The Charleston News.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1872. NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Israelites of Wilmington are preparing for building a synagogue in that city. It is proposed to abandon New Year's day as a public holiday in New York.

The New York Herald says the opera season has been a failure in that city. By a recent law in New Hampshire a woman divorced from her husband can again assume her maiden name.

The Memphis (Tenn.) papers say that the Industrial Exposition in that city is a great success. A mammoth hotel is to be built at Pensacola, Fla., for the convenience of invalids who seek the climate to spend the winter.

The New York Tribune Association years ago insured the life of Horace Greeley for an amount stated as high as two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and have since regularly paid up the premiums.

A newspaper, printed in English, will soon be started at Rome, to be called the Daily News, and to be conducted by an American, Mr. Daniels, brother of a former minister resident at the United States at Turin.

The wife is hard upon the marriage state, for he will be said, on hearing that Father Synanthe was married. The Saints have been married, and the Saints have been married, and the Saints have been married.

Our experience in Journalism, says an exchange, teaches us that there is nothing in this world that will so disgust and sicken the general reader as to learn, after wading through the particulars of an awful accident, that there is a probability of the victim's recovery.

There are one thousand four hundred and fifty books in Paris; one thousand one hundred persons with only one arm; one thousand two hundred with only one leg; one hundred and fifty blind; or moving along in a sort of bowl on wheels; four thousand eight hundred blind.

A correspondent of the Journal de St. Petersburg describes the magnificence of an illuminated copy of the sacred writings of Buddha, in the language of Thibet, which is being executed for a Mongol prince; it will consist of one hundred and eight folio volumes, of which eighty are completed, all in letters of gold, and bound in embroidered silk, with silver clasps. The copyist is to receive twenty-five thousand dollars for the work.

A German marble cutter of Albany has fabricated a suit against a well-known dealer in payment of wages. The workman was instructed to cut upon a tombstone, "Let her soul rest in peace," but being cramped for space he abbreviated the sentence thus: "Let her soul rest in peace." The person who ordered the stone would not accept it, and it was returned to the dealer, who deducted the outlay he had been put to from the wages of the sculptor.

home in Cooperstown, New York, and is over seventy years of age. Several years ago a law was passed allowing judges of the United States Supreme Court, who had reached the age of seventy years, to retire at will on all the pension equal to their pay. Upon this law, previous to his death, Justice Grier retired, and Judge Nelson will tender his resignation with a short time and take advantage of his pension. The President has informally disapproved his Cabinet the subject of his pension, but no decision has been reached. The appointment is conceded to New York, and Wm. M. Everts and Judge Woodruff, one of the new nine circuit judges, have been spoken of. Senator Conkling, who is an aspirant for a seat on the Supreme Bench, is not eligible, as during his service in the Senate a law was passed increasing the salaries of the justices, otherwise he would probably receive the appointment.

A Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun writes: "There is much more confidence here in liberal circles of securing the electoral vote of Illinois for Greeley than any other Western State except Missouri and Indiana. The advice from there is to the effect that if a full Democratic vote can be relied upon, the Liberal defection is great enough, especially among the Germans, to overcome the tremendous majority which Grant had in 1868. It is considered certain that whatever the State may do in the Presidential issue, Tremball will be returned to the United States Senate, as the Republican majorities will be almost wholly confined to a few populous northern counties. It is conceded even by Republicans that the balance of power in the November elections in this State will be almost wholly with the large class of workmen who are now employed in reconstructing Chicago. Very encouraging advices have been received here to-day from Ohio as to the prospects of the Liberals in November. It is stated that the Democratic vote, especially in the middle counties, will be polled in full, the lack of which vote lost the State substantially in the State elections."

The State Fair.

