THE POLITICAL CURRENT. THE DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVEN-

Harmonious Action and Happy Results-A Model for all Future Conventions-South Carolina Keeping Time to the Great Movement of the Day.

[FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

COLUMB A, S. C., June 12. The Democratic State Convention is at an end, and it has certainly made for itself a record for promptness, care and judgment in its action of which any convention might well be proud. It has been a model of a convention, brief, dignified, harmonious and practical. Its brevity was the natural consequence of its unanimity, for the delegates all came to the convention thoroughly impressed with the grand conviction that has swept like a wave over the whole country since the Cincinnati nominations; but still they showed a degree of self-restraint, unusual in political conventions, in not consuming the time in making elaborate speeches. There was no lack of eloquent speakers, and there were few members of the convention whose views upor the great political questions of the day would not have been listened to with pleasure and profit, but there was no real necessity for such addresses, and the delegates appreciated the fact that the duty of the convention was action rather than the expression of isdividual opinion. At the same time there was no approach to gag law, and no attempt to restrain any gentleman from indulging, if he chose, in the fullest exposition of his views and wishes. This morning, for example, Mr. Stoker, of Greenville, took the floor, and exhausted every argument in his power in favor of a straight-out Democratic nomination. It was apparent at once that his views were directly at variance with those of every other gentleman upon the floor, and the position that he took must be admitted to be in the highest degree impracticable and untenable; but he was evidently sincere in his convic tions, and expressed them in courteous and well-chosen terms, and he was accorded, throughout his long speech, a degree of pa tient attention which clearly showed the entire absence of any teeling of intolerance.

The convention was called to order this morning soon after nine o'clock by the Hon. W. D. Porter, and the reading of the minutes of the previous session were dispensed with. Two new delegates reported and were enrolled, viz: J. J. Lucas, of Darlington, and Marlow Cochrane, colored, of Charleston.

Colonel J. P. Thomas stated that he had been instructed by the State central executive committee to announce that the committee considered that its trust had been discharged and that he desired thus formally to indicate that its functions had terminated.

Mr. O'Connor, from the committee on reso lutions, reported the following:

Resolved, That this convention recognize the movement which was organized at Cin-cinnati on the 4th of May last, as the only one, in this crisis, calculated to secure civil liberty, ore local self-government.

Mr. E. F. Stokes, of Greenville, submitted a minority report, signed by himself and Ma. Lambson, of Williamsburg, embodying the resolutions submitted by him last evening, looking to a separate nomination by the Democratic party. Mr. Stokes made a long speed in support of these resolutions, but signally failed to convince the convention of their practicability, and they were laid on the table with only two dissenting votes, coming from their signers, Messrs. Stokes and Lambson. The majority report was then put to vote and carried by acciamation and applause, the only negative vote coming from Mr. Stokes.

On motion of General Kennedy, the convention proceeded to the election of delegates to the Baltimore Convention, the nominations being made by the delegates from the respective Congressional Districts. The election resulted in the unanimous choice of the following gentlemen:

State at Large—Messrs. Jamen F. Izlar, Simeon Fair, W. H. Wallace, E. M. Law, W. D. Porter, William Alken, James Chesnut, T. B. Fraser.

B. Fraser.
First Congressional District—John B. Moore,

Second Congressional District—M. P. O'Connor,

D. Frederick. Fourth Congressional District—E. C. Mc-Lure, T. W. Woodward, R. M. Sims, W. E.

The chairman called to the attention of th convention the resignation of the State executive committee, and asked what action the convention would take in the matter.

General Chesnut moved for the present no action be taken. This was opposed by Mr. Stokes, on the ground that if it should be necessary to call the committee again together, there would be no one to do it, and, therefore, hoped that either the old committee would hold over or a new one be elected.

