NEWS OF THE DAY. -The Pope attained his eightieth year last week. -Carl Schurz's wife and daughter will sa for Europe on the 30th of June. -Mrs. Horace Greeley and her two daughters are at Angouleme, France. -The recent earthquake has increased the flow of the hot springs in California.

-The coal fields of Virginia are beginning to-attract the attention of capitalists. It is said that there are unlimited supplies of coal, iron and limestone in the Old Dominion, which need only capital and energy, together with increased railroad facilities, to develop. -Among the things burned in the great fire at Chicago were forty thousand Bibles. This information may seem to be rather late as a matter of news, but the articles in question were so seldom used in Chicago that nobody missed them, and it was only by very patient investigation that their loss has been very recently ascertained.

-An Atlanta dispatch of the 18th instant says: "To-day a writ of habeas corpus was issued by Judge Erskine in the case of Hendricks, the United States deputy marshal who came here and endeavored to arres peaceable citizens on forged warrants. The case is set for a hearing on Wednesday next, and it is not improbable that Hendricks will be discharged from arrest, as I am informed by a prominent lawyer that the proof of his rascality is not accessible."

-Judge Jere. Black has been interviewed at Washington on the political situation. He disapproves of Mr. Greeley as a candidate for Democrats, "but (he says) I'. tell you what we are going to do. The platform put forth at Cincinnati is a broad, fair, democrate platform. There is nothing passive in that. Now, if the convention that meets at Baltimore finds in its wisdom that Greeley fits the platform, we will make the best fight for him we can. I have no question but when the canvass warms up, and men take sides as men are wont to do, that the entire Democratic party will be found striving for the right."

-Postmaster Jones, of New York, tells : Some time ago one Norton, cashier of the postoffice, turned out as a defaulter, and the United States Government came down on his securities, among whom was Horace Greeley, responsible to the extent of about thirty thousand dollars. 'Greeley was very restive under this obligation, and he is so much in fear of debt, that he actually wanted to give his check for the whole sum and get it off his than one hundred acres number only 8148 held, and Mr. Greeley put on his spectacles, took up his bond and dolefully read over the the small holdings. In 1860 there were conditions. "They say I write an infernally bad band," said Greeley, "but they can read it than five hundred acres. These dwindled to plain enough when it gets on one of these

-The latest freak of the woman movement is the letter of Tennie C. Claffin, in which she applies for the colonelcy of the Ninth New York Regiment, protesting that it would be wrong to the memory of its dead leader to select as its successor any one lacking the magnetic influence he possessed over soldiers She will accept the position, and pledge herself, if elected, to give such impetus to recruiting that in thirty days the regiment will be the foremost in the State. "There can be no objection," she says, "to me, except that I am a woman; but Joan of Arc was a woman, and while I don't pretend to have her military genius, it has always been my desire to become actively connected with the service. In the whole rules and tactics I am well versed."

-Among the good passages of Greeley's life, is his advocacy of the claims of the widow of the Irish poet, C. G. Halpine. Halpine died suddenly in the possession of an office worth $70,000 a year, out of which, with a poet's want of thrift, he had saved nothing except some partial payments on a good house in Lexington avenue. He leit a haif dozen orphan children, who would have been reduced to extreme poverty in a few weeks but for Horace Greele'ys influence. Greeley went personally, telegraphed and sent messages to Albany, insisting that Fenton should put Jones or some of Halpine's triends in the register's office and let the profits accrue for the whole of the unexpired term in favor of Halpine's family. Fenton had no great friendship for Halpine, and was loth to give away an office of such value for a mere sentimentality when it would have been of the highest use to him as an ambitious politician. Greeley showed great force and industry in bringing influences to bear upon Fenton, and among other things, he telegraphed to Grant, Sherman and Sheridan, and the leading generals of the army, imploring them, on behalf of a comrade, to send dispatches to Fenton at Albany, urging him to do right by the widow and family. So industrious were these things done that Patrick Jones was made trustee of the office, and the whole proceeds thereof for the remainder of the term were secured to the bereaved family.

-The Pall Mall Gazette has made the discovery that disturbances of the interior forces of the earth have a remarkable connection with political changes. Thus in 1855 the resignation of the Aberdeen Ministry was followed by a serious eruption of Vesuvius. When Lord Derby resigned in 1859 the same volcano made another demonstration. After the Trent affair, and the release of Mason and Slidell, Torre del Greco, at the base of Vesuvius, was destroyed by a stream of lava. On November 12, 1867, another eruption of Vesuvius began, and on December 13 the Fenians attempted to blow up Clerkenwell Prison. This eruption continued until February, 1868, when, Lord Derby resigned and the Disraell Ministry coming into power, the mountain ceased its mutterings. Mount Ætna, too, has been affected by the political disturb ances in England on several occasions. In 1832, when the Reform bill was passed, Æina bolled over and destroyed the neighboring town of Bronte. There was a violent eruption of Ætns in 1952, when the Duke of Wellington died; and, in 1865, an eruption lasting from February to July was followed by the death of Lord Palmerston and the accession of Earl Russell to power. The Gazette is of the opision that the recent breaking out of esuvius will be followed by the breaking up of the Gladstone ministry. Accepting these views as well founded, it is not difficult to account for the late earthquakes in this country, which, beginning in California, made the earth tremble from the Pacific to the Atlantic Ocean. These internal disturbances were evidently the preliminary indications of the great political earthquake which is already beginning to shake the foundations of Grant's corrupt administration, and which, by November next, will result in a general upheaval of political strata, the burial out of sight of numerous fossil politicians, and a general purification of the political atmosphere.

Greeley's Acceptance.

