THE GREAT COTTON CASE.

Judge Graham Decrees $184,856, Exclusive of Interest, for the Plaintiffs.

Judge Graham rendered a decree on Tuesday in the case of W. A. and Jeremiah Beall, against Robb and Lowndes, trustees of John Fraser & Co. It will be remembered that the firm of John Fraser & Co. executed bonds in November, 1867, for the settlement of the deficiencies of the houses of Fraser, Trenholm & Co. and Lafitte & LeCounts, which were placed in the hands of C. T. Lowndes and James Robb as trustees. The trustees had refused to recognize the right of the Messrs. Beall to claim a share of these bonds, and hence the suit. The case was referred to Mr. W. J. Gayer as special referee, and he reported in favor of the plaintiffs, and this report was excepted to by the defendants. The decree, after reviewing the findings of the referee, continues: "I am of the opinion that the conclusions set forth by the said referee are sustained by the evidence and the law applicable to the case. It is therefore ordered that the exceptions of the defendants to the said report be overruled, and that the report stand confirmed in all respects. Further, that the defendants, Charles T. Lowndes and James Robb, do admit the plaintiffs, Wm. A. and Jeremiah Beall, to become parties to the agreement of November the 25th, 1867, on an equal footing with the holders of accepted or unaccepted foreign bills of exchange, and to be paid out of the bonds constituting their trust in the same proportion, pro rata, namely, to the plaintiff, Wm. A. Beall, bonds to the amount of ninety-nine thousand six hundred and eighty-three dollars, exclusive of interest; and to the plaintiff, Jeremiah Beall, bonds to the amount of eighty-five thousand one hundred and seventy-three dollars, exclusive of interest. It is further ordered that the plaintiffs have leave to apply for any additional order which may be necessary to enable them to carry this decree into full effect."

THE REGATTA.

The Wharves Crowded with Spectators —Fresh Honors for the Palmettoes— Presentation of the Prizes.

Before five o'clock yesterday afternoon many spectators had assembled at the heads of the wharves along Cooper River, and an hour later every pier, from the starting point to Adger's wharf, was pretty well crowded. A great many ladies resorted to the decks of the ships along the route, and a number of men and boys to the wharf sheds. The decks of the steamship Manhattan, at Adger's south wharf, were well filled with spectators. A number of yachts and innumerable smaller craft flecked the surface of the harbor, conspicuous among the latter being the gig of the revenue cutter Racer, flying the stars and stripes.

Unfortunately the wind was rather too fresh from the southeast, and created an inconvenient swell. At a quarter of six, the contesting boats pulled out and took their respective positions, the Zephyr on the outside, the Meteor in the middle, and the Wave inside. At six precisely, the preparatory signal was given, and at the starting signal half a minute later, the boats all dashed off together. The Wave was considerable impeded in the beginning by a large wood flat which got in her way, and she afterwards failed to regain a favorable position in the race. Between the other two boats, however, the contest was more exciting, and they ploughed through the billows side by side for a long distance. But the superior skill of the Meteor's crew began at length to tell, and she finally crossed the terminal line twenty-two seconds (about four lengths) ahead. The Wave crossed two seconds later than the Zephyr. Owing to the high wind and rough water the deciding judges were unable to see either the preparatory or the starting signal, and in consequence failed to note the time made in the race. The boats now pulled alongside of the judges' yacht, the Alice, where the victors received the compliments of all present. Mr. Francis K. Huger, president of the Carolina Independent Boat Club, presented the prize, a neat and serviceable time-stop recorder, with a few appropriate remarks. It was received by Mr. H. A. DeSaussure, coxswain of the Meteor and president of the Palmetto Club, in a brief response, after which three cheers were given for each club, and the boats then pulled away in the direction of the Battery.

LOCAL LACONICS.

Ex-Governor Bonham is stopping at the Charleston Hotel.

There was not even an informal meeting of the Board of Health yesterday.

The Bowen County Convention is to meet at Hibernian Hall, at eight o'clock, this evening.

The Mackey wing of the Republican party holds its county convention, this afternoon, at Military Hall.

The body of Mrs. Mell, whose drowning near Savannah was reported yesterday, has not been recovered.

The Republicans of Summerville precinct, Colleton County, in convention assembled, have declared for Ransier for Congress.

The first bale of new cotton from Columbus, Ga., was received yesterday by Messrs. Geo. A. Trenholm & Son from Messrs. Burris & Williams of that place.

The New Yorkers will soon have to come South to keep cool. The mercury climbed to 106 there yesterday, while in Charleston it just managed to reach 90.