General Butler offered the following resolu tion as an amendment, and it was unanimous

Upon motion of Major Warley, the convention then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, with General Chesnut in the chair, and Major Warley offered the following: Resolved, That the thanks of this convention be endered to the Hon. W. D. Porter for the impartial manner in which he has presided over its deliberations. This was unanimously adopted, and upon resuming the chair Mr. Porter made the following response: Gentlemen of the Convention-Receive my thanks for the expression of your satisfaction at the manner in which the duties of the at the manner in which the duties of the shair have been discharged. will come of our deliberations. We stand in need of hope and help. But we must first help ourselves; and something has been done in this direction. We will now put ourselves in sympathy and active co-operation with the great Democratic party of the country—a party which has fought many a brave buttle.

We must be just to them, and realize the stress of the position in which they have been placed during and since the war. I am sure we do not generally understand the burden they have had to carry.

If we have been subjected to insults and in-If we have been subjected to insuits and indignities, so have they. Let us meet then as friends and brethen and lay open to them our hearts and feel the beatings of theirs in response. Let us tell them the story of our humiliation and suffering, the wrongs and grievances of a people who, by common acknowledgment, are frank, true-hearted and honest, and who, whatever their faults, play fair with friend and then suppell to fair with friend and loe, and then appeal to them to take with us the only way that we can see for our deliverance and rescue. The very unanimity of our sentiment will be our strong-est appeal, and it cannot be but that they will eed it. The Cincinnati movement was a sponbroad and catholic. Its nominees are housest and outspoken. It meets the necessities of the day, and points the way to a reunion of all good and true men, for the reinstatement of honest local government, and the constitutional guarantee of personal and civi great and irresistible momentus of their powertul organization, and they will swell the ranks and win the glory of a grand crusade for the rescue of our down-trodden land. The day is beginning to dawn. A vista of relief is open to us. Let us do manfully what seems to us honorable and right, and trust the rest to benificent Providence. HENDRICKS, THE KIDNAPPER.

The Details and Result of his Trial-Queer Rulings of Judge Erskine.

[Correspondence of the Savannah News.] ATLANTA, GA., June 11.

Judge Erskine has at last rendered his de-cision in the habeas corpus case of Hendricks, the so-called United States deputy marshal from South Carolina. It will be remembered that Hendricks arrested young Hancock, of this city, some weeks ago under a forged war-rant, and that Hancock was taken out of his hands and discharged by Judge Erskine him-self on the ground that the warrant was a

A CURIOUS DECISION.

It appears that no warrant had been issued in South Carolina for the arrest of Hancock, and that his name, with others, had been inand that his hame, with others, and death-terlined after the warrant was brought to this State. The warrant was brought to Georgia by Hendricks, and the name of Hancock was forged and inserted while the warrant was in his hands. Under these circumstances he was his hands. Under these circumstances he was arrested, I believe, on two charges—forgery and false imprisonment. Judge Erskine discharged him, however, upon the ground that what he did was done in pursuance of his duty! What an idea! If Hendricks had had a valid warrant in his hands there would have been some excuse for his discharge; but he had no warrant at all; for a forged warrant is not a warrant in the eye of the law, and gives no more authority than a blank piece of paper.

A QUEER IDEA.

But the judge did not stop here. The attortorney general, acting for the State of Georgia, gave notice that he would carry the case by appeal to the United States Supreme Court, and asked that Hendricks be required to give bond. The judge took "time to consider." He alway takes "time" to "consider." Yesterday he announced "that no appeal lies to the Supreme Court of the United States in this case."

THE EFFECT OF ERSKINE'S DECISION. As already stated, Hendricks made the ar-rest without warrant, sluce a forged warrant is no warrant at all. In making the a-rest, therefore, he was guilty of false imprison-ment. And as the name of Hancock was nserted in the warrant without authority while it was in Hendricks's hand, the pre sumption is that he caused it to be done Under these circumstances he had no L right or authority to arrest Hancock than any other private citizen from South Carolina or other State would have had. The effect of udge Erskine's decision, therefore, is that thority of law arrest an innocent citizen any thority of law arrest an innocent cluzen any-where he may find him. The courts, when appealed to, may take said citizen out of the the hands of the arresting party and out of Jail, but the judge will neither allow the State authorities to hold or punish him, or to carry the case by appeal to a higher tribunal, where, it is fair to presume, there are more brains, if not more honesty.

