The Charleston Rews.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 5, 1873

THE CHARLESTON DAILY NEWS "Is designa "ted as the newspaper for the publication of "all lega! notices, and official advertisements, "for the County of Charleston, under the act eyes! In the domain of the blind the oneof February 22d, 1870, entitled an act to regus-late the publication of all legal and public "notices."

NEWS OF THE DAY.

-Six members of the German royal family make up an aggregate stature of thirty-six feet and two inches.

-New Orleans newsboys increase their profits by selling old newspapers to colored members of the Legislature without being detected.

-Chief Justice Chase has bought an old homestead near Washington, and is spending considerable care and cost in its embellishment -Mrs. Alice C. Clymer, the favorite niece and principal legatee of the Cary sisters, died recently at Jacksonville, Fia. She was one of the last surviving members of the family. -A subscription of $1500, in pennies, has been taken up, for the relief of Mr. John

King, said to be the first Englishman that signed the total abstinence pledge. -An action has been commenced against the owners of the Murillo by the proprietors of the Northfleet to recover $14,000 for damages sustained by the collision of the two vessels. -Mr. Disraeli bas given up his house it London, and during the session is to reside in no of the West End hotels. He is to live in the strictess seclusion, taking no part in anything except the work of his party.

-The municipality of Paris has refused $81,000 lets to the city by the will of one Schuler on condition that the sum be devoted to the hullding of a German hospital and to other purposes for the benefit of the German poor of Paris. The bequest of $1000 by the which can calmly contemplate such havec-80 same testator to the Protestant Consistory was accepted.

-Texas letter writers state that Der Texas, was a wilderness five months ago. Now it has a population of forty-five hundred; houses are going up in all directions; its streets are one hundred feet wide; a hotel containing one hundred rooms is nearly cempleted, and there are three banks, an opera house, and an immense freight depot.

-The marriage of Miss Rothschild, daughter of Sir Anthony Bothschild, and the Hon. Eliot Yorke, son of the Earl of Hardwicke, has created some sensation in England, in consequence of a section of the clergy of the Ohnrch of England lodging a caveat in the diocese court at Ely against the wedding being allowed to proceed in the parish church at Wimpole, the bride being a Jewess. The court, however, wisely declined to interiere, and after a civil marriage before the registrargeneral the second ceremony took place at the Wimpole Church, in the presence of a crowded congregation. Blamarck's recent, demand for $51,000,000 from the war indemnity is for the following purposes: Spandau to be much enlarged and strengthened; Kustrin to be raised to a sec fond-class fortress; the fortifications of Stettin. Kosel, Erfpurt, Grandenz, Munden ar . Wittenberg to lose their land defences, and be strengthened towards the coast; Rugen to be strengthened, and Mayence to be materially enlarged as soon as the outlying forts of Metz and Strasbourg shall be finished and armed. In eighteen months, when the above purposes shall be completed, the land offensive and defensive strength of Germany will be double what it was when the war with France broke out in 1870, and most of the strategic railways will then be nearly completed.

-Tiger hunting in New York is usually an euphemism for gambling. The real sport is not often afforded the chizens, and they do not enjoy it when it is. We notice the escape of a tiger belonging to Forepaugh's menagerie, and the excitement it caused, merely to commend the brave act of a police officer. with four Asiatic elephants, a horned horse, three black tigers, a mongoose, a black Suma tran rhinoceros and other rare animals, and many curious birds. The rhinoceros had just been landed with difficulty, when a plank in the bottom of the tigers' cage broke, and one of the beasts fell through. An exciting scene then took place. The elephants, who were standing quietly in the street, were seized with frenzy, and began a stampede. Chains were snapped asunder as if mere threads, and the animals moved away at the utmost speed. The tiger in the meanwhile had fastened on a horse standing in the street, had killed him. and was growling over its repast. Policeman Monroe then walked quietly up to the beast and killed it by a shot in a vital part from his revolver. It was a brave act, and deserves a passing mention. -As the case of Dr. Hessel has attracted considerable attention in England, and has been severely commented on by the papers, We give a short account of its most salient points. A woman was found murdered in her lodging-room in London. She was seen the night of the murder to speak to a man with a toreign accent. Beyond this nothing was known. A man named Wohlebe, a passenger on the German sain Wangerland about to put to sea from Ramsgate, was arrested. Dr.

Hessel, the chaplain of the ship, was naturally called upon to exert himself to aid the prisoner. He hit upon the following expedient to test the accuracy of the witnesses who were said to be able to identify Wohlebe: He dressed up twenty of the emigrants, himself among them, and ranged them along with the accused. Here came a decidedly unpleasant complication for the charitable pastor. The witnesses passed by Wohlebe, but identified Dr. Hessel as the murderer. The doctor was required to speak English, and the identification was still more positive. The emigrants were all laughing, the captain was jesting with the good doctor, Wohlebe was released and was receiving the congratulations of his friends, when the comedy became more serious. Dr. Hessel was informed that he was under arrest. He was sent to prison and assigned to a dungeon and stripped of his clothes and put in regulation uniform, and lost his identity as Dr. Hessel and became Number 8." He was eight days in prison, and the ship sailed without him. He was then released; the English Government paid all his expenses, and his friends made him up s purse of six thousand dollars.

The New Andromeda.

It is not necessary to harp upon the claims of the warring factions in Louisiana. What this paper thinks of the contending parties stands upon the record. But there is a question and an issue higher than platforms and higher than sectional animositythe welfare of the people of Louisiana, the supreme law of patriot and statesman. This demands that some measure of protection and encouragement be given to those who so patiently bear the yoke that binds them to plough through their own hearth-stones.