PRIZE-SHOOTING AT THE SCHUTZENPLATZ.—The officers and members of the German Rifle Club repaired to the Schutzenplatz yesterday afternoon, with a number of their lady friends, and spent the remaining hours in target exercise. The following prizes were shot for: A silver-headed walking-cane, won by Mr. Louis Dunnemann; a pair of gold sleeve buttons, by Mr. William Semken. For the ladies, a handsome parasol, won by Mrs. H. Meyers; a beautiful wax doll, by Miss Thees.

DEATH OF MR. C. N. HUBERT.

A telegraphic dispatch received in this city yesterday morning announced the death at Catskill, New York, on the night previous, of the estimable gentleman whose name heads this paragraph, in the sixtieth year of his age. Mr. Hubert was born in this city in the year 1812 of poor but respectable parents. He was early brought to battle with the hardships of life—the exhausting struggle for character and position. While yet a boy he entered the counting-house of Higham & Fife, at that time one of the most important mercantile houses in Charleston. They were engaged in a cotton and general importing and exporting business, and Mr. Hubert remained with them for several years, continually growing in the esteem and confidence of his employers. At thirty-seven years of age he married Miss Howard, a lady of fine personal appearance, and a member of a highly respectable Charleston family. About two years later he was made a co-partner of the firm, and so continued until on the withdrawal, from infirmity, in 1848, of the survivor of the senior partners, Mr. Higham, he became sole successor, and conducted the business under his own name. Mr. Hubert had amassed a handsome fortune at the breaking out of the war, but he met with heavy losses from the accidents attending its progress. He recommenced business at its close, and continued to make large mercantile operations to the day of his death. Though prosperous in business affairs, he was called upon to endure many sad domestic bereavements, and out of thirteen children that were born to him, but one remains alive. This is a daughter about fourteen years old.

As a man, Mr. Hubert was generous and large-hearted; as a friend, he was staunch and sincere; as a companion, he was genial and entertaining; as a husband and father, he was a bright pattern of love and devotion. At the time of his death he was sojourning in the Catskill Mountains, New York, whither, as was his wont, he had retired, with his wife and daughter, to spend the summer. Mr. Hubert was never at any time in his life in robust health, but his death at this time was totally unexpected, as his friends were unaware that he was even sick. In his death, Charleston has lost a valuable citizen, and society an ornament of rare worth.

THE CITY HOSPITAL QUESTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS.

It was not the intention of Observer to excite the passions of the "poor masses," or of the "surgeon in charge," in his communication of Monday on the hospital buildings. The captious defence made by the surgeon in charge does not invalidate the statements therein contained.

The insinuation is unfounded as to Observer's being in any way connected with the interests of the Roper Hospital. He does not know even the gentlemen in charge of that institution, and has no personal motives whatever in advancing the claims of the Roper Hospital, save in what relates to the comfort and accommodation of the city's sick. Observer found fault with no one, not even with the surgeon in charge, nor his management. Observer waived this question in the very outset. The fault was in the present unsightly buildings and their miserable internal arrangements.

The surgeon in charge states that "the present buildings are large, strong and commodious, easy of access, divided into innumerable wards, well ventilated, and amply sufficient to meet all the requirements that have hitherto been made upon them."

That the present buildings are "large and strong" no one will dispute. That they are divided into innumerable wards remain to be seen. The City Hospital, for white patients, has but two divisions, one on the second story for men, the other on the third story for women. Of course "innumerable wards" may exist on paper, but in the building they appear not. As to the ventilation, it does not require much to convince a visitor that it is very imperfect.

Moreover, if such be the very perfect state of this building for hospital purposes why do the Board of Health and city authorities wish to alter its arrangements? This would be a useless expenditure.

What Observer contends for is better hospital accommodations—a division of its apartments where contagious diseases, when they do exist, shall be kept apart. The fact that yellow fever patients were promiscuously located among other patients in the City Hospital during the epidemic of 1871 is well known; and the same fact was brought to the notice of the Howard Association for redress. What could be done? There was no other place for their accommodation.

Moreover, respectable white females have no alternative but to occupy the one common ward with the unfortunate outcasts of society, there not being a single room or compartment set apart for their use.

Who will say that such a state of things does not call loudly for redress? It is a matter of no import whether the city lease the Roper Hospital or erect a similar building apart from the present objectionable locality. If Alderman Gage urges and receives a respectful hearing, the interest of poor suffering humanity will be protected. OBSERVER.
