The Charleston News.

THURSDAY, MAY 30, 1872.

Mr. WILLIAM E. SIMMONS, Jr., is the travelling agent for THE NEWS, for South Carolina.

NEWS OF THE DAY:

-The footmen, butlers, grooms, gardeners and porters of London, have decided to form themselves into a protective union. -General James Shields, of Missouri, supports Greeley and Brown. General Shields is well known all over the country as a herostatesman. He fought through the Mexican war, and has been a life-long Democrat. His heart is as brave as his head is clear, and he is second only to Gratz Brown in the influence he wields with the people of Missourl.

-Two newly invented words have recently made their appearance-"additionable" and "ragrams." The former was used by Lord Granville, the British secretary for foreign affairs, in a speech, in the House of Commons, on the Alabama claims, and the latter is the invention of a San Francisco newspaper edi-

Dan Voorhees made another long speech in aid of Grant's re-election at Terre Haute on Saturday. It was telegraphed to all the Grant papers as a campaign document. Voorhees wants to re-elect Grant by means of a straight Democratic nomination. Let us wait and see

-It must be with a grain of chagrin that the administration party, which hoped to anticipate the Liberal strength by declaring amnesty, reads the declarations of Henry S Foote, who publishes a card saying that "having been magnanimously relieved from civil disabilities, about three days since, by a wise and paternal government," he announces himself a candidate for Congress and an inflexible supporter of the Greeley and Brown ticket.

-Mrs. Dr. Mary J. Studley ranked third in a recent competitive examination for five positions on the house staff of the Charity Hospital in New York, but a resolution was passed by the medical board, in which they said to the commissioners of charities and correction that they "deemed it inexpedient to appoint There is much more to come. a female to such a position," and five men were appointed, three of whom passed below Mrs. Studley. The case will probably be carried before the courts.

-The New York Herald of Monday, in its review of the stock and bond market for last week, says: "The only features of interest in the Southern State bonds were offered by the Tennessees and South Carolinas, by the latter more especially, their fluctuation having been of 33 and 36, the latter figure being reached being made to register the bonds in accordce with the provisions of the constitutional amendment to guard against over issue, or any increase of the State debt without popular

-There is now performing at a Berlin the atre a remarkable play founded upon the story of the Chicago conflagration. After several acts, devoted entirely to red fire, harrowing incidents and fearful elucidations of historical and geographical points, the fire is ended by the Prussian consul rushing upon the stage, mounting the engine and waving the red, white and black flag of Deutchland. This is supposed to revive the well-nigh exhausted energies of those who are fighting against the flames, and, striking up "Wacht am der Rhine," they again attack the blaze, and are, of course, victorious. Appreciative Berlin flocks to see this play, and implicitly believes that the Chicago fire was extinguished in precisely the manner indicated. -A New York letter savs : "Mr. A. T. Stewart has at last moved into his marble palace, act lights now gleam from the heavy plate glass of the second story. It seemed as though he were loth to dwell in those marble halls, and delayed going till a case of smallpox occurred at his brownstone residence opposite. He still attends to the management of cause we are such we do not wish to see the smallest detail. Twenty-five hundred persons are now employed by him, and so actimes $75,000 worth of goods are sold at retail in a nothing to fear from the election of Greeley single day. He wishes to make this amount reach $100,000, and will doubtless soon accomplish his desire. Five hundred porters are employed by him, and from his Tenth street store as many as five thousand packages go out in a single day. Eleven hundred men and women are here employed, and every item is earefully watched and looked into by this remarkable man. He is a neat, well-preserved old gentleman, appearing much younger than his seventy years. -Tae success of the carpenters, masons, painters and other mechanics who "struck" for eight hours in New York, has emboldened other employees to follow their example, and at least thirty thousand working people in that city, including furniture men, marble workers, pattern-makers, varnishers and polishers, ship-joiners, coach painters, wheelwrights, blacksmiths, &c., &c., are now or ganized to take part in the movement, and some of them intend to strike to-day. The plumbers' strike has just ended in a victory for the workmen. The coffinmakers are now on a strike, and their motto is "eight hours or no tunerals." The weather is warm, and they are likely to get their demand before the newspapers can fire off their jokes on such a grave subject by remarks that this is running the strike into the ground. The clerks employed in the business houses are making an effort to obtain a half holiday every Saturday afternoon at one o'clock, in accordance with the custom which is almost universal throughout England. In London, Liverpool, Manchester and all the large cities, no business is transacted on Saturday afternoon, except by small retail stores, and the arrangement seems been started there, but has not yet been generally adopted. -Dr. John E. Houard, the American citizen condemned to eight years' penal servitude at

