extract: We find Charleston full of life and activity Merchants having anticipated a heavy trade this fall provided themselves with the largest this half provided themselves with the half est and most complete stock of goods they have ever offered to the trade; and they are justi-fied in doing so, for their trade, even at this season, is enormous, (twenty per cent. bettor than same month last year.) and they are kept constantly busy day and night. Goods are cold in the market ut silver dyname on Naw Sold in this market at slight udvance on New York cost, and country merchants buying small stocks, we know, will be better profited by buying in Charleston than to tuy in other