On Monday next the gates of the great fair grounds at Columbia will be thrown open for the Fourth Annual Exhibition of the South Carolina Agricultural and Mechanical Society, an event to which thousands of our people, all over the State, are looking forward with bright anticipations. The fair week in Columbia is always a season of mirth and gladness; a time to throw off all the cares of life, to meet with friends from far and near, and on an occasion of both pleasure and profit to the young and the old, the planter, the merchant, the manufacturer and the sportsman. The fair this year promises to be unusually full and interesting, and in addition to this great staple of the week, there are the coincident attractions of the annual ball of the South Carolina Social Club, always an elegant and brilliant affair; the amateur concert of the Ladies' Memorial Association, an event which promises abundant pleasure as well as the fulfillment of a patriotic duty, and the annual meeting of the Survivors' Association, with an address by General John B. Hood, and the customary pleasant reunions and cherished reminiscences. Every arrangement appears to have been thoughtfully made to secure the complete success of the fair and of all its social accompaniments, and all who feel an interest in the welfare of the State should esteem it a duty to contribute to its advancement, both by contributions of articles for exhibition, and by their own attendance.

The Form of the Ballot.

Many inquiries reach us as to the proper form of the ballots to be used by the Democrats and Liberals of this State in the approaching Presidential election. The ticket should be a very simple one, consisting of the names of the electors, fully and correctly given, and preceded by the words: "For Electors of President and Vice-President of the United States." It is not necessary to place the names of Greeley and Brown at the head of the ticket, though this may be done if the voter so prefers.

Our Own "Straight Out."

The following, which we find published in a Columbia paper, is so notable an instance of "cheek," that we cannot resist the temptation of giving it to our readers: For President, HON. CHARLES O'CONNOR, of New York. For Vice-President, HON. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS, of Massachusetts. Electors: For State at Large, WM. H. STACK, J. D. MCARLEY, T. M. WILKINS.

First Dist.—T. D. NAPPER. Second Dist.—J. R. LAMSON. Third Dist.—J. W. COVAY. Fourth Dist.—A. J. VANDERGRIFT.

To the Democrats of South Carolina.—Be true to God, to your country and yourself, and vote the above ticket.

To the Proprietors of Newspapers Throughout the State.—Silver and gold we have none to give you, but we will ask God to bless every man of you who will publish our ticket. "The blessing of the Lord, it maketh rich, and addeth no sorrow thereto."

EDWARD F. STOKES, Chair. Ex. Com. Dem. Party, S. C. Cumulative Voting.

The Illinois Minority Representation Society, whose headquarters are in Chicago, has addressed a circular letter to judges of election in that State asking for complete returns of the operation of the system of cumulative voting provided for in its constitution. This system is to be tried for the first time in the election of State officers next week. This society intends to publish, at an early day, an analysis of the practical working of the scheme. This minority system, engrafted in the Statute constitution of Illinois, is for the purpose of giving minorities a representation. For example, if the Democrats are in a minority in a county which is entitled to three delegates in the General Assembly, they may nominate one candidate and vote for him three times, while the majority opposition will be allowed also to vote three times, either concentrating their votes upon one or more, or distributing them equally among their candidates, as they may list. They may thus insure themselves two out of the three delegates, even where the popular vote is one-third against them. They cannot defeat the election of the minority candidate. In the given case of 30,000 voters in a county, and the Republicans having two-thirds of that vote and the Democrats one-third, the Republicans can poll 30,000 votes for each of two of their candidates, and the Democrats poll 30,000 votes on one candidate, thereby electing one Democrat with actually 10,000, and two Republicans with actually 20,000 votes.

Short Weights in Cotton.

