NEWS OF THE DAY.

-Gold closed yesterday at 12;a12; -The New York cotton market closed dull; uplands 233 cents; sales 260 bales. -In Liverpool cotton was firm at the close;

-Tweed's contest for his seat in the New York Legislature is still the subject of committee investigation, but will not be reported on until next session. -Miss Anna Dickinson delivered a political lecture in New York, on the 10th instant, in defence of the principles of the Liberal move--American dentists are very popular, professionally, in Europe. There are now six in St. Petersburg, four in Vienna, and two in Constantinople. They are also to be found in other large cities. -The importations at New York for the past week were about $10,000,000—a falling off of nearly three millions compared with the week before. The decrease is most noticeable in sugar, tea, coffee, hides, iron and fancy goods. -A colored man applied at the police headquarters in Richmond, Va., on the 26th instant, for hospital accommodation, announcing that he had small-pox. He claimed to have been landed from the Baltimore boat on the day previous. -The Tichborne claimant publishes a letter to the public. in which he returns thanks for their previous subscriptions in his behalf, and asks for an additional sum of four thousand pounds to enable him to continue his contest for the possession of the Tichborne estate. -It has already been reported from Parls hat the Duc de Noailles is to be the new French Minister at Washington. The Duc de Noailles comes of an old and historic family He served in the Chamber of Peers in 1826, under Louis Philipe. The Courier des Etats Unis compliments him, both as a man and as a diplomatist, and declares that he is one of the most distinguished representatives that France could send to America. -The residence of Mr. Henry McCollum near Red Banks, Robeson County, was visited by Stephen Lowery, one of the outlaws, and present leader of the gang, one day last week. Mr. McCollum was at work in the field at the time, and knew nothing of the visit until the outlaw had left. He appropriated a fine watch belonging to Mrs. McCollum, and a gun belonging to her husband, but afterwards, at be ripped out to satisfy the East. Cliques the earnest solicitations of the lady, returned are button-holing and wire-pulling, and the watch. He carried off the gun, but molested nothing else.

Mr. Robert Bonner is either very shrewd or very lucky in his purchases of horses. The name of Dexter is probably as well known as that of the President of the United States, Recently, Startle, a young colt from Bonner's stable at Fleetwood Park, trotted a quarter of Rings. a mile in thirty seconds, or at the rate of a | We do not think that there is serious ed by its original owner thirty-five thousand dollars for it. -The report of Attorney-General Williams, in response to a resolution of the House of Bepresentatives, shows that five hundred and one persons were arrested in South Carolina in pursuance of the act of Congress of April, 1871, and that fifty-three confessed in open court they were or had been members of the combination and conspiracies forbidden and made penal by said act. In North Carolina thirty-seven persons were convicted or pleaded guilty of violations of the law; nine hundred and forty four persons were indicted for similar glolations; one hundred and fifty-two persons have, been indicted in the southern and four hundred and ninety in the northern district of Mississippi.

-A Washington telegram, of Sunday, says: "The pressure to have Congress pass its judg- the Great Republic of the West. ment against the consequential claims before the Geneva conference having somewhat abated, the friends of that movement have turned their attention to the Executive, who has been advised by some leading bankers of New York to waive that feature of the American case, for the reason that no European capital is seeking investment in the new American rallroad and other securities. The President expressed himself surprised to find such a general sentiment among capitalists, public men and the press in favor of withdrawing the claim, but he intimated that the administration intended to adhere to its position of submitting thet feature to the arbitration as a preliminary question, with the very general expectation that it would be threwn out, and thereby settle the principle that neutrals will in tuture in no event be liable for indirect damages. The administration take the ground that Great Britain has as much to gain by such a result as the United States, and ought not to abandon the treaty an a preliminary question. -A horrible incident occurred at a large fire in Wooster street, New York, on Saturday night. The fifth floor of the building was occupled by a tailor's co-operative society. Several tailors were working. They rushed down and attempted to escape by the stairs. The smoke and intense heat drove back the three last. There was no way of escape by the roof. Descending to the fourth floor, one Ferdinand jumped from the rear window, fifty feet to the ground, and was picked up insensible, but without serious hurt. Two others, John and James McBride, brothers, sought to escape by similar means. One was caught by the flames, fell to the floor and was burned to a crisp. The other was leaning out of the window imploring help, when the flames caught him and burned him to a cinder. and his burned body remained leaning out of the window until the fire was put out. During the fire the corpse hung from the window in ities, or to warrant them in delivering up an easy attitude, as if inspecting the disaster, and presented a horrible aspect. When the corpses were removed their appearance caused a thrill of horror. James's body was entire, with the exception of the lower limbs, but cled until they were brought from Columbia John's corpse was disfigured almost beyond recognition.

-The Brooklyn Presbytery, moved thereto probably by the action of the Rev. Dr. Cuyler in permitting a woman to occupy his pulpit, has prepared an address to the General Assembly asking for the passage of some prohibitory law upon the subject. They ask this on | dently enters into the spirit of the thing.

the ground that woman's place in the church is as a helper, not as a principal; that it is not her right to teach officially, and that the Bible does not sanction such teaching; that government and teaching are inseparable, and both are prohibited to woman; that the woman should be subject to her husband, and that this is irreconcilable with the prerogatives of the holy ministry. No woman in the Old Testament, they say, was ever anointed to this prophetic office—the New Testament ministry being a ministry of men exclusively. The proof of this subordinate relation of woman, they argue, is found in the writings of Moses and St. Paul, and that in the latter more than one express prohibition of woman's preaching. To any church that believes it wrong for women to occupy its pulpits, and direct the spiritual affairs of its congregations, such a call as this comes none too soon. The number of women who have undertaken to preach, and some of whom, especially in the Unitarian church, have been regularly licensed to do so, is fast multiplying. In the New York papers the sermons of many of these women are regularly reported.