to work well both for employers and employees. The clerks in Philadelphia are about to make the same demand. The custom has Centa, for alleged complicity with the Cuban insurrection, arrived on April 1st at Cadiz, Spain, where he is now detained, awaiting further investigation of his case. In consequence of the interposition of General Alfred N. Duffle, United States consul at Cadiz, the governor of the prison in which Dr. Houard is confined, ordered the shackles and handcuffs to be removed from the prisoner, who has also been permitted to purchase a few articles of dress to replace his ragged garments. The prison is a large, square, two-story old stucco building, situated on the southern extremity of Cadiz, facing the sea, and standing isolated on the high thick walls that surround the city. A New York Herald correspondent, who, in company with General Duffie, recently visited the prisoner, describes Dr. Houard as a tall, thin man, with a full, short beard, pale and haggard, weighing hardly one hundred pounds, and seeming to be just recovering rom a severe attack of illness. Dr. Houard says that he is confined in a very unclean room, one hundred and fifty feet long, full of every description of vermin. During his voyage to Cadiz—a period of seventeen days—he was kept in irons, although suffering from dysentery, and on his arrival he was chained to the wall. In consequence, however, of General Duffie's representations, Dr. Houard's condition has been improved in every respect.

The County Convention.

The Charleston County Convention, called for the purpose of electing delegates to the State Convention, which assembles in Columbia on the 11th proximo, meets in the Hibernian Hall at eleven o'clock this morning. We need not again urge the Convention to be careful to select bold and vigorous men who will give fit expression to the wishes of the citizens of Charleston County. We have faith in the sound sense of the Convention, and trust to it to do its work quickly, harmoniously and well.

The First Fruits.

The fourth section of the Enforcement act, better known as the Ku-Klux law, gives the President the authority to suspend the privileges of the writ of habeas corpus in every State, or part of a State, where unlawful combinations exist; but the provisions of this section do not remain in force after the end of the present session of Congress. As the President can use his powers under the Ku-K'ux law with advantage during the elections, it became necessary to extend to the fourth of March the period during which the President might, at will, deprive a whole people of their only protection against illegal and arbitrary arrests. The Senate promptly passed the requisite bill, but the House of Representatives, by a decisive vote, rejected the bill, and it is now tolerably certain that the worst feature of the Ku-Klux law will become inoperative as soon as Congress adjourns. This is a great gain, and for it the Liberal Republican movement must be thanked. It has forced the Grant party to give the country partial Amnesty, and it enabled the Liberal Republicans and Democrats to defeat the proposal to extend the Ku-Klux bill. This is only the beginning.

A Sign of the Times.

The Charleston Republican abandons the Grant faction, and places at the head of its columns the names of the Liberal Republican candidates for President and Vice-President. The reasons which lead it to take this step are explained in the sub, oined candid and the widest in the list, viz: between the limits patriotic article. The Republican, without compromising its political principles, has on the announcement that preparation were placed itself in line with the good men who are striving hard to save the country from political chaos and financial ruin. In so doing our contemporary shows itself worthy of confidence and support.

> [From the Charleston Republican, May 29.] To the Public.

Our readers will notice that the management of this paper has passed into other hands. With the change in the management, the paper will also change somewhat in politics. We shall continue to publish a Republican paper, but we shall advocate only such Republicans as we deem to be honest and capable.

