Eberhard strenuously denies this, claims that it is a case of mistaken identity, and calls to support his statements George P. Smith, who resides at the Hoffman House. Watch and Wait.

The Columbia Phænix thinks that the onest members of the Republican party are disgusted with the management of the public affairs, and that the Democracy should allow them, this time, to make the first step. Let the independent Republicans make the fight, and the white people of the State can support them at the polls.

-These views appear to be concurred in by nearly all the Conservative papers in the the people seem resolved to move slowly, and to seize every favorable opportunity for improving their condition. It is unquestionably true that there are serious divisions in the ruling party-divisions which can only be healed by a common danger, in the shape of a Democratic opposition to the warring Radical factions. This would cause the leaders of the factions to fraternize instanter, and the party would go to the polls as compactly and as blindly as in 1870. We need not, therefore, expect to run in Democratic candidates, because the Radicals are now engaged in the profitable business of cutting each other's throats. If we let them alone and do nothing, they will continue their bickering, and in nearly every county there will be two sets of Radical candidates. occasion of the recent thanksgiving festival. This will induce one of the two sections to nominate far better men than are ever chosen when every Republican must either vote for his party candidate or for the candidate of the Democracy. A liberal, well-meaning Republican will choose the best of the Republican tickets submitted for his approval, but if the choice lie between Republican and Democrat, he will certainly take the Republican, so strict is party discipline.

The white people of the State hold the balance of power. What they desire and need is an honest and intelligent administration of the affairs of the State. This is more important to each and every one of us that the failure or the success of any political

New Books.

MABEL LES. A Novel. By the author of Valerie Ayimer, Morton House, &c. With Illus trations. New York: D. Appleton & Co 1872. Charleston : Holmes's Book House.

We assume that Mabel Lee, although pub lished later, is an earlier work than the two novels by which the author is best known, and upon which, for the present, her reputation rests. Its strong points are the charming pictures of Southern life and Southern scenery, same lofty purity of thought, and elevation of sentiment; but it is far from being the artistic equal of its predecessors. Most of the characacters have very little true individuality. They circumstances, they will say and do. It is her heroes, at all times, consistent with themselves. The reader is sedulously reminded, for instance, that Philip Conway may be expected to prove as big a scamp as his profligate thrift is a cynic, and is fond of gaming and racing. The opening chapters show him to be peteye, at the crisis of the story, he becomes dignified, earnest and self-contained-a model of sensitive honor and gentlemanly propriety. Of course, the reader must take it for granted that a passionate love works the happy metamorphosis, but it is an artistic defect that we have no hint of the mental process by which the result is reached. Nor is a sufficient reason given for the conduct of Ainslie. His explanation of his motives is not borne out by his words and demeanor during the halcyon days Reyton House. We might also suggest take the place of all the dirty and unpleasant that the public like to be told what is the fate of all the prominent characters. It does not satisfy us when the curtain falls so suddenly that we only know that Hero wears widow's weeds, and that of Leander's bones is coral made. We refrain from describing the plot, for the reason that we do not wish to deprive the public of the gratification of solving for themselves the mystery of the disappearance of Mabel Lee. The scene is laid in the Carolinas, the denouement taking place in Charleston; and the graces of its style, the dainty bits of the nourishing qualities necessary to its growth description and stirring incidents make it a and healthy condition; it restores the decayed novel which, once begun, will not willingly be laid aside until the last word is read. But it has blemishes which might have been avoided. and we have not hesitated to point them out.

The high opinion we entertain of the merits of Valerie Avlmer, and of its worthy successor, banks, and yesterday Deputy Sheriff Jarvis re- Morton House, prompts us to urge the author ceived a requisition from the Governor of not to abate a jot of study and care in elabora South Carolina, approved by Governor Hoff- ting her productions. Unless we are sadiy man, for the arrest of J. L. Steavens, one of | mistaken, Miss Fisher can obtain and retain the first place among the novelists of the South, and may reach the front rank of the writers of taking Steavens to South Carolina. On this American fiction. But the public, especially requisition Mr. Jarvis arrested a young man her own people, expect of her that any tendency to Braddonism shall be repressed, and that there shall be a steady improvement in the conception and execution of whatever she undertakes. They are not ready to admit that she has reached the maturity of her splendid powers. A bountiful Nature and thorough culture have done much. Time, experience and an enlargement of the circle of her perbanks said to have been a portion of the sonal knowledge of the world of hard fact and sad reality, may be trusted to do the rest. Pp. 162. RIGHTED AT LAST. A Novel. With Illustra-tions. D. Appleton & Co., New York, 1872. Charleston: Holmes's Book House.

Many a worse novel than this finds a willing publisher nowadays. It drags somewhat, and the characters and situations are not particularly original; yet it is reasonably interesting, and just misses being a work of considerable merit. There is no "blood and thunder" in its pages, and to some classes of readers it will doubtless be exceedingly attractive. Paper. Pp. 172. Price $1.

WHAT SPRING BRINGS WITH IT. egarded from a medical standpoint, Spring is not the delectable season described by vernal poets. On the contrary, its yield of intermittent evers, billious attacks, rheumatic ; ains, disorders of the stomach, nervous complaints, and pulmonary di eases, is almost as large as its crop State. There is some difference of opinion of violets, snowdrops and cherry blossoms. The as to the details of the policy proposed; but invisible seeds of innumerable maladies rise with the morning mists, and are scattered broadcast by the vapors of night. Who can resist their mephitic influence? Certainly not the weak by nature, or those whose nervous energies have been overtasked by mental or physical labor, unless they tone and invigorate their systems, and thus enable them to cope with the unhealthy influences by which they are surrounded. The only medicinal agent by which this object can be rapidly and safely accomplished is the great vegetab e renovant and invigorant, Ht S-TETTERS S. OMACH BITTERS. The operation of this celebrated specific is four-fold. It strengthimproves the condition of the blo.d, superinduces regular habit of body, and thereby imparts such vigor and elasticity to the whole physical structure as to render it capable of reasting the action of the poisonous miasma, with which the pregnated. Here, then, is a ready and certain means of escaping the disorders prevalent at this season, or (if they have already fastened upon the system) of conquering them speedily and thoroughly. The flavor of a medicine is not of much consequence, provided it does its work properly, but of Hostetters Bitters it may be fairly said that they effect a cure without outraging the patient's mch25-mw18D&C