The Cincinnati Convention.

To-day the Liberal Republican Mass Convention meets in Cincinnati; and there is no room for doubting that the gathering will be imposing in numbers, as well as in the uplands 11d, Orieans 114a113d; sales 10,000 character of the delegates. Only a few weeks ago the movement appeared to have little vitality, but from the time of the issuing of the Greeley-Selden letter and the holding of the New York Meeting, notable accessions of strength were received from all quarters of the country. The convention, as it stands to-day, is the mouth-piece of a people who rise up against the nepotism, the usurpation, the implacability and the truckling truculence of the Grant administration. It is the exponent of the desires of millions of American citizens, who demand Amnesty and Reform. But the very strength of the Cincinnati

Convention exposes it to perils which it would otherwise escape. In the earlier stages of the Liberal Republican revolt, the leaders were det mined to act in a cautious and conciliatory manner. As the Democracy hold the balance of power, it was politic to frame a declaration of principles and seek out candidates whom they might not be constrained to oppose. It was, also, highly advisable to avoid any action which might alienate Mr. Greeley and his friends in the East, or the adherents of Labor and Revenue Reform in the West. As the movement would depend for its success upon detaching votes from the Administration party, and upon securing the bulk of the Democratic vote, there was every incentive to adhere to a line of conduct which should not repel any section of expected supporters. But the Liberal Republican cry has been echoed in every State of the Union, and the party leaders may be tempted to abandon the wise moderation which had guided their counsels. Feeling that the people are with them, they may be induced to allow mere politicians an influence which would be fraught with evil consequences. This is the danger. Already there is the bint that one plank must be put in the platform to please the West, and another plank must threaten that they will not work with the convention unless their pets be nominated. Instead of a body of patriotic citizens consulting together for the welfare of the country, there is the chance that the convention may become the creature of caucusses and mile in two minutes and fourteen seconds. reason to apprehend the manifestation of Mr. Bonner paid twenty thousand dollars for the influences to which we have alluded; but internal organs to repel the causes of disease, rethe colt, and after this feat was immediately we should not ignore the fact of their exstence in the convention which meets to-day. That convention holds in its hands the destinies of the Republic, and upon its sagacity and prudence depend the triumph or the defeat of the principles which it represents. If the convention nominate proper candidates and adopt a judicious platform, Grant will be beaten in November. But an indiscreet choice of candidates and a narrow and sectional platform will make the overthrow of the Administration party well-nigh impossible. To the Cincinnati Convention every eye is turned with anxious hope. Well may we of the South pray that the electric wires may soon be musical with tidings which shall be the harbinger of Unity, Prosperity and Peace to

The "Ku-Klux" District.

Very few persons have any definite idea of the extent of the injury inflicted upon the agricultural and commercial interests by the wholesale arrests which have been made in the upper counties of this State. The people heartily condemn the outrages which such men as the witnesses for the government confess that they have committed; but they know that innocence is no shield, and they flee from South Carolina to avoid an incarceration which may be their fate whenever a venal or half-crazed colored man chooses to make an accusation against them. As a necessary consequence the cultivation of the soil is suspended, the merchants return their goods to the firms from whom they were bought, and the people of nine counties live in a condition of uneasiness which had no parallel during the fierce years of war. In the small County of Laurens, by actual count, five hundred ploughs lie idle in the fields. That county alone looses the cultivation of ten thousand acres of land as the result of the savage persecution which the General Government has carried on. Any practical farmer, in the North or West, can calculate for himself how much damage is done the county by such a suspension of labor in the spring of the year. Nay! the colored laborers, who are thrown out of employment, feel acutely the wrong of which they are, in their degree, the victims. No one in South Carolina pretends to justify crime or excuse hideous outrages; but nothing has been unearthed to justify the intervention of the United States authorthousands of American citizens to the tender thor of Nathalle, Rachel Gray, &c. Three volumes in one. New York: D. Appleton & Co. 1872. Charleston: Holmes's Book

This novel was written fifteen years ago; but if it were fresh from the workshop it would be dubbed "old-fashioned," because the plot do s not depend for its interest upon either biga-my, murder or seduction. The story is of courtship, love and married life, and Miss Kavanagh is able to make it exceedingly pleasant and attractive without going beyond the bounds of probability, or seeking incidents more startling than those of every-day life.

Adèle, the central figure, is a fascinating little body, who might well turn the head of a colder man than William Osborne, and the history of their differences and misunderstandings, although they lead to the growth of confiding and unselfish affection, may serve to remind the reader, in these degenerate days, that the failing out of faithful friends is not always the renewing of love. All the characters are well drawn, and there is not a Whoever begins this novel will go on to the end, but it is doubtful whether there will be any better motive than bare curiosity-the desire to know how the enigma of the plot is solved. The writing is easy and forcible, and no murdering the King's English can be charged against the author. When this is said, nearly all is said; for the story is pitched in a minor key, and the only strong character is very repulsive. The author relies on mystery and action to produce the desired effects; forgetting that the development and contrast of character may be made far more striking than any complication arising from an alarming accident or ingenious masquerade. Tout
