All Saints' Day.

M., in the various Catholic churches, and later in the day the usual Sunday services were held.

A Hippopathalogical Tour of Investigation-Swinging Round the Circle of the Charleston Stables-No Malaria yet Discovered. There was a vague but alarming rumor yes terday of the appearance in Charleston of one case of the dreaded Hippozymosis, or whatever the Northern horse fever may be called, and a reporter of THE NEWS accordingly started out with the full determination that he would find that hippozymosistical beast if he were to be found in Charleston, or perish in the attempt. After some hours of patient investigation, however, in the course of which the reporter interviewed some hundreds of horses, of all varieties of physical condition, from the frisky young colt to the spavined and broken winded cart horse, he was forced to the conclusion that this polysyllabic epidemic had as yet failed to find a victim in this latitude, and that the rumers of its arrival here were either a cruel conspiracy against the stable-keepers and the reporter, or else simply a heartless delusion and a snare. The stables visited were Graham's, Oakman's, McCoy's, Kessel's, Picket's, Hogan's, Hockaday's, Christopher's, and half a dozen others, and the number of horses, mules, lackasses, &c., inspected was something less than a theusand. On several occasions the reporter got close upon the track of what promised to be a good genuine case of the real, original Jacobs, but after following the trall of the suspected brute, sometimes for hours, he would finally spot him, and find to his ineffable disgust that the terrible epizootic was only some wretchedly simple case of cold. Some of these adventures had an amusing phase, but they were none of them without their very disagreeable features, as, for instance, in one case where the reporter was referred to a down-town stable, where it was said a well-known farrier had been sent for in haste to attend an aggravated case of the genuine hippo-malaria. The reporter hastened to the stable and found the farrier elaborately inspecting the horse's mouth, prying open his eyes, blowing into his ears, poking his ribs, and going religiously through all the other ceremonles affected by the modern horse doctor, while an assistant was caressing with & stable shovel another brute who was trying to interfere. The reporter opened his eyes ceeded to interview the whole party. He opened fire first on the farrier as follows: Reporter. Well, doctor, have you got a case of the hipporhinorrhea here?

Farrier. No, sir, I guess not. Reporter. What are the symptoms? Farrier. Well, he has some cough, a little discharge from the eyes and nose, disinclination for teed, laziness, general debility, &c. Reporter (industriously taking notes.) Those are exactly the symptoms they find in the New York cases, aren't they? Farrier. Yes, sir, I believe so.

Reporter. And yet you don't think he has the epidemic? Farrier. No. sir, I guess not. A good many horses have colds, &c., just now.

Reporter. How long since the horse was Farrier. I don't know, sir. Here's the wner ; perhaps he can tell you. Reporter (to the proprietor of the stable.

How long has your horse been sick, sir? The proprietor (after a long look at the horse and an evident wrestle with his memory.) Well, I don't rightly remember. I've owned the horse about three years, and he's been that way pretty much ever since I've known him. I bought him out in Georgia, and you might find out-The reporter didn't wait to hear any more A horse car was going by, and he remembered an engagement that he had down town, but inst as he was going out of the stable that brute of a horse that he had been so solicitously inquiring about broke out into the most malicious horse-laugh that ever emanated from the lungs of any equine devil since the days of Pythagoras. After half a dozen false alarms, similiar to the last, the reporter worked his way up to one of the largest up-town stables, and looked into that institution in the expectation of finding the latest news about the epidemic. Meeting an unbleached citizen, who had evidently been to the circus and was balancing a manure tork on one section of a nose which was admirably adapted to that purpose, the reporter inquired:

"Got any sick horses here ?"

"Yes, sah; got one sick hoss, sho. He's blind mare.

The reporter asked to have the animal brought out for inspection, and she was accordingly produced. She looked sick enough, pertainly, to be guilty of hip ainorrhea or any other jaw-breaking maudy, and she looked very sheepishly out of her well eye as though ashamed of being caught in the act of epozooticism. Her head hung down, and her eyes were filled with big round tears, her aouth had a watery look about it, and a rheumy streamlet issued from her nostrils; her knees played a tremulous tattoo against each other, and seemed hardly able to support her attenuated frame, and her unkempt coat looked as though it might be full of mouse-nests. The reporter felt convinced that he had at last discovered the genuine hippozymosistical brute that he had been so energetically searching for, and he gazed upon that venerable and afflicted quadruped with feelings of affection, such as a patriotic citizen of Chicago might entertain toward that historic cow of Mrs. O'Leary's. He again commenced his inquiries as follows: Reporter. What do they say alls this animal? Othello. Well, some says one thing and some says another. Some says its the strangles and others says its the blind staggers. I knows what it is though, and I'll tell you if you won't go and tell nobody.

Reporter. My young friend, I am a reporter of THE CHARLESTON NEWS, and I am bound to publish in that paper all the important discoveries that I make. I feel it my duty to give you this warning. But if you know what alls this animal you must tell me the truth about it, for this is a very serious matter.

Othello. Well den, 'Misser 'Porter, I'll tell you de whole troof about it. You see, las' Monday I was putting dis horse up for de night, and de consarned ornary brute wouldn't get round no how. So I kinder punched him a little wid de pitchfork, and I guess it kinder went into his stomach, and since den he han't seemed to hab much appetite no how. But I didn't go to do it, no how, 'deed I didn't

Again the reporter seemed to suddenly los his interest in the case, and to remembe another engagement at the other end of the city, but he does sincerely hope that that unhappy stable-boy will get his deserts either in this world or the next for his cruelty both to the mare and the newspaper man. The simple facts of the case, as far as

Charleston and the horse malady are concerned, are that there has not been a single attack of the epidemic in this city. The trying cargo by Messrs. C. N. Hubert & Co.-with and changable weather of the past two weeks has been severe on the dray-horses who have during all that time been worked very hard on account of the activity in the fall trade, and many of them are now suffering with colds and are in such a low condition generally as to be subject to contagion if a single case of the disease should be brought to 263 King street.