The Camden Journal, of last week, gives expression to what it terms a universal complaint among the country merchants of the shrinkage in the weight of their cotton when sent to Charleston for sale, and cites the case of one lot of fourteen bales, in which the difference between the recorded weight in Camden and the returns of the sworn weighers in Charleston, amounted to one hundred and twenty pounds. Unfortunately, however, the annoyance of which our Camden friends complain is the result of a simple law of nature, which is quite as much beyond the control of the Charleston factor as of the Camden shipper. The cotton men of Charleston all agree that a depreciation in the weight of cotton between those two points, averaging less than nine pounds per bale, is by no means an unusual occurrence. The effect of a dry, hot sun upon a bale of cotton, which had become slightly dampened over night, would, they say, cause in a single day fully as much depreciation as is complained of, and a difference of five or six pounds between two weighings, within a few hours of each other, is very common. The best possible proof, however, that mistakes cannot pass uncorrected, is that every bale of cotton received in Charleston is weighed by sworn weighers twice during its stay in this city—once when received on the wharf, and once when it is sold or shipped. Any remarkable disparity between these two weighings would at once be seen and rectified, and thus it is next to impossible that a bale should pass through Charleston without getting its due weight.

The Victory in Pickens.

The Democrats carried the County of Pickens, electing to the Legislature Colonel R. E. Bowen. The Sentinel says: "The Radical party made more desperate efforts and resorted to more political chicanery to carry 'Pickens County in the last election than they ever did in any previous election. With a few new converts of some promise, who had been disappointed in receiving a nomination from the Democratic party, and with the colored vote on the Air Line Railroad, they were confident of success. But they were doomed to a sad disappointment. They have been routed, 'horse, foot and artillery.'"

Holding Them to Their Pledges.

[From the Columbia Chronicle.] In his letter to Governor Scott of August 3d, 1872, Mr. Neagle urged the Governor to have a special tax levied, with the view of paying the interest upon the whole 'debt' of the State, legal and illegal, which he put at $16,000,000. Since then, however, the convention of the Republican party of the State has, upon the subject, put itself upon the record. Mr. Neagle was a prominent member of that convention. He stood with most upon the platform of that convention. Now, what does that platform say upon the subject of the bonded debt of the State? It substantially says: "We pledge ourselves to suspend the payment of interest on every 'bond of the State to which there can be attached the shadow of a suspicion.'"

Periodical Literature.

The November number of the Eclectic is out, and may be had at Fogarty's. It contains a fine portrait of the historian, Froude, and the usual choice and attractive budget of articles, amongst which are the leader on "Japan," "A Voyage to the Ringed Planet," "A Pilgrimage to Port Royal," "Secret Police of Paris," "Domestic Life and Economy in France," "The Mother of Jacques," a charming story; "Development in Dress;" "Meteors and Shooting Stars," and sketches of Froude and the late Mr. Seward. The Harpers are first in the field with an Almanac for 1873, distinctly and quaintly illustrated by the pencil of Nat. The frontispiece depicts old Father Time astride of a steam mowing machine, in full operation, the traditional saying being discarded. The pictorial miscellany and letter press is very amusing, and without political bias. For sale at Fogarty's.

"Coals to Newcastle."

The people of England will be more than ever thankful for a continuation of a peace with America if their present "coal famine" continues. It is now stated that in consequence of the alarming scarcity of coal in the United Kingdom, a demand is being created for the bituminous coal of the Maryland districts. It cannot be doubted that, unless a speedy and unexpected relief is afforded near home, this demand will be largely increased, until the spectacle will perhaps be afforded of the American Continent supplying the Eastern Hemisphere with coal, as it is destined to supply it with bread. If any one had told Parliament, twenty-five years ago, that England would soon have to beg coal from America, he would have been treated as a political renegade. But it is not only in that precious mineral, but also in grain and butcher's meat that Her Majesty's Dominion is now lacking. "Famine" of various sorts stares the burly beef-eaters in the face, and the subject fills the newspapers with horatory articles. This only goes to show that the resources of a country are proportional to its size, no matter how fertile may be the soil or how assiduous the care of its owners. It is to the vast fields of our own West that England must look for its food, and our mines must eventually furnish it with heat and light; and it may not be long before the old adage is reversed, and American crafts are found actively engaged in carrying coals to Newcastle.

Froude on American Politics.

Mr. Froude says that "either liberty must prevent corruption, or corruption will destroy liberty," a remark which the present generation will do well to ponder.