Believing it is for the best interest of the whole country that the nominees of the Cincinnati Convention should be elected, we have hoisted the names of Greeley and Brown at the head of our columns. We shall advocate their election on the ground that they are better Republicans than Ulysses S. Grant ever was or ever can be. Mr. Greeley has been a life-long Abolitionist and Republican, while the Republicanism of Grant dates back but a few years. We wish it to be understood that we are, and shall continue to be, Republicans; and beboth his stores, and personally overlooks the great party jeopardized by the triumph of such men as compose the present national administration. The Republican party can have and Brown. In fact they have everything to gain. Their election simply means the cleaning out of the corrupt men who have crept into our party. Make the party as it was in the days of its first triumph, and there will soon be but one great party in this country. Horace Greeley has grown gray in the service of life-long principles, and the most that is attempted by his opponents is to put him in as ridiculous a position as possible before the country. But everything will have an end, and if we are any judge of the political skies, not many months will elapse before even that style of argument will cease, and his opponents be gathering their cohorts in battle ar ray for more serious work than they ever anticipated-fraught with danger to themselves, and in which they will have to exclaim: "We have met the enemy, and we are theirs." We stand equarely upon the platform enunciated at Cincinnati. The sentiments expressed are those we have long entertained. and we think they are the best for our people. In regard to our State politics: While supporting Greeley and Brown, we shall pursue such a course in State politics as will aid in giving us an honest Republican State government. We shall always support Republicans for office in preference to any other class of individuals-provided they be honest and capable: but we never shall, under any circumstances, support any Republican whom we believe to be dishonest and corrupt. With this, we think our position is well de-

It is but proper to state that the present publishers of this paper are not in any way responsible for articles of a political nature that have heretofore appeared in its columns. The senior member of the present firm was simply the business manager, and had no control, whatever, over the politics of the paper.

With this brief outline we leave the reader to judge of our words by our deeds.

J. EVANS BRITTON & Co.

Narrow Gauge Railroads

On the nineteenth of June delegates representing all the narrow gauge railroad companies in the United States will assemble in convention at St. Louis. This assemblage will, it is said, be composed of some of the most eminent civil engineers and railroad builders of the country, and many important results are anticipated from its deliberations. These will probably be a thorough discussion of the respective merits of the narrow and the broad gauge railway systems; of the difference in the cost of construction, operating and keeping them in repair; the freight capacity of the new system, and its safety and accommodation for passenger traffic; and what general plan ought to be adopted in its construction and management, to render it successful. All these are important and interesting ques-

The advantages claimed for the harrow gauge system rest upon the general principle that, with sufficient width of track for safety and speed, all further increase of width renders imperative an increase in the weight of engines and cars in greater proportion than it increases capacity, or in other words, the "dead weight" of a train increases with the width of the track. The friends of the narrow gauge system assert that their roads can be built and equipped at a cost not exceeding one-half that of the broad gauge; that they earn as much money per mile as the latter; that they are equally as rapid in transportation and far more secure. The St. Louis and Cairo Railroad has a narrow gauge. The estimated cost of its construction with a broad gauge was $4,240,000; as at present constructed, its cost was $2,500,-

It is generally assumed that the narrow gauge principle is of recent origin. This is a mistake, for roads of 231-inch and 39-inch gauge have been in operation with success, both in England and on the continent, for many years, while the anthracite mountains of Pennsylvania have been traversed by narrow gauge roads-three feet-for more than thirty years. And these railroads are increasing in popularity. In Michigan, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Kansas, Colorado, Kentucky, Pennsylvania and Maryland narrow gauge railroad companies have been chartered, and in some of these States roads are now in active operation.

It is true that with one exception, (the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad,) the projected lines are short ones, and that they are deemed better adapted for places that are not thickly settled. But if they possess the advantages claimed for them, there is no reason why they should not be equally successful in the populous States.

Early and Sheridan.

The bravery and other soldierly qualities (?) evinced by General Phil Sheridan in riding over a few half-starved and broken down Conlederate cavalry, in burning numberless houses and barns in the Shenandoah Valley, and butchering a number of helpless Indians, squaws and papooses, and in thinking that the late battles of the Franco-German war were gala occasions, gotten up by King William and Emperor Napoleon as a tribute to his prowess in Virginia and on the Western prairies, have elicited for him little else than loathsomeness for his inhumanity, contempt for his military reputation, and ridicule for his overweening conceit. The following just criticism upon that officer by General Early in commenting upon a letter of Sheridan's, reterred to by General Barnard in his "Report on the De-"fences of Washington," will be appreciated by the public generally:

"I am a little astonished that an officer of such really good sense as General Barnard undoubtedly possesses should refer to the letter of General Sheridan, 'characterizing' my statements 'as dalsifying history,' as any evidence at all. That letter, written and published when I was out of the country, and he a military satrap, domineering with ruffianly insolence over a down-trodden people, if it characterized anything at all, undoubtedly by its whole tone and temper characterized and stamped its author as an ass and a vulgar blackguard, inflated with an overweening conceit of his own importance derived from position attained by having risen to the surface, like scum, in the last ebullitions of an expiring struggle."