HUNTING THE HIPPORHINORRHEA. | the city. There are many other horses that have lately been brought to the city by rail, which have been overheated and chafed in the box cars and have got severe colds in consequence. In many of these cases a short dry cough appears as one of the symptons, but this, as every horseman knows, is by no means alarming or unusual. In nearly all of the sales stables the animals are as sound as a bell and as frisky as kittens, but in the livery and dray stables many of the animals exhibit the ordinary results of the hard work that has recently been required of them. In the City Railroad stables the stock is in excellent condition, the only horse that is disabled having accidentally had a nail run into his foot. The horses of this company are worked hard, but they are always carefully rubbed down as soon as they come into the stables, and if the same precautions were rigidly enforced in the case of the back and dray horses, there would be far less sickness to report among them.

AMUSEMENTS.

Magic, Mirth, and Music. The performances of the Multum in Parvo Troupe last night were witnessed by a larger audience than on the night previous. They were fully as good as on that occasion, and were equally well received. Harry McCarthy's powers of mimicry are admirable, and his exercises of them last evening caused the sides of the spectators to ache with laughter. There will be a grand matinee to-day, and a farewell performance this evening.

REMOVAL .- Messrs. Steinmeyer & Stokes, the extensive lumber dealers, having found their former quarters inadequate to the increasing demands of their trade, have leased the premises so long known as Clark's Planing Mill, at the corner of Lynch and Beaufain streets, and yesterday removed their business to the new location. This enlargement of their business inclittes is not only encourageing as indicating the well deserved prosperity of an enterprising and flourishing firm, but as an evidence of the progress now making in building enterprises in Charleston, which is causing the increased demand for sawed and dressed lumber and for other materials in this line of trade.

MEDICAL BUBBLES .- Columns would be required to enumerate the medical bubbles that have risen to the surface and burst since Hostetter's Stomach Bitters became the standard tonic of the Western Hemisphere. Boasts the most extravagant, fabrications the most preposterous, cant the most sickening, have in turn been employed to bolster up the worthless preparations that have from time to time been introduced, in the hope of dividing the field with that famous vegetable remedy. Signal failure has been the lot of each and all. The reputation of the Bitters as a preventive of epidemics, a stomachic, an invigorant, a general restorative, and a specific for indigestion, bilious affections, rheumatism, nervous debility, constitutional weakness, paroxysmal fevers, and all complaints to which the more sensitive sex are exclusively liable, is established upon the sound basis of more than twenty years' experience, and can no more be shaken by the clap-trap nostrums of unscientific pretenders than the everlasting hills by the winds that rustle through their defiles.

Weekly Review.

WILMINGTON, October 31.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE.—The market during the past week has been very unsettled in tone, but priores have shown but little change. Friday the market opened at 57c, the clusing figures of last week, and rules steady with large transactions up to Tuesday, when, under less (avorbble telegrams, it declined 50c. Wednesday and up to the time of closing our review, the duliness continues, with prices tending downward. The recipits for the week show a declined improvement, owing to the opening of the water courses, and were 2865 casks against 1473 casks for last week. The exports, 1384 casks, against 1896 for last week. Blook of the water courses, and were 2865 casks against 1473 casks for last week. The exports, 1384 casks, against 1896 for last week. Chook tuperated to the control of the casks, against seed for last week. The exports, 1384 casks, against seed for last week. It appears that the market has reached a standing point, at prices both satisfactory to buyer and seller, and remains stationary, neither seler nor buyer appearing to take but intile interest in the advancement or reduction of prices. During the week the receipts have assumed a size, and the scarcity felt for manufacturing purposes has been temporarily relieved. The export demand continues to be very large, and considerable of the receipts for the week, 1916 bbls against 802 bbls for last we increase of 1094 bbls. The exports, 350 duis, against 687 bbls, is also an increase of 337 bbls. At the litre of closing our report, the market is steady at $3 25 for hard, and $5 for ports, 330 tols, against cost tols, association close of $37 bile. At the fine of closing our report, the market is steady at $8 25 for hard, and $5 for yellow dip and virgin.

ROSIN.—During the week there has been no abatement of the duliness of the rosin market re-

MOSIN.—During the week there has been no abatement of the duliness of the rosin market reported at the close of our last week y. Strained, which is principally the leading quality, has (except in the earlier part of our review) been very qulet and depressed. Friday the market opened at $3.80, and upwards of $260 bbls changed hands. Saturday, advices from New York being adverse to prices, buyers were offering lower figures, but was kept up until Tuesday evening, when the market ahowing no improved feeling selera conceded to a decline of 10c, and 400 bbls changed owners. Wednesday a smail transaction at the previous decline was reported, but the market was extremely heavy. To-day there is no improvement in the tone of the market, and we close our report with a duil and declining market. No 2 has been entirely nominal. No 1—This grade also shows a slight decline. The inquiry has been fair, and several transactions have taken place. Places—The fine qualities of this grade continue to be in good request. The lower grades have, though been almost entirely neglected. The receipts show a decided improvement, the late rise in the river allowing the quantity which has accumulated in that section of the week were quite free, and very little if any stock has accumulated.
