NEWS OF THE DAY.

-Manton Marble, of the World, it is said, is in so feeble a state of health as to preclude al hope of his recovery.

The insanity of the Empress Charlotte is said to have again assumed an acute charac ter. The condition of the unhappy sufferer is very distressing, and her death is imminent.

-The Parisian journals are not slow to express opinions very decidedly adverse to the claims of Mr. Stanley. The whole history they regard as a colossal hoax. The letters purporting to have come from the veteran explorer's own pen they denounce as forgeries. Livingstone himself they believe to be dead, and on that condition only do they think it probable that Mr. Stanley would have braved detection and ventured to do what he

-The Paris Patrie says that some time ago the Prussian Government agreed to sell all the French chassepots taken during the warhaving need of the money and not designing to use them for its own armies—to a political or a military personage from South America. The bargain was concluded, and all that remained to be done was some formalities, when at the very moment of delivery the Prussian Government suddenly changed its mind and broke of the whole negotiations. At the last moment the Berlin Cabinet learned that in this affair the South American was only an interrediary, and that the arms had been really purchased by Russia.

_A Chinese vessel was recently wrecked near the coast of Formosa, and sixty-four of the sailors, who were expert swimmers, reached the rocky shore. They wandered about for seven days, and then were seized by a party of cannibals, who would have eaten them had of the death penalty was the subject of disthey not resisted with a desperation excusable under the circumstances. They fled and again dwelt among the rocks, where the Sanfau cannibals surrounded them and killed and ate all of them but twelve, who were lucky enough to get away and reach home. The Chines Emperor has been memorialized on the subfect, and says: "Let the sufferers be rewarded according to the will of the memorialist. Let the civil and military officers make speed to examine and punish the cannibals, that it may be seen how we cherish the people in our

_At-a large meeting of Virginia farmers, held recently at Richmond, a committee made a report on fertilizers, in which they called the attention of the meeting to the frauds practiced in the manufacture of commercial fertilizers, both in the use of improper and worthless materials and through ignorance of chemical combinations and scientific principles. The committee believed that the artiles, as now manufactured, are by far too high in price for the manureal value they contain. They recommended the appoinment of a committee by the farmers' meeting to memorialize the General Assembly of Virginia to take into consideration the propriety of establishing within the State the manufacture of industry, to be worked by the convicts in the penitentiary. The report of the committee was adopted.

It is officially stated that three millions of letters went to the dead letter office last year, and that they contained a sum exceeding three millions of dollars in money, drafts, checks, and so forth. Ninety-two thousand dollars of this was in cash. It is estimated that on an average every letter that goes into that office loses a dollar to some one. Fiftyeight thousand letters had no county or State direction, four hundred thousand lacked stamps, and three thousand were posted without any address at all. What a commen tary is this on the accent-mindedness and vagaries of our population. Part of the mistakes arise, no doubt, from ignorance and from weak-minded persons, and a good many from that menta absorption characteristic of our intensely active people. Of the four hundred thouse ad letters going to the dead letter office for the want of stamps a portion, probably, were stamped and Uncle Sam's imperfect glue would not stick. Curious romances might be woven out of the lost letters. The extraordinary facts thus officially reported ought to have the effect of making our people more careful in stamping, addressing and mailing their letters. -A letter from the conquered City of Metz says that the state of affairs there daily becomes more alarming. The population continnes to diminish more and more as the period fixed for the "option" approaches its termination; business is stagnant, and the great capitalists have all gone. "All that the official papers say," continues the correspondent "about the colossal development which is to be produced at Metz by the projected railways and other plans are mere castles in the air. The impoverishment of our city is a sad reality staring us in the face. The immieration of Germans, it is true, still continues to be pretty active, and has already added four thousand to the population; but it must be remembered that these people, though they fill the streets and empty houses, do not fill the purses of men of business. Those who come do so in order to earn money, and bring nothing with them but the will to work. It is a ead fact that the government has found no remedy for the disaster which threatens the city, and that none of the German immigrants have any property worth mentioning. Land at Orange, N. J., the Academies of the Siscan now be had here at almost nominal prices: unfornished houses may be purchased for a mere song. It seems that no one in Germany Schools, at Newark and at Jersey City. He will venture to bring his capital to Meiz. The reason of this is the universal belief that in the next inevitable war with France Metz will bave to stand a slege," perjury and conspiracy is drawing nigh-con tinues to make his astonishing triumphal progress throughout England, under the auspices of Mr. Whalley and Mr. Onslow, members of Parliament. At Leeds he ap wared for four consecutive nights, before crowded audiences, although a charge was made for admission; and outside the hall were great crowds, "who, by waving of handkerchiefs, cheers, and a!most every conceivable method, showed their sympathy with him." It seems that the man forms a "Tichborne Defence Committee" in each town, and the Leeds committee have sent to London papers an extra- ate of North Carolina.

