Hostetter's Bitters.

☞ PERIODIC DISORDERS.—THE paroxysmal maladies which are characterized by heat and cold, prevail extensively at this season; and it is a curious fact that in many parts of the country where they are prevalent, other diseases, that bear no general resemblance to fever and ague, or remittent fever, assume a periodic type. Thus, in many sections infested with chills and fever, rheumatism, neuralgia, hysteria, diarrhœa, &c., sometimes become intermittent, thereby indicating that they have been engendered by the same poisonous exhalations which produce the first named disease.

In all these masked cases of ague—for such they are—as well as in the regular intermittents, the most safe and reliable remedy that can be administered is HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. Neither quinine nor arsenic are needed. Both are in the highest degree dangerous, and are sure to leave sad traces of their poisonous action in the system, whether they arrest the paroxysms or not. In many instances all the so-called specifics of the "regular" materia medica utterly fail to "break up" intermittent and remittent disorders, but the great vegetable tonic never fails. The spasms of the minute blood vessels which causes the chill is the result of nervous weakness, produced by the debilitating operation of an unwholesome atmosphere, and the tone and vigor given to the nervous system by the Bitters enable it to throw off the disease. The wiser policy, however, is to anticipate attacks of this nature by arousing all the latent energies of the body at the commencement of the most moist and chilly season with this incomparable antidote. By pursuing this course, intermittents, remittents, rheumatism, colic, biliousness, dyspepsia and pulmonary affections may always be prevented.

☞ TO THE PUBLIC.—AFTER MANY years of faithful service in your behalf the CHARLESTON FIRE COMPANY finds itself so involved that it has no course left but to appeal to the generosity of the citizens of Charleston, to which the Fire Department has never yet turned in vain.

For a period of forty years serving as an Engine Company, since the war this organization has been changed to the Hook and Ladder branch of the service, one no less important, yet much harder, as it involves the necessity of attending every fire, no matter in what District it may occur.

But owing to the general depression, the members of the Company, while cheerfully and freely contributing their time and labor, have had little else to give, and the Company, depending almost exclusively for support upon the pay received from the city, has found this insufficient to meet the expenses incident to the purchase of a new apparatus, and the maintaining of the same in a proper state of efficiency.

Under these circumstances, it has been reluctantly determined to appeal to the public for aid and assistance, and the following Committee will, with that purpose, wait upon the citizens, with the confident hope that those whom they serve will not suffer them to ask in vain:

COMMITTEE.

F. PUCKHABER, J. GARVIS, S. WEBB, W. C. WOOD, J. H. THEILE, T. L. DAVIDSON, GEO. MCLAIN, JAMES HEFFRON.

The Hook and Ladder Companies of this Department are of as much importance in time of fires as an Engine, and we are well satisfied their pay does not meet their expenses. We very cheerfully recommend this appeal to our generous community.

M. H. NATHAN, Chief Fire Department.
R. M. ALEXANDER, First Assistant.
C. P. AIMAR, Second Assistant.
F. L. O'NEILL, Third Assistant.

SONG OF THE

ECONOMICAL HOUSEKEEPER!

'Although all dealers say they sell
The very, very best,
Not any Tea, like WILSON'S,
Will stand a lasting test;
And I have tried it long enough,
Upon a frugal plan,
To find it is the only Tea
To cheer up my good man."