What is the case of Louislana to-day? How can civil government be maintained where its very form and essence are matters of hot dispute? And while each party is convinced that it surely is "the people," and that with that party "wisdom shall die," the State lies moribund. Fusionists and Kelloggites, like Hogerth's physicians, tear each other's coats and put out each other's eyed are kings. And, perhaps, among the completely blind the one eye would be more powerful and far-seeing than our unconscious, clear vision. But it is not written in any Gospel or Vedas that the blind shall lead those who see! And what have we here? Hundreds of thousands of men, wo men and children silently enduring the suffering entailed upon them by the strife of politicians. Their burden only changes to be increased. Chastised by whips; now they are scourged by scorpions. Even the remedies of law, the universal refuge of oppressed souls, are in abeyance. With unsettled courts and most uncertain judges. the only assurance the people can have is, that the decisions of one judge will be reversed by the other-not always a pleasant process for those who are the first to win their cause. With taxes at a fabulous rate, and property assessed at threefold and fourfold its value, at the caprice of the assessor, real estate may well go begging and fall to find a purchaser. The planter, uncertain of the future and without capital, is unable to carry on his operations. The merchant, restricted in means and cautiously curtailing his ventures, finds his business seek other channels. The grand railroad enterprises which promised a world of benefit to the State, and which gave employment to thousands of hardy laborers, are at a stand still The hearts of men fail them for fear, and, looking for the things that must come upon them, even the most "truly loyal" are shaken wanton a loosing, in these days of so-called peace, of the dogs of horrid war. In this condition stands Louisiana; a new Andromeda chained to the rock; her only garments tribulation and anguish; bound motionless by giant Selfishness. For her there is not even the hope that the swelling of the waters shall rescue her from the grasp of the dragon. There she lies, in her death in their faith in the wisdom of a government

For the deliverance of Andromeda the gods sent Perseus. In all Olympus, where our famacious Jove reclines among his thunderbolts, can no Perseus be found, wise, and bright, and pure enough, to rescue a perishing sister?

The State Agricultural Society.

It will be remembered that, at the last annual meeting of the State Agricultural and Mechanical Association, it was resolved to hold the spring meeting of the Society in this city on the first Tuesday in May, and the programme of discussions for that meeting, published in another column, shows that the officers of the Society are alive to the importance of making timely arrangements to insure the usefulness and success of the meeting. It now remains for Charleston to realize the importance of this occasion, which will, doubtless, bring hither hundreds of our best people from all sections of the State, and to put forth her best endeavors for the fitting reception and entertainment of these welcome visitors. Many of them will take advantage of this trip to purchase goods, most of them will doubtless desire to find amusement and recreation during their stay, and all of them will wish to see the metropolis of their State in her best garb and most attractive aspect. It is to be hoped that the occasion will be made to attract the largest possible number The ship Sparta recently arrived at New York of visitors, and to this end our railroads will doubtless lend their aid by some reasonable reduction of their passenger fares. The present meeting may result in the permanent establishment here of an annual fair which would surpass any of those now held in our sister cities; and, in this view alone, it were well that the heartiest welcome be accorded to the State Agricultural and Me#### chanical Society. The Lesson of Toloration.

An able speech was lately made by Mr. B. R. Plumly, in the Texas Legislature, on a motion to suspend the rules to pass an act of incorporation for a Hebrew Association. It seems strange to citizens of the older States, where acts of incorporations of religious societies are common, and where no one thinks of objecting to extending such privileges to Hebrews, that there should be any difference of opinion in an American legislative body on such a subject. The objection, however, to the suspension of the rules by one of the members, because, as he said, "I do not like Jews," had the result of bringing out the spirited and eloquent speech referred to, the key-note of which was thus boldly struck in the be-

"Mr. Speaker, I do like Jews. If I were not a Christian I should be a Jew. It is a foolish and cruel custom to deride the Jews as "people." Starting from this point, the speak er (after rebuking the spirit of self-righteous ess by the remark, among others, t "do nearly everything that Christ condemned, and we leave undone almost everything that He required to be done,") paid an eloquent and stirring tribute to the Jewish race; the tenacty of its life; the courage and endurance with which it met and mastered all conditions its existence as a great people at a period so remote that what we call history is lost in traremote that what we call history is lost in tra-dition; surviving the greatness of Egypt which held it in bondage; exploring the ruins of Ba-bylon, which thousands of years ago held it captive, where its exiles hung their harps captive, where its exiles hing their harps upon the willows; having laws which have become the laws of the world and permeated its civilization; gifts and activities lelt even now in commerce, finance, musical and dramatic art, statesmanship, literature and elequence. "Mr. Speaker, of all people we, who are "Christians, should not undervalue the Jews. They were the custodians of our religious ideas; the progenitors of our Christian exdeas; the progeniors of our Christian exemplar. In view of this subject, I realize the feeling of Disraeli, when, in the British Parliament, taunied with being a Jew, he is said to have replied: 'I am a Jew. When the gentlemen's ancestors were naked sayages on these islands, mine were Princes of the Temple. I feel every fibre of my form the thrill with the traditions of my people.' thrill with the traditions of my people. It is gratifying to learn that the rules of the Legislature were suspended, in conformity with the motion, by a unanimous vote, and that liberal ideas on such subjects have effectually asserted themselves in the "wilds of Texas."

The Late Daniel D. Leary.

The New York Journal of Commerce, of Wedesday last, says: "The flags on the shipping were lowered to half-mast yesterday, in respect to the memory of the late Daniel D. Leary, a well-known shipowner, a brother of · Arthur Leary. The deceased had vielted Brazil for the benefit of his health, having contracted congestion of the lungs. In South . America his health improved, and, believing that he was getting well, he embarked for New York. He died on the steamship Onta rio, within a few hours of Barbadoes, and his body reached here last Friday evening. The funeral took place from St. Patrick's · Cathedral. He was thirty-four years of age."