_"The claimant"_whose trial for forgery.

ordinary letter, in which they say: 'The minds of the people are agitated and gloomy, and we would entreat you to watch this Tichborne question, and to take heed to the mutterings of the approaching storm. The British people will not allow one of their number to be sent to jail without cause. The results of the late trial have alarmed the most thoughtful Englishmen, and have made this nation the laughing stock of the whole world. A firm conviction has taken hold of the public mind that the claimant has not had a fair trial. A movement is now on foot, which it would be dangerous to ignore. It is daily, and we may say hourly, acquiring fresh force. We have entered on a crusade, and we shall never lay down our arms until justice is done, and the honor of the nation satisfied.' So it seems that If "the claimant" is convicted, there will be a revolution! The whole of this affair presents one of the most strange instances of popular credulity on record.

REMOVAL OF THE PUBLICATION OFFICE OF THE NEWS.

On and after Monday next, the 2d of September, THE CHARLESTON NEWS will be issued from its new Publication Office, No. 19 Broad street, the building formerly occupied by the Southwestern Railroad Bank.

A "Straight-out" Record

Northern papers, speaking of Blanton Duncan, say that "after fighting in the "Confederate army until the collapse of the "rebellion," &c. The Richmond Dispatch gives the real facts of the case. Mr. Duncan went to Virginia at the head of a Kentucky regiment and rendezvoused at Harper's Ferry under Jackson. Somehow or other he lost his position through difficulties with those under his command or for some other cause. He soon left his regimenteither immediately after or just before the battle of Manassas, and did no more service in the army. He turned his attention to scription. The better part of our community lithography, and went into printing Confederate currency, taking a hand also in blockade-running, which he followed very actively -making in both ways, it was alleged, a great deal of money. This is about all the fighting he did.

Capital Punishment. At a late meeting in London of persons from various countries, most of whom had been brought there by the assemblage of the International Prison Congress, the abolition cussion. Baron von Holzendorff, a wellknown German jurist, presided, and Rev. Mr. Bellows, of New York, was among the speakers. Among other things, it was stated that in nearly all countries progress had been made in the way of the abolition of capital punishment. In various German States it had been virtually abolished for several years; absolutely abolished in several of the United States, and practically abolished in others; it had been totally abolished in Holland for twelve years, virtually abolished in Belgium for ten years, totally abolished in Portugal for twenty years, and virtually abolished in Prussia for one hundred years, "excepting under certain "peculiar circumstances." In Sweden there had been only one execution for many years. In England there was still some hanging done, but it was "nearly abolished." In 1870 there were six executions, in 1871 only four, and of seven sentenced at the iast assizes only one was carried out. It is unfortunate that this leniency in England has been followed by an unusual number of murders within the last two months. Count Solloaub, of Prussia, made a speech, in which he said that not only was capital punishment practically abolished in Prussia, but the greatest penalty in the form of imprisonment extended only over twenty years. He, however, should prefer the state of things existing in Bavaria, where the penalty of death might be inflicted, but never was inflicted, it being commuted by the action of the sovereign to perpetual imprisonment. He would have the penalty held up in terrorem-he would even have the punishment of the rod; but although the law of capital punishment might be judiclously kept in view of the criminal, he would not have it enforced. Dr. Bellows, of New York, also made a speech in favor of abolishing capital punishment, which abolition, as a French wit said, would be all very well if our friends, the assassins, would only set the example. The Sec of Baltimore.

The new Archbishop of Baltimore, James Roosevelt Bayley, who has just been appointed Roman Catholic Archbishop of the Province of Baltimore, is a native of New York City, born in 1814. He studied for the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal Church, was ordained and for some time was rector of a parish at Harlem, N. Y. Having experienced a change in his religious views, he joined the Roman Catholic Church, and went to Paris to pursue his theological studies in the Seminary of Saint Sulpice. Returning to the United States, he was ordained priest in 1842, and shortly afterwards was appointed Vice-President of St. John's Roman Catholic College, Fordham, N. Y., and was subsequently made President of that institution. When St. John's College was transferred to the Jesuit Fathers, he was appointed secretary to the Roman Catholic Diocese of New York, and held that position until he was consecrated Bishop of the new Diocese of Newark, October 30, 1853. During his energetic administration of the affairs of the Diocese of Newark, Bishop Bayley founded Seton Hall College, ters of Charity, at Madison, N. J., and the Houses of the Brothers of the Christian also introduced several religious orders into his diocese, and established the Benedictine Priory at Newark, and the Passionist Monas tery of St. Michael, at West Hoboken. Bishop Bayley is also an author, and has published a "Sketch of the History of the "Catholic Church in New York," and a "Life "of Simon Gabriel Brute," first Bishop of of Vincennes. Ind. The decree appointing Bishop Bayley as Archbishop of the Province of Baltimore was signed in Rome, on July 24. The Province of Baltimore includes the

Our Modern Moses.