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y., June 13.
A terrific gale, accompanied by torrents of rain and halt, passed over this city between three and four o'clock yesterday atternoon.
The menagerie and aquarium tents of John tobinson's circus were blown down, and the wagons tipped over while the tents were full of people. Several persons were injured, but not very seriously. The crowd of terriby frightened people in the drenching, peiting strightened people in the drenching, peiting stricking animals, presented a wild and almost appairing scene. During the storm the lightning struck in half doz-n places within the corporate limits, and a number of frames of unfinished buildings and many trees were blown down.

NEW YORK, June 13. Patterson was visited last evening with a severe thunder storm, accompanied by a hurricane. Morrill's flouring mill was struck by the full force of the wind and almost entirely demoished. A new three-story frame build-ing was blown down, and many buildings were unroofed and otherwise damaged. Th losses are supposed to be large. The Erie track was obstructed and the trains were de-

LONDON, June 10. The circumstances under which the Atalanta crew entered the race to-day were most unfavorable. At first it was thought the match would have to be postponed, owing to the stormy weather. As the sky cleared up it was decided that the race should be rowed, although the water was rough and lumpy, and the tide was running very strong. Further delay was caused by the change in the direction of the race, which was made at the last mo-ment. This having been agreed to, both crews went on board a steamer, and with their boats were taken up to the other end of the course, at Mortlake. On arriving there, further time was taken for making the arrangements necessary by the reversal of the route, and it was after six o'clock when the Londoners and New Yorkers stripped and entered their respective boats.

The thousands of spectators waited with patience and good humor while these preparations were making, and as the boats shot out from the shore at 6.20 P. COLUMBIA, June 13. Judge Orr, by request of the Republicans, delivered a speech in the Carolina Hall here this evening, upon the subject of the Republican Presidential nominations and the prespects of the party. There were about twentyeve or thirty whites, and perhaps one hundred and fifty colored persons to hear him. The speech was not regarded as a success, but the darkies applauded vociferously now and then Judge Orr eulogized Grant and Wilson. Nepotlam, he thought, was no great harm, and he had known many instauces in this State where the pure and chivalrous officials of the Democracy had appointed more than thirteen of their relatives to office, which was the number charged against Grant. As to taking gifts, he thought that Grant deserved them, and could accept them as properly as did Wellington receive a princely annuity from the British government. Webster, h said, had taken glits, and even John C. Calhoun did not have the Roman fortitude to refuse. He himself had taken a gift while at Washington. He attempted to sustain Grant's Ku-Klux policy, and tried to get eloquent ove r the horrible outrages, but only succeeded in perspiring profusely. He rehashed some of the World's editorial to show Greeley unfit to be President, but owned that he was honest. He said nothing about State affairs, except that they sadly needed mending, and were source of grave concern to the party at large. He was of the opinion that the honesty of the present officials might be improved with advantage to the party.

About two weeks ago a gentleman, whose name we suppress for reasons that will be at-terward explained, came to this city from the South. He was formerly a resident of York County, S. C. During the American war he served as a surgeon in the Confederate army.
At its conclusion he returned to his home, determined to make the best of existing circumstances. He still, however, retained his belief in the principles for which he had risked his life, and he freely denounced the military despotism which Grant has established in the conquered States. His popularity and local influence made him particularly obnoxious to the carpet-baggers, and when it was decided to suspend the habeas corpus act, in order to carry the elections, his name was marked down as one of the victums.

The opening piece was a grand symphony in C, by Mozart, given by the organ and full orchestra with fine effect. Then followed the grand old choral, "A strong castle is our Lord." a soprano duett, another chorus, with tener and soprano solos, and a trio from Haydn's Creation for soprano, bass and tenor. After a brief intermission the second part of the programme was introduced by another instrumental symphony. This was followed by a succession of solos and choruses and the whole concluded with Ries's cantata "The Morning," which was given with fine effect by the whole body of singers, and with full orchestral accompaniment. Altogether the concert was a complete and brilliant success, and the audience frequently testified, in every permissable way, their hearty appreci-

OFFICE ENTERPRISE RAILROAD COMPANY, CHARLESTON, S. C. June 12, 1872. TO THE PUBLIC.