In our telegraphic columns this morning will be found a synopsis of the formal letter of acceptance by Horace Greeley of the Presidential nominatian by the Liberal Republican Convention. It is an honest, manly utterance, breathing exactly the sentiments that are needed to : ""te the country for a glorious future, and must command the heartfelt Amen! of every man who is not so blinded by party passions or crazed by greed of office as to forget his birthright of American citizenship.

An Agricultural Revolution.

A comparison of the statistical tables contained in the United States Census Reports for 1830 and 1870 indicates that a vast change has taken place in the agricultural condition of South Carolina since the end of the Confederate war. Whether the revolution, for such it may be called, is the result of a conviction that small farms can be worked more profitably than large ones, or whether it grows out of forced sales arising from excessive taxation, or whether it is to be attributed to purchases of land, and to the renting of farms by the laboring classes, or to a combination of all three causes, it may be difficult to say. What is to be dealt with is the broad fact that the area of the South Carollna farms has been diminished to a startling extent since 1860.

In 1860 there were 28,456 farms of all sizes in South Carolina. In 1870 the total number of farms was 51,889. The number of farms had nearly doubled in ten years. Nor can this be attributed to any increase in the quantity of land under cultivation-for the census shows that there were only 3,010,539 acres of improved land in the State in 1870, against 4,572,060 in 1860. The area of land divided up into farms is one-fourth less than it was ten years ago. Nevertheless, the number of farms has nearly doubled. A further examination indicates the class of farms which have been affected. In 1860 there were in this State only 352 farms, containing less than ten acres each. In 1870 there were 10,474 farms of this class. This immense increase points unmistakably to the acquisition of homesteads by laborers, and as the operations of the Land Commission were a huge swindle, it is fair to assume that the purchases were made out of the precoods of labor, and not by the ussistance of the State. In the farms containing ten acres and less than twenty acres there is also an astonishing increase; the number rising from 1219 in 1860 to 9.146 in 1870. The farms of twenty acres and under fifty acres have risen in number from 6695 to 16,415; but the farms of fifty acres and less the farms which have been cut up to make 11,369 farms of one hundred acres and less 7112 in 1870. Of farms of five hundred acres and less than one thousand acres there were number from 482 to 129. At a future day it may be practicable to show approximately the extent to which production has been affected by the reduction in the area of the farms. But in all these calculations it must be borne in mind that the ignorance of the majority of the colored people and the inexperience of the census efficers, prevent the public from regarding the agricultural statistics of the Southern States with the same confidence with which they look upon the returns from the North and West.

New Books.

A WOMAN'S EXPERIENCES IN EUROPE; including Eagland, France, Germany and Italy. By Mrs. E. D. Wallace. New York: D. Ap-pleton & Co. 1872. Charleston: Holmes's Book House.

Books of travel are spun by the thousand and their number is supposed to be evidenc enough of their popularity. A few of them are really good-spirited, impartial and entertaining-but, for the most part, these sketches of travel, notes from abroad, or whatever else they may be called, are written for the gratification of personal vanity, by tourists who know less of Europe and Europeans when they are homeward bound than when, with an armory of prejudices and a score of Saratoga trunks, they set sail for Liverpool. Mrs. Wallace is not one of this last class; although her book is far from being a model production It is lively, fresh and gossipy, and makes the reader feel that he is a witness of the gay sights which are described. Mrs. Wallace saw what there was to be seen, and made the most of her time. There is, also, an element of attractiveness in the circumstance that the author gave particular attention to the Americans who are studying and working on the continent. The sketch of the American artists in Rome is a case in point. Some of the descriptions are very picturesque-notably those of Dresden and of the mid-Lent amusements in Paris. But the author is a thorough New Englander in her impatient flings at what she does not believe in or understand. And her experience at the Bal de L'Opera must have been rather peculiar, inasmuch as, immediately afterward, she prevent ed two American mothers from sending their sons to Paris, telling the anxious mammas that she would as soon give a son of hers "a "passport to Gehenna." Is there not coarse vice enough in New York and even Philadelphis, to make it somewhat absurd to fear to sena a boy to Paris because of the gambols at an annual masquerade ball? Nevertheless, one might do worse than saunter through edition of Cooper's novels, illustrated by Darley. It is clearly printed on good paper, and the boys and girls will not overlook the fact that the price is only 75 cents. THE PRINCIPLES OF GEOLOGY; OR THE MODERS CHANGES OF THE EARTH AND ITS INHABI-TANTS CONSIDERED AS ILLUSTRATIVE OF GEoLogy. By Sir Charles Lyell, Bart, M. A., F. R. S. Eleventh and entirely revised tion. In two volumes. Volume 1. New York: D. Appleton & Co. Charleston Holmes's Book House.

There has been an interval of five years be ween the tenth and eleventh editions of the Principles of Geology, during which time nuch discussion has taken place on important theoretical points bearing on meteorology and climate, and much new information ob tained by deep-sea dredging in regard to the bed of the ocean and its living inhabitants. Sir Charles Lyell, therefore, found it necessary to recast several chapters, and at the same time he has endeavored to render more intelligible some of those periodical changes which most affect climate. The latest known facts concern ing marine currents are dwelt upon, and the theories of oceanic circulation are considered. With these exceptions the work has been re printed mainly as it stood in 1867, with correc tions and additions. The preface from which these explanatory remarks are taken is dated July 15, 1872, so that the reader of the eleventh edition has the advantage of all the changes and corrections which the course of scientific investigation, up to the beginning of the present year, has enabled Sir Charles Lyell to make. The edition is illustrated with maps, plates and wood cuts, and has a complete index. In every respect it does credit to the skill and business tact of the great publishing firm by whom the American edition is issued Cloth. Pp. 671. Price $4.