SUMTER, S. C., August 27. TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS. As the nomination of F. J. Moses, Jr., for Governor, seems to be almost equivalent to his election, your readers may like to know what is thought of the "coming man" in this, his native place. That he has ability, no one will deny, and that he is generous and goodnearted, and has the manners of a gentleman, all admit; but as to his moral qualities, and his probable course when he gets into power, opinions differ widely. One class of persons, among whom are ou best citizens, look upon F. J. Moses, Jr., as about the werst man in the Radical ranks. They believe that he is devoid of moral perceptions, and will not hesitate, when he has the opportunity, to perpetrate any fraud upon the finances of the State, in order to gratify his unbounded appetite for pleasure, and to indulge his limitless extravagance. This class point to the style of his living, his eight horses, his elegant equipage, his splendidly furnished house, his English gardener, his extensive grapery, and, knowing the moderate income which he can honestly command, do not doubt any of the stories that are current concerning his numerous peculations.

They say he was without character before the war, behaved badly during the war, and has only acted consistently since he has risen upon the scum of the political whirlpool, in indulging his own tastes at the expense of the people. They look upon the action of the Convention in nominating Moses on the first ballot, in spite of the charges made against him, and without any apparent desire to investigate the truth of those charges, as conclusive evidence that the Radicals are perfect ly indifferent to the character of their candi date. They do not take much comfort from the doings of the Bolters' Convention. Such men as James L. Orr and Whittemore are not the persons to inspire the people with respec and confidence; and, although the persons of whom I speak would gladly unite with any party who would put forward candidates whom they could trust, they do not regard the nominees of the Bolters as answering to that dethus look upon the future with gloomy fore bodings, and fear that the worst has not ye been reached.

There is another class of persons, small it number but respectable, who, believing much that is said of the past career of Moses, ye look with hope to his course as Governor They think that he is ambitious of making reputation for himself, and of gaining the respect and confidence of those who constitute the wealth and character of the State. They believe that he will honestly apply his talents to the discharge of his official duties, and will do all he can to restore South Carolina to her old proud position in the Union. They believe that, just as he has deserted the natural instincts of race and of education, to climb into power upon the shoulders of the negroes, so will he, when in the chair of State, kick from under him the ladder which he used for his own elevation, and endeavor to win the approbation of the best people in the commulity. There seems to be something in this ides, but it lacks this essential element-such a course requires courage, a quality which we have never heard the best friends of Moses attribute to him. A third, and much the most numerous, class regard Moses as a second "Moses" in fact. They think he is pure, virtuous, noble, sincerely attached to the principles of "the "party," and incapable of betraying them. They believe he will and can redeem the State from all her troubles, pay the debt, re-establish her lost credit, educate the negroes, fee the hungry, clothe the naked; and after having made the most splendid display of ability and character will retire from office amidst the plaudits of a grateful people, and when he dies will ascend to Heaven and sit at the side of Abraham Lincoln.

The Last of the Mexican Empire.

The Mexican newspapers announce the leath in the City of Mexico, on the 18th of July, of Don Angel de Iturbide, son of the Liberator of Mexico, Augustin, who, after a brief reign as Emperor, was deposed, and, upon attempting to regain his power, put to death by the people whose independence he had achieved. The Iturbide family, after the death of the Emperor, received from Mexico, in recognition of his previous services, s handsome endowment both in lands and in money, and for many years they resided mostly in this country, and particularly in Philadelphia. Don Angel married in the United States a lady of Georgetown, D. C .- Miss Green, who survives him-and by her was the father of one son, Augustin. This child was adopted by Maximilian as Prince Imperial during the Second Empire. Of the lamediate family of the Emperor Augustin, there are now living only one son, born shortly after the execution of his father, Don Augustin Cosmo de Iturbide, a colone, in the Mexican army, but now a resident of Paris, and one daughter, Senerita Josephine de Iturbide, long and well known in Philadelphia, where she still has many friends in the best circles of society. Senorita de Iturbide was recognized by the Emperor Maximilian as an imperial princess, and, during the Second Empire, she resided with her little nephew in Mexico. She is living at Bayonne, in France. Anothe son of the Emperor Augustin, Don Salvador, died some years ago, leaving a son, who hears his name.