Statements that will not bear explanation are, from day to day, given to the public relating to this road. I desire to correct them, and relieve the officers from some of the blame that certain parties are attempting to faster upon them.

For nearly two years this company had its communications before Pillsbury's Council, asking that arrangements satisfactory to both parties (the city and the road) be entered into, looking to the commencement of the work. That Council through its fears refused to do anything, and they passed out of existence unbought. The new Council came into power, and the road addressed them the following communication, viz :

CHARLESTON December 4, 1871.

To the Honorable City Council of Charleston

GENTLEMEN-You are doubtless aware that the Legislature has granted a charter to cer-tain parties by the corporate name of the Eu-terprise Railroad Company, authorizing the instruction of a street railroad through certain streets, and between certain points is the city. The company, some time since organized, is now about to proceed in the construction of their road, and will be happy to act in entire harmony with the city authorities. It will give me pleasure to confer with his Honor the Mayor, or a committee of your honorable body, in the hope ot, in that way, best advancing the interests of the city.

Very respectfully,

T. HUBLEY, President.

This communication was referred to the committees on railroads and streets, and up to the 8th of May (five months) no word was or could be had of the intention of the committee. On that day the company made up its mind that there was no intention to give them the courtesy that their communication demanded. They commenced to break ground, leaving but three weeks before the 1st of June to open the line. This was done, and the entire portion of the road, intended to be used this fall, was opened, and has not been disturbed, except in cases where horses and drays have broken it down. This work was accomplished by working day and night agains every obstacle thrown in its way by the City Council and its agents, draymen, and many other interests that seemed to think they were affected by the road. Of course the street are in a bad condition, but the road is not to blame; we could not commence any sooner The City Council who ought to have met us in a fair and just manner, refused to do so, and on their shoulders rests the responsibility. As to the statements made by the city engineer and inspectors of streets, relating to the cost of restoring the streets to their former condition, the city has nothing to do with it until we refuse to restore them; but we will remark here, that we prefer and intend to do the work our selves, but not at their figures, we having no desire to make off the city. The health of the city is the cry of the city registrar; and one would think, to read his many communica tions on this road, that we cared for nothing but money, and that the lives of the citizens were as nothing compared to it. I desire to say that, in answer to his statements, they are ot correct, and that he cannot prove them lther in person or by a committee of his own choosing. We gave this matter serious thought, examined the authorities on the sub ject, and conversed with many physicians o this city on the question of opening and filling streets during the summer months. We were beautiful new edifice. The choir seats were zens against the present registrar filling lots occupied by a large orchestra, composed of in the western part of the city, in 1869, with members of the Mozart Verein and by a large the fifth and offal of the city. We read the an outrage on the community, and that other motives governed the registrar besides the public good, charging him in the same manner (see Dr. Kinloch's letter) as he charges us, as Phillip st. will be seen by the following extract from his Stevenson. W, 1848, 1869, 1870, 1871, Vacant Let, communication to Council, June 1st, 1872, viz: "That individuals have the conceded right to imperil their own life, health and happiness for mercenary or ambitious ends cannot be questioned, as examples of such insane devotion to selfish interests are daily furnished us in the history of the race." We read the registrar's reply to the protests, and his reasons why he filled those lots in the manner he did. and from that communication we came to the conclusion that the people knew nothing about health; that filling up lots with fith and offul was not injurious to the health of the city, and that we could open the streets sixteen inches, during the summer months, without injury to the health of the citizens. Who owned those lots we do not know; but this we do know, that the registrar does not own any stock in this road, and has no interest in its success. The public can rest assured that we will do all that can be done to complete the work in the shortest possible time, and restore the streets to, we hope, a better condition than we found them. All that we ask is that justice shall be done in the premises, and that the ignorance, the prejudices, and the selfish interests of persons who care nothing for your city shall not be used to injure and retard an enterprise which is destined to build up Charleston, and make her what she ought to be, a metropolis, and not a hamlet by the sea. Respectfully, T. HURLEY, President.
